Trouble, a Great Deal of It. Civil War, Widespread. Moscow Looks on, Rejoicing. One Feeble Burlesque.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

CIVIL WAR in Austria provides big and unpleasant news. Hundreds are shot, the government of the energetic little anti-Communist and anti-Hitler dictator, Herr Dollfuss, fighting savagely against the Austrian Socialist Workmen's party.

Dollfuss hitherto has been fighting to keep the German Nazis and their influence out of Austria, struggling to prevent first political and next territorial absorption by Germany.

Now the fight is at home. Socialist workmen, entrenched in the "Karl Marx" apartment house in Vienna, a huge, four million dollar structure, biggest apartment house in Europe, are using machine guns, hand grenades and gas against Austrian troops.

Late news tells of Austrian cannon battering down the big apartment house, housing 2,000 men, women and children, killing many of them.

TWENTY YEARS ago the big war was starting with Austria striking back after the murder of the Hapsburg heir-apparent, dragging Europe and this country into a gigantic war.

It could have been avoided by hanging the Serbian murderer and a little common-sense talk.

TWENTY YEARS after that unnecessary conflagration comes a battle of classes and political opinion within the diminished Austrian territory. Civil war based on political hatred, most violent in Austria, worries all Europe.

In France, Communists and other radicals have been rioting and killing in the streets. In Spain, fights between police and strikers wound many.

In England, Lord Rothermere calls for some form of Fascist government, which means dictatorship. It is difficult to imagine mild King George with a heavy-jawed, frowning British imitation of Mussolini telling him what to do, and what to say. But anything can happen.

Bloody violence in Austria shows what might have happened in Italy, if Mussolini had not taken charge with his Black Shirts and his castor oil, suppressing all differences of opinion, and in Germany if Hitler had not seized the power, crushing not only conflicting political opinions and all radicalism, but suppressing also the separate German kingdoms and their rights, upon which even Bismarck dared not lay a finger.

VIENNA, WHICH is about all there is left of Austria, is a big city, with nearly two million inhabitants, one-seventh of them of the Jewish race, many others of mixed race, Hungarians, who once boasted of their descent from Arpad's legions that came conquering from Asia, also Czechs, Spaniards, Slovaks and all sorts from the Balkans.

Few of the so-called "Nordics" live in Austrian territory that Hitler seems determined to annex; 250,000 Austrian Jews will wish for Dollfuss' success in his fight to prevent seizure of the government by Socialists, and to prevent Hitler bringing Austria under the rule of his Nazi Swastika.

WITH HEAVY howitzers bombarding apartments filled with hundreds of workingmen's families in Vienna, savage fighting in other Austrian cities, Russia and Japan getting ready for a war that will give Asia an imitation of the big war, France and Spain worried by strikes and uprisings of Monarchists, Socialists, Communists, no news seems important except assorted war news.

NEEDLESS TO say, the communistic government at Moscow watches with eager pleasure events in Austria and France.

Russia's official newspaper, Pravda, writes enthusiastically, "cheering the fighting workers in both countries, and demanding a united front of the workers." Pravda says:

"The demonstrations and general strikes in France and Austria show the revolutionary forces against Fascism are rising and ripening."

IF ENGLAND can talk about imitating Italy, if Germany's intelligent millions, trained in political thinking since the war of 1870, can suddenly subordinate their thinking and their will power to Hitler, a self-chosen leader from Austria, anything may happen anywhere.

NOT EVERYBODY in Louisiana loves Huey Long, in spite of reports to the contrary.

One thousand of Senator Long's fellow citizens gathered at Monroe, La., offered a "burlesque," planned to belittle him in the opinion of the outside world.

Alluding to the fact that Senator Long as Governor had taxed the oil industry to supply free school books to all children in white and colored public schools, and also parochial schools, those burlesquing the former Governor said:

"He fought illiteracy; he taught everybody to read; and then mailed them his political weekly."

SOMETHING BETTER than that must be found if Senator Long's standing in his state is to be undermined. He, of whom his enemies say that he "taught everybody to read," has rendered a public service that offsets many mistakes. To teach a child to read means to open the entire field of knowledge to that child.

Too many politicians in this country are economizing on the public schools, depriving children of education, instead of economizing on their own extravagance. The enemies of Senator Long should and can easily find some better topic for burlesque.

SUICIDE NOTE BATTLE ON IN TRIAL

Soles Murder Case Prosecutor Raps Own Witness

A battle over the "suicide note" written by LaRoux Soles climaxed in Criminal Court today with Prosecutor Jack Haggerty pleading that he was surprised by the testimony of one of his own witnesses, Dr. W. C. Heisey, McKeesport surgeon.

Haggerty, seeking to convict Robert S. Soles, prosperous McKeesport businessman, on a charge of murdering his wife, jumped to his feet and contended that Dr. Heisey was contradicting statements made to him before the trial.

Judge Patterson then granted Haggerty the right to cross-examine his own witness.

Twice on the stand today Dr. Heisey gave what seemed to be conflicting testimony on the note—as to whether LaRoux wrote it before she was shot, as the defense contends, or whether she could have written it after, as the state charges, Soles shot her.

He wound up by testifying that LaRoux might have written it after she was shot.

HANDWRITING OF NOTE

On questioning by Attorney O. K. Eaton, counsel for the ex-Army captain, Dr. Heisey testified that the handwriting of the note did not appear to be that of a woman suffering from a gunshot wound and a difficulty in breathing.

But Haggerty, pleading surprise, shot this question at the witness:

"On Friday didn't you talk to me and didn't I ask you whether

10 BELOW NEAR MT. LEBANON

After touching a low of 5 above zero at the Weather Bureau here and 10 below at Brokside Farms, near Mt. Lebanon, the temperature today began rising rapidly.

W. S. Brotzman, government meteorologist, said warmer weather was in prospect here. From the low of 5 at 4 a. m., the Weather Bureau thermometer mounted to 10 at 9 a. m.

The 10 below zero mark was registered on Brotzman's tested thermometer at Brookside Farms. Unofficial sub-zero marks were reported in other suburban districts. Twenty below was recorded in Clarion County.

The heaviest ice jam since the winter of 1917-18, according to rivermen, is periling vessels in the Ohio, Monongahela and Allegheny Rivers. Shipping has been tied up and virtually every bend in the Ohio between Pittsburgh and Louisville was reported gorged.

TOO BEAUTIFUL, GIRL MENACED

A terse note threatening a 19-year-old teacher in a country school near South Park, because she is "too beautiful," was being investigated today by county detectives.

Pretty Evelyn Morouse found the printed note in her desk Monday morning, she said. She teaches in the two-roomed Riggs School near Piney Fork, Snowden Township. The note read:

"Get out of that school. You are too beautiful to be up there. Maybe this will help you decide."

A drawing of a dagger and a gun and the words, "Watch you every day," were used in signing the odd note, which was painstakingly printed on yellow school paper.

Miss Morouse, who lives on the Brownsville road, near Broughton, said:

"I know of no motive for such a note. I questioned the pupils in the room—they denied knowing anything about it."

Asked if she is frightened, she replied:

"I'm going to teach every day just the same. I wouldn't do that if I were frightened."

Detectives intimated that they will question the 32 pupils in the school and examine their handwriting.

Confer in Boston On Lindbergh Case

BOSTON, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—The Lindbergh kidnapping case was the subject of a conference today between Joseph B. Keenan, Assistant United States Attorney General in charge of the prosecution of crime, and Francis J. W. Ford, local United States Attorney.

Federal officials declined to say whether any of the money paid as ransom in the Lindbergh case had been found in New England.

Cancellation of the Air Mail Contracts

THE FEDERAL administration's abrupt and arbitrary cancellation of all domestic air mail contracts has shocked the country.

The apparent attempt of some of the recipients of air mail subsidies to convert public aid into private enrichment is well calculated to stir resentment, but such resentment should not take the form of sweeping and ill-considered action.

And that is just the form of action which the government has taken!

It makes no distinction between innocence and guilt, and even as to guilt it passes judgment and imposes punishment without a hearing to the accused and without proof of the charges, or indeed, their formulation.

This is not the way in which Americans are accustomed to proceed, even in cases where the suggestion of guilt is strongly present, and it ill becomes a powerful republic to resort to such procedure in dealing with its citizens.

IN VIEW of the announcement that the government's action is to be followed by an examination of all air mail contracts with a view to their revision, it is difficult to see why such a factual survey should not have preceded its judgment and action rather than follow it.

There are other factors in the situation which the government has overlooked or chosen to ignore—but they are very practical factors.

They deepen the mystery as to what has come over the administration that it should for a moment suppose that such a course as it has elected to pursue will be tolerated by American opinion.

One of these factors is the effect of the government's action upon civil aviation in this country.

COMING FROM behind, American aviation has overtaken and surpassed, in both volume and efficiency, aviation in any country of the world. This has been largely due to the encouragement and aid of the mail contracts.

The government, by its summary procedure, has not only fastened upon the entire business of air transportation a blanket presumption of guilt, but it has PUT OUT OF BUSINESS, out of use and practice, a great corps composed of the most efficient and dependable aviators that we have.

Without disparaging the Army aviators who are to replace them, it must be admitted that the carriers of air mail, at great hardship and risk of life, acquired a mastery of the hazards of air travel, a knowledge of the routes and a general efficiency which cannot be improvised by hastily assembled substitutes.

The thousands of pilots, mechanics and other employes in the service of commercial aviation constitute a great national asset.

TO NEEDLESSLY disrupt such a service, to arrest its expansion and development, to replace it with something which must be, for a long time at least, inferior to it, is an act of very mistaken policy and impossible to justify.

The course of the government in this matter

U. S. Plans to Clear Worthy on Air Mail

Official of Lindbergh Line on Trial in Senate Probe

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—Considerable clarification of the administration's air mail policy is expected before the end of the week.

It is expected to take the form of an announcement that the government does not plan permanent or complete operation of the air mail by the Army Air Service; that the present policy is a temporary expedient, a stop-gap, considered necessary in view of the disclosures concerning some existing contracts, and that it is intended ultimately to resome of the contracts now suspended.

Postmaster General Farley, late today or tomorrow, will send a letter to Senator Black, chairman of the Senate investigating committee, which will set forth in some detail the reasons underlying the dramatic cancellation of all existing contracts. It is understood there is considerable evidence that has not yet been made public.

READY FOR COURT TEST

On Friday, the administration is preparing to go into court and "show cause" why the specific contract held by the Transcontinental and Western Air Line was canceled.

This is the line that carries at its masthead "The Lindbergh

WOMEN JOIN AUSTRIAN REVOLT

Death Toll Mounts to 1,000; Fighting Renewed

VIENNA, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Scores of women and children are unofficially reported among the casualties of Austria's civil war.

While the government is publishing no death toll details, feeling that would only add flame to the public excitement, an unofficial estimate shows between 1,000 and 1,500 persons have been killed in combat throughout the nation.

There are uncounted multitudes of injured.

The estimate of casualties is entirely unofficial, but was arrived at through conversation with government officials, army, and a personal inspection by the Associated Press staff on the scenes of warfare.

WOMEN KILLED

This inspection indicated it was safe to say that there have been at least scores of women and children among the casualties.

It is hard to look at the shell-torn factory homes and buildings in the suburbs of Floridsdorf alone without a temptation to allow at least one woman or child for every 20 male casualties there.

For it was in Floridsdorf that women fought all through the night beside their men against overwhelming numbers of government troops while shells screamed and smashed their homes into powder.

Indications that the government itself recognizes the danger to children were seen in a government decree, issued tonight, closing all Austrian schools indefinitely and in advice issued yesterday to keep children off the streets.

PHILLIPS' WIFE IN REVOLT ZONE

BUTLER, Pa., Feb. 14.—Bound on a pleasure cruise, Mrs. Thomas W. Phillips is believed to be in the midst of the civil turmoil in Vienna, according to her husband, Thomas W. Phillips, who today announced as a gubernatorial candidate in the coming state election.

Mrs. Phillips was scheduled to arrive in Vienna today aboard the Italian liner Vulcani for a week's visit with her daughter, Katherine Van Hoorn, wife of the Netherland's ambassador to Austria. Although Mr. Phillips has cabled Vienna to ascertain his wife's safe arrival, he has not as yet received a reply.

Reds, Nazis Dollfuss' Targets

Editor's Note: Chancellor Dollfuss' action in crushing Socialists in Austria is a move in his campaign against the Nazis, H. R. Knickerbocker, famous foreign correspondent of International News Service, writes in the third article of his series, "Will War Come." Knickerbocker outlines Austria's' position on the European war checkerboard and presents an exclusive interview with the doughty Austrian chancellor who is defying Adolf Hitler.

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER

VIENNA, Feb. 14.—Austria today is struggling in a conflict very like civil war.

But the question Europe is asking is what effect this struggle will have on the far greater question, "Will war, real war, come in Europe?"

Chancelor Engelbert Dollfuss is crushing the Socialists. His iron-jawed adjutant, Maj. Emil Fey, has driven the Socialists out of office and with all the military forces of the country under arms, with rifles and bayonets, barbed-wire, machine guns and even artillery, has initiated action utterly to destroy the party that once ruled Vienna.

This blow, however, though it falls today on the Socialists, is ultimately aimed at the Nazis. It is in the long run intended to help Dollfuss keep Austria independent of Ger-

STATE TO PROBE AMBRIDGE RIOTS

HARRISBURG, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—A special commission named by Gov. Pinchot is to investigate the private employment of deputy sheriffs, particularly in connection with the bloody riots at Ambridge last October, Pinchot said last night:

"I have waited in hope that the local authorities would investigate and punish these outrages. Nothing has been done. It is, therefore, most important that an investigation should be conducted in order that the facts may be made public."

As chairman of the committee the Governor named Shippen Lewis, of Philadelphia, special deputy attorney general. Serving with Lewis are: J. W. Madden, Pittsburgh; Judge Paul C. Lehman, Lewistown; John J. Kane, Pittsburgh, and Francis Biddle, Philadelphia.

One person was killed and more than 50 were injured in the riots, which occurred during a strike.

Valentine Divorce To Dorothy MacKaill

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 14.—(INS.)—Dorothy Mackaill, British-born movie actress, was granted a Valentine divorce today from Neil A. Miller, who met and wooed her on the beach at Waikiki, near Honolulu.

The beautiful, blonde actress charged Miller objected to her film career.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Mrs. C. B. Cambridge, 74, took her physician's advice to keep her "liver shaken up" and landed in a hospital.

She was perched on the back of a motorcycle piloted by J. F. Buckner when it collided with an automobile.

STOLEN CAR SCARRED BY BULLETS

Thief Believed Hit By Police Leaves Machine, Escapes

In an exciting chase through heavy downtown traffic during the noon hour today, Traffic Patrolman Michael O'Malley shot at an alleged automobile thief.

Moments later, the bullet-punctured car was found abandoned near the Point Bridge within view of Central Police Station. The occupant had escaped.

The thief, an unidentified youth, drove off in the machine from in front of the Pittsburgher Hotel, where it had been parked a few minutes before, according to Ralph Carter, Negro, hotel doorman. Carter gave chase in another machine, picking up Patrolman John McPherson.

As the two cars wove in and out of traffic in Diamond and Wood streets, McPherson signaled to Patrolmen O'Malley and Walter Mullen.

While scores of noon-day pedestrians lined the sidewalks, O'Malley drew his pistol and fired, as the machine reached Wood street and the Boulevard of the Allies. Witnesses said they saw the youth slump in the driver's seat and the car swerve in its course. Two bullets had hit the machine.

The stolen machine is owned by R. Allison, an official of the Rivoli Theater Company, of Crescent, Pa. Last fall, Allison had another car stolen from practically the same spot, he said.

MURREL PLEAS BEFORE JURY

International News Service.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Feb. 14.—Testimony was completed today and arguments started in the trial of Lieut. John Murrel, former All-American football star, for alleged attack on Mrs. Blanche Ralls Boisclair.

Striking at the defense testimony Murrel did not and could not have attacked Mrs. Boisclair as she charged, the government this morning called numerous witnesses in rebuttal in United States District Court.

The defense claimed Mrs. Boisclair was intoxicated the night of the alleged attack by the Army officer, and also that in the opinion of doctors it would have been impossible for the attack as described by the prosecuting witness, to have occurred.

In answer to the defense that Mrs. Boisclair was intoxicated, Mrs. Ed Quail, of Coropus Christi, a member of the party with Mrs. Boisclair and others at a night club, emphatically stated Mrs. Boisclair was no intoxicated.

Playboy Fights Fire In 2d Wife's Home

Harrison R. McCready's latest role was that of a fireman.

The playboy was visiting at the home of his second wife, Mrs. Margaret Heasley McCready, at 5810 Hays street, when fire was discovered in the place last night. He telephoned firemen at Engine Company No. 8 and assisted them when they arrived. A defective flue was blamed. Damage was slight.

JOHNSON NAMES CRITIC TO GET DATA ON NRA ABUSES

HEARINGS SET FEB. 27 FOR COMPLAINTS

Views of Economists, Some Foes, Sought To Map Course

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Hugh S. Johnson today called for a series of public hearings, beginning February 27 and running until the March 5 assembly of more than 300 code authorities, to receive complaints and criticisms of the National Recovery Administration.

Simultaneously, through Leon Henderson, outspoken critic of NRA policies, whom Johnson had named a special assistant so he could work for correction of abuses, the administrator invited a score of technical leaders, economists and marketing experts to contribute their views on NRA's handling of open price associations.

RELAXATION STUDIED

The NRA pushed forward a relaxation of government supervision over purely local industry while planning to extend control over business generally.

A swift alteration in the policy of national codes yesterday was widened to allow firms not handling nationally-distributed goods to establish regional agreements policed by local authorities and trade groups.

The NRA, however, would retain general supervision over keeping Blue Eagles in place.

To establishments under national codes, the administration was transmitting regulations ordering them to post conspicuously labor provisions of their codes and instructions for filing possible complaints.

The pre-code authority conferences will not consider specific codes, but will be open to spokesmen for management, labor and consumer groups to give NRA "the benefit of public suggestions, criticisms and petitions with respect to any phase of policy or administration of codes."

TOPICS LISTED

The first conference will be on possibilities of increasing employment, wages and hours; comparative situation of capital goods and consumer goods industries. Two conferences will be on trade practices, the first dealing with costs, prices, monopolistic tendencies; the second with control of production through limiting machine hours, restricting plant expansion and other practices.

Another session will debate compliance, inequalities, overlapping of codes, inter-industry co-ordination, financing of administration and use of the code eagle.

Still another will deal exclusively with the effect of codes on small business and minorities in code groups.

The only restriction on appearances is that names must be filed before noon, February 26, with an outline of the criticism or suggestions to be offered.

MISS PERKINS ASKS HARMONY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Co-operation between the federal government and the states in matters affecting the nation's forty million wage earners and their employers was urged today by Secretary Perkins in opening a two-day conference on labor problems.

Representatives of the Governors of 44 state, including Miss Charlotte Carr, of Pennsylvania, were present to plan a program of labor legislation.

Miss Perkins said that, although the NRA has resulted in some improvement, the concurrence and positive action of the states is needed if sound permanent labor legislation is to be developed.

Marriage of Aides To Coolidge Bared

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Feb. 14. — (INS.) — A romance that budded at the close of the Calvin Coolidge administration culminated in the marriage last June of Miss Mary Bak and Herman C. Beaty, it was announced today.

Miss Bak, 22, was stenographer to the late President when he resumed his law practice here after leaving the White house.

Beaty was engaged as a secretary to Mr. Coolidge to aid in getting material for a daily article by the ex-President.

LAST OF LIQUOR STORES OPENS

The last of the 55 state liquor stores in Western Pennsylvania opened today at 4614 Liberty avenue, Bloomfield. With the opening, Allegheny County now has 22 stores in operation, according to Philip W. Gundelfinger, district superviser.

A new liquor price list will be announced March 1, "or possibly before," Gundelfinger revealed.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 14.—Pennsylvania's state liquor stores did $2,138,165.23 worth of business in January, the first month of their operation, the Liquor Control Board reported today.

Based on an arbitrary estimate of 25 per cent net profit, sale of liquor netted the commonwealth approximately half a million dollars.

PWA CURTAILS NEW PROJECTS

Announcement that no new non-federal public works projects will be accepted by state Public Works Boards was made here today by J. C. Trees, chairman of the Pennsylvania State Advisory Board of the PWA. Mr. Trees expressed the hope the announcement would spare municipalities, and perhaps other organizations, unnecessary expense in preparing data on projects they have contemplated.

Public Works Administrator Harold L. Ickes has directed his administration to concentrate effort on bringing work already provided for under contract and construction.

Britain and Russia Draft Trade Pact

BOARD PUSHES WEIRTON VOTE

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 14.—Plans to call an election by the employes of the Weirton Steel Company without waiting for a preliminary poll are under consideration today at an executive meeting of the National Labor Board.

A surprise move in the long controversy between the government authorities and Ernest T. Weir was made when Senator Robert F. Wagner, chairman, called the board together for a decision in the matter. Senator Wagner told a Sun-Telegraph correspondent:

"A decision in this question will soon be reached. A petition containing the signatures of several thousand employes, presented to President Roosevelt, indicated that a very considerable number of the workers desire an election of representatives for collective bargaining. Under these circumstances it may be considered unnecessary to make a further poll, and in this event, we shall order an election forthwith."

2 STEEL FIRMS SHARE ORDER

Two Pittsburgh steel companies, the Fort Pitt Bridge and American Bridge, have been awarded part of a 15,000-ton steel and metal order by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. The order amounts to more than $1,000,000, according to an International News Service dispatch from Philadelphia.

Other companies sharing in the allocation of steel business include the Ingalls Iron Works Company, of Verona, and the McClintic Marshall Company and Shoemaker Bridge Company, both of Pottstown.

This steel requirement is in furtherance of the railroad's $77,000,000 improvement and employment program financed by a loan from the Public Works Administration.

Flint Dies at 84; 'Father of Trusts'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Charles R. Flint, 84, often called "the father of trusts," is dead. After a brief illness, he died in his hotel suite here of arterio sclerosis.

Flint was accredited with having had a greater part in the organization of big business corporations than any other American. Estimates of his fortune ranged from 100 to 200 million dollars at the time of his retirement in 1931.

SENATE ACTION ASSURES CWA PAYDAY

Bill Given Roosevelt Provides 50 Millions For Wages

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—The Senate today completed congressional action on the 950 million dollar appropriation bill for the CWA and distress relief. It now goes to the White House.

Today's action assured that the CWA's 50 million dollar week-end payroll will be met.

Final action came on a motion by Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, to reconsider a previous action in approving a partial conference report. He was defeated by a single vote, 42 to 41. The motion appeared to have carried, but Senator Tydings (Dem.), of Maryland, strolled into the chamber and swung it the other way.

Borah and Senators Pittman (Dem.), of Nevada, and Copeland (Dem.), of New York, sought reconsideration to send the measure back to conference to strike out the provision prohibiting expenditure of any of the fund for new federal projects.

Harry L. Hopkins, CWA administrator and director of this major relief activity, believes the British system of unemployment insurance is far better than the American relief methods.

The CWA is considering the discharge shortly of 200,000 men employed on federal projects. These men, mostly in the East and South, are doing federal work on private land. Objection has been made to this practice, the objectors contending that federal projects should be confined to government land.

OFFICERS ADMIT SPECULATING

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—How officers and directors of the American Commercial Alcohol Corporation speculated in stock of their own company was told to the Senate Banking Committee today by Russell R. Brown, board chairman of the corporation.

The corporation's stock was listed on the New York Stock Exchange, which the banking committee is investigating in its consideration of the stock market regulatory bill.

Brown admitted that he and R. H. Grimm, corporation president, and William S. Keys and Philip Publicker, directors, gave options to a number of stock exchange members to buy stock in the whisky corporation at prices much lower than par value.

Later the options were called by Frank E. Bliss and other brokers.

Brown was forced to buy back his own stock at $12 a share, several dollars more than the option stipulated. He said he lost money in the deal, but admitted that others may have profited. The options were issued "to maintain a stable market," Brown asserted.

Liquor Enforcement Tests Set Saturday

HARRISBURG, Feb. 14.—(INS.)—February 17 was set today as the date for competitive civil service examinations for liquor law enforcement agents. The tests will start at 9 o'clock and will be held in Harrisburg.

About 200 of the 800 applicants who originally asked for application blanks will be eligible to take the examination. The Liquor Board expects to have an enforcement corps of about 50 agents.

Cancellation of the Air Mail Contracts

is not something that can be condoned. It is not to be dismissed as merely hasty or unnecessarily emphatic or unduly severe.

It is fundamentally bad—fundamentally wrong—in conception, spirit and effect.

IT IS NOT CAST IN THE DEMOCRATIC MOLD. IT IS ESSENTIALLY DESPOTIC!

It is essentially—not smally, not superficially, not potentially only—but ESSENTIALLY DANGEROUS from a political viewpoint, from an economic viewpoint, from a legal and social viewpoint.

IT IS UN-AMERICAN!

IT PRACTICALLY PLANTS THE STANDARD OF DESPOTISM and SUBSTITUTES THE WILL OF ONE MAN for the orderly procedure of the courts and the Congress and the recognized rights of the public.

It confirms every fear to which the unreflecting opportunism of the administration has given rise.

It negatives every avowal which the administration has made of its regard for constitutional precedent and constitutional procedure, in the repeated appeals it has made to the people to accept its erratic violence in dealing with our form of government.

It calls for new appraisals of the administration's purposes and a new determination of the extent to which patriotic Americans can respond to its pleas for support!

R.W. Child Sees CWA as Menace To Government That Created It Unless Army Takes It Over

By RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD

Noted Author and U. S. Ambassador to Italy Under Two Administrations.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—Any mobilized army of the unemployed is a menace in any country in the world.

Washington is just beginning to realize that when a government itself MOBILIZES the armies of the unemployed, and pays such armies subsidies, everything may go well only SO LONG AS THE TAXPAYERS' MONEY IS AVAILABLE TO CONTINUE THAT PAY.

There is no disposition, even today, to assert that the hungry or homeless can be neglected. We must always perform our obligations to the unfortunate, not only because of the common cause of humanity but no doubt to preserve peace and order.

BUT WHEN, in the Civil Conservation Corps and the Civil Works Administration, we undertake to mobilize the unemployed under such conditions as lead to wages in excess of Army wages and to the dislocation of labor on unneeded jobs, such as is exemplified by 3,000 men screening the sand of New York's famous bathing beaches, we are engaging in experiments which, unless carefully directed, may turn out to be much more expensive than a straight relief program and much more damaging than a dole.

These experiments are more expensive in terms of economic waste because they include the wastes of politicians' graft, and the wastes of communities competing with each other in grabbing the appropriations, and the wastes of dislocation of labor from employment in other directions where the other employment would be under normal conditions and promising a future.

There may not be the same demoralization as in straight relief, but there is, we are beginning to find, demoralization none the less.

NONE OF THESE expenses of the two schemes of the brain trust—the Civil Conservation Corps and the Civil Works Administration—amount to much, however, when compared to A MUCH GRAVER DANGER.

This danger lies in the fact that quite unexpectedly there has arisen the menace of a new organized minority—the immense subsidized labor group created by the brain trust.

The government in this field has mobilized something like an army.

It is an army which may in the end threaten government with the political power of its millions of voters. It is an army which may become swayed by irresponsible leaders. It furnishes the best nucleus for the intrigue of the Communists that the world has ever seen.

It may prove to be the most costly experiment in giving relief to those who need it that we could have made.

HENCE THOSE Senators and Congressmen, who are beginning to see that planning boards do not always foresee the results of their dazzling programs, are giving attention today to the suggestions made in the Hearst press that REGULAR ARMY COMMAND AND CONTROL OF THE CIVIL WORKS ADMINISTRATION BE ADOPTED IMMEDIATELY.

This should be done not only for the elimination of graft and politics, not only for the protection of our political life against a new unparalleled hold-up minority, but to protect the workers themselves in the Civil Works Administration from exploitation by RED LEADERSHIP and the doctrines of MOBILIZED VIOLENCE.

SOME AIR MAIL LINES MAY GET JOBS BACK

Lindbergh Line Official On Trial; Colonel Sent Challenge

Line." Col. Charles A. Lindbergh is technical adviser of the company, which has one of the most lucrative of the contracts. Another of its officials, Harris M. Manshue, it now on trial before the Senate for removal of correspondence which had been subpenaed by the Senate. Attorney General Cummings said:

"We can show plenty of cause."

The administration recognizes that it let itself in for wide-spread criticism by the summary cancellation of all existing mail contracts, irrespective of whether collusion or wrong-doing had been developed in a specific case.

BOTH SIDES OUTLINED

Boiled down, the opposition case is substantially this:

That of the 34 air lines holding contracts, evidence of irregularities and collusion has thus far affected only a few companies, and that under these circumstances it was "brutal" and "unfair" to cast public suspicion on all the companies, whether good or bad; that such summary action will greatly retard the advancement of commercial aviation, and that it inflicts an undeserved hardship upon many businessmen and investors who have put millions into the industry.

And the administration's case, briefly, is this:

That such amounts of collusion and fraud have been discovered in the awarding of contracts under the previous administration as to justify the temporary cancellation of all the contracts until the sheep can be separated from the goats; that the air mail service is "overserviced" and, under existing contracts, by far too expensive; that it is necessary to have a thorough housecleaning.

CHALLENGE TO LINDBERGH

As for the Lindbergh case, which has injected a highly dramatic note into the whole proceeding, administration officials are saying nothing publicly, but plenty privately.

They consider that Lindbergh's criticism, made public by his attorney, Col. Henry Breckinridge, before it reached the President, came with bad grace because of his intimate tie-up with one of the largest contract-holding companies.

Postmaster General Farley, to whom the White House referred Lindbergh's telegram of protest, revealed today that he has sent a rather warm rejoinder.

Lindbergh is at liberty to make public the telegram, Farley said.

If on active duty as a reserve officer, Lindbergh might be liable to court-martial and dismissed from the service for sending such a telegram, high ranking army officers said today concerning a demand now before Gen. Dennis Nolan in New York that Lindbergh be court-martialed.

However, as Lindbergh is not on active duty, he is not subject to military discipline, and therefore no action is likely to be taken against him.

Senators Study Action On 4 Air Mail Leaders

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—The Senate went into closed session today to continue deliberation of contempt charges against William P. MacCracken, Harris N. Hanshue, Gilbert L. Givvin and L. H. Britin.

Senatoes said they looked for a decision in the cases before adjournment tonight.

Two courses were held by lawyers to be open to the Senator-jurors—decision in the cases by the Senate or reference to the courts.

The four men are charged with disobeying a subpena by the air mail contract inquiry committee by removing and destroying certain records from MacCracken's files.

Federal Reserve Studies Loan Plan

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—The Federal Reserve Board is studying a legislative proposal for making direct loans to industry and certain types of business.

It was understood today that President Roosevelt has addressed a letter on the subject to Gov. Eugene Black, of the Reserve Board, but officials declined to discuss its contents.

Jap Ambassador Talks Peace With Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Hirosi Saito, Japan's new Ambassador to the United States, presented his credentials to President Roosevelt at the White House yesterday and spoke of the "friendship" and "mutual confidence" of the two nations.

Mr. Roosevelt expressed similar sentiments and dwelt on the American desire for peace in the Pacific.

Saito said he was sure that "whatever question, either political or economic, may arise between our two countries, can and will be amicably composed in a spirit of friendship and mutual confidence — the spirit that has characterized our relations ever since Japan made, at the instance of the United States, her formal entry into the family of nations."

In reply the President said:

"I share fully the view which you have expressed. You will find this government devoted now as in the past to the principle of maintaining peace in the Pacific region as elsewhere and ready to co-operate cordially and sympathetically with your government in all of the many lines of endeavor which are possible in pursuance of and toward making prevail that principle."

Saying he would make it "the prime object" of his task here to strengthen the "traditional friendship" binding the two nations, the Ambassador declared the trade of Japan and the United States is the largest between any two countries on the Pacific. He expressed the belief they could profitably unite their efforts "in the common struggle against the economic depression."

SEA MAIL PACTS FACE SHAKEUP

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—President Roosevelt plans a complete reorganization of ocean mail contracts, it was announced today.

Ocean mail cantracts have been linked with air mail contracts in the current Senate investigation.

The President made it clear, however, that no sweeping cancellation of ocean mail contracts is contemplated, as was done in the case of the air mail contracts.

Rather, he said, the objective of the administration is reorganization in the interests of better service.

Air Mail Service Cut To Start Here Monday

Air mail service and speed will be curtailed beginning Monday when Army ships begin flying the mail to and from Pittsburgh.

Postmaster General Farley announced schedules that will affect Pittsburgh last night, disclosing fewer planes will be in service as a result of the government cancellation of commercial mail carrying contracts.

Instead of five trips daily between New York and Kansas City via Pittsburgh, there will be but one trip each way. There will be three trips on the Washington-Pittsburgh-Cleveland route instead of five.

The Army ships will not be as speedy as those of the Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., and Pennsylvania Air Lines, which now transport the mails. While T. W. A. planes make the New York-Pittsburgh flight in three hours and five minutes, it was said, the government ships will require 25 minutes more.

The schedule for the New York-Pittsburgh-St. Louis-Kansas City service provides departure from New York at 9:30 p. m. and arrival at Kansas City at 8:30 a. m., and departure from Kansas City at 3:40 p. m., arriving at New York at 4:45 a. m.

The Washington-Pittsburgh-Cleveland service provides for departures from Washington at 11:30 a. m., 6 p. m. and 10.55 p. m., with arrivals at Cleveland at 3 p. m., 9.30 p. m. and 2.10 a. m. Departures from Cleveland will be at 2 a. m., 2:30 p. m. and 8:15 p. m., with arrivals in Washington at 5:15 a. m., 6 p. m. and 11:45 p. m.

Seven planes are scheduled for services between New York and St. Louis via Pittsburgh with an approximate speed of 110 miles an hour.

JEROME, PROSECUTOR OF THAW, DIES AFTER ILLNESS

'BEST LAWYER I EVER HAD,' HARRY SAYS

Former Playboy Sorry To Learn of Foe's Demise

International News Service.

WINCHESTER, Va., Feb. 14.—Harry K. Thaw, erstwhile Broadway playboy, today expressed regret over the death yesterday of William Travers Jerome, former New York District Attorney. Said Thaw:

"I am very sorry to learn that."

Reverting to his famous trial in 1908, Thaw added:

"He was the best lawyer I ever had. He made the best speech to the jury.

"The jury was six for me and six against me until he spoke."

DIES OF PNEUMONIA

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—William Travers Jerome, 74, who as District Attorney of New York twice prosecuted Harry K. Thaw for the murder of Stanford White, is dead.

Ill two weeks with pneumonia, the famous prosecutor who held office from 1902 to 1910, died yesterday at his town house. With him were his son, William Travers Jerome, Jr., and his daughter-in-law. His widow is ill at the Jerome country house at Yonkers.

Although well known to New Yorkers as an arch-foe of Tammany Hall and a constant crusader against crime and political corruption, Jerome was best known in other parts of the country for his prosecution of Thaw.

Following the second trial of That, as a result of which he was committed to an asylum, Jerome repeatedly blocked attempts of Thaw to regain his liberty. For six years after he left office the state of New York hired him to defeat new maneuvers to free the millionaire. Finally the Attorney General's office decided to get along without Jerome—and Thaw was freed.

NOTED AS REFORMER

Jerome first came into prominence as a reformer in 1890, when he was an assistant counsel to the Lexow committee. Exposure of vice, political graft and underworld rackets by the committee resulted in loss of power by Tammany and William L. Strong was elected mayor. Jerome had managed Strong's campaign and as a reward was appointed justice of special sessions the following year.

As justice of special sessions Jerome became known as "The Man With the Sledge," because he personally helped batter down doors of gambling houses to see that his search warrants were served.

The most spectacular of his raids was against the elaborate ar luxuriously furnished gambling house which Richard Canfield had operated 20 years. In five nights, Reginald Vanderbilt was reputed to have lost $500,000 at Canfield's.

Jerome retired to private practice in 1910 and about 12 years ago organized a company for production of motion pictures in color which in 1929 was reported to have built him a fortune estimated at $20,000,000.

Although living in comparative retirement for the past few years, the former prosecutor again raised his voice against Tammany last fall by supporting the fusion campaign of Mayor F. H. LaGuardia.

FACTOR IN EAST IDENTIFIES 2

International News Service.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 14.—Basil (The Owl) Banghart and Isaac (Ike) Costner, arrested here Sunday as members of the Terrible Touhy Mob of Chicago, have been positively identified by John (Jake the Barber) Factor as two members of the gang which kidnaped and held him for $70,000 ransom.

Factor, who flew here from Chicago accompanied by two heavily-armed detectives, made the identification after confronting the men in police headquarters last night.

Emerging from police headquarters, Factor told newspapermen:

"I have identified Banghart and Costner as two of the men who kidnaped me."

Chicago detectives who accompanied Factor indicated that an immediate effort would be made to extradite the two men on the strength of Factor's identification.

Banghart and Costner were arrested with two women, Mrs. Jessie Touhy and Mrs. Mae Davis Blacock, when police made a surprise raid on a flat here. In the flat, the police allege, was found $12,500, part of the loot of a $103,000 Charlotte (N. C.) mail robbery.

TWO OVERCOME ASLEEP IN VAN

Two truck drivers were taken to Allegheny General Hospital today suffering from carbon monoxide poisononing that resulted from sleeping several hours in a moving van with the motor running. They are O. E. Whitaker, 40, and George Reeves, 20, both of Mohawk, Ind.

Arriving in Pittsburgh from Indiana, they parked at Lacock and Anderson streets, North Side. Waking this morning, they climbed out of the cab of the machine and collapsed on the sidewalk. An attendant at a nearby gasoline station took the men to the hospital.

Weather Conditions.

The high pressure that caused the cold weather over this section yesterday and last night moved southward from the Hudson Bay section, and is now centered over the Atlantic Coast fom New England to the Gulf. It caused a further drop in temperature last night over all the Atlantic Coast states and as far west as Ohio. Westward from Ohio over the Mississippi Valley states and the plains states temperature changes since yesterday were towards rising and mild weather prevails. A low is centered over Manitoba and extends southward over the Mississippi Valley states it is causing some cloudiness over the lake region but over most of the country the skies are clear. Another high is centered of the plateau section of the Rocky Mountains.

River Conditions.

The rivers are about stationary at low stages, and at many places they are frozen over with thick ice. Gorges are forming at a number of places, on the Allegheny pools from No. 5 to No. 8, the ice is from 10½ to 14 inches thick; and on the Monongahela River the thickness ranges from four inches in the Fourth pool to seven inches in the Fifteenth. The Pittsburgh harbor is again frozen over. Stage at Franklin is 4.0 feet; Lock No. 7 (Mon.), 11.5; Pittsburgh, 10.5; Dam No. 4, 2.6; No. 6, 3.7; No. 10, 3.6, and No. 12, 4.6.

P. O. RAMP BIDS SUBMITTED

Bids have been made for construction of a Seventh avenue ramp for the new Postoffice, L. W. Monteverde has notified Council. No contract has been awarded, according to his information, he said.

Monteverde wrote that the heaviest traffic on the ramp would be between 5 and 6 p. m., when Seventh avenue traffic was also heaviest. He commented that several plans for ramps opening on other streets had been rejected by the government as too costly.

Piano Prodigy Signs For $75,000 Season

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Ruth Slenczynski, the phenomenal 9-year-old pianist, has signed a contract through her father guaranteeing her $75,000 for her second season in the United States.

Ruth, who made a sensational debut here last November, will sail for Paris next week, but will return to the United States in January, 1935. She will present 30 concerts at an average fee of $2,500. Her most recent appearance was in Pittsburgh.

Chinese Feasts, Gifts Mark New Year Here

Whatever of trouble and grief in the lives of the Chinese today is forgotten. In Pittsburgh's Chinatown on Second and Third avenues, business is abandoned. The shops are closed.

The new year, somewhere in the 4,000th year of the Chinese calendar, was quietly welcomed last night by a few firecrackers and much rejoicing and feasting. For the past week, Chinese households have bustled with activity.

Those who can afford it, today wear new clothes. Those who cannot, compromise with clean clothes. All babies, whether an hour or a day or a week or a month old, are automatically a year old today. Chinese children are tidy today with little aprons over their Chinese blouses and pants. Each apron has a small pocket in it, where the Chinese children deposit their "lucky money," silver coins wrapped in red paper.

Gifts of food, fruit, candy and flowers, with the inevitable burning of incense, are set in the windows of Chinese homes today for the all-powerful Sky-God. Many offerings are taken to the Temple to be blessed. Special foods are present on all Chinese tables today.

Oysters and a certain kind of seaweed and a certain kind of flower bulb have special significance as new year's foods. Because of the play of meaning on Chinese words, one shade of meaning of "ho-shee" or oyster means "always." "Faut-toi," meaning in one sense "seaweed," means in another "prosperity." "Shee-goo," a type of bulb the roots of which grow out of the same side of the bulb as the sprouts, is symbolical of growth of population or family.

Old tales are told and family circles gather around to receive gifts, listen to Chinese music and revive their ancient traditions. All debts possible are paid.

GIRL BEGINS 3D YEAR OF SLEEP

CHICAGO, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—On February 13, 1932, Patrica Maguire stepped out of her house in suburban Oak Park to mail a valentine to a niece.

That was the last time she left it, for soon afterward she began her long sleep—a sleep that has lasted about 17,500 hours, and which is as mysterious to science today as it was when its symptoms were first noticed two years ago.

How much longer she will sleep continues to baffle physicians, but her mother, Mrs. Peter Miley, and her sister, Mrs. Gladys Hansen, who have stood by the young woman these past two years, remain hopeful that she some day will awaken.

11 Quit Art Show As Rivera Protest

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—(INS.)—Eleven artists today had announced their withdrawal from the Municipal Art Show to be held in Rockefeller Center next month. The action was in protest over the destruction of the Diego Rivera mural in the lobby of the R.C.A. Building.

The artists, describing the action of the Rockefeller interests in destroying the mural as "vandalism," called upon Mayor F. H. LaGuardia to cancel or transfer the show to another location.

PAGAN WARNING GIVEN BY POPE

VATICAN CITY Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Pope Pius today had sounded a warning against efforts to 'drag the world into paganism."

The criticism was interpreted in various ways, some viewing it as a new attack on the Nazi sterilization law, in Germany, while others believed it referred to Bolshevism.

The statement by the Pope was made during the course of an address in consistory hall last night to priests who will preach lenten services in the churches of Rome. The Pontiff said:

"While calling your attention to the beautiful tendencies which exist in the world for human welfare, truth and purity of Christian life, it is not possible to overlook certain torpid, violent, insidious moves aimed at the de-Christianizing of the world and dragging it back to paganism."

It was recalled by persons who heard the address that the Pope directly attacked sterilization in his Christmas speech.

Son Slain Purposely, Ex-Countess Says

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Circumstances of the fatal shooting of 13-year-old Jackie Bilkau, scion of German nobility, by a playmate were left undetermined by a coroner's jury yesterday after the victim's mother, the former Countess Erna Von Bilkau, hysterically testified she believed the shooting was intentional.

Mrs. Bilkau, who said she gave up her title after coming to this country, said her son told her he believed he was shot purposely by his playmate, Fred Kramer, 17.

Boy Marks Year In Hospital as Valentine

To 9-year-old Jimmy Layton, of 2406 Sidney street, February 14 is more than just another Valentine Day. Stretched on his cot in Homeopathic Hospital, he is observing the first anniversary of his entry to the hospital.

Jimmy was taken to the hospital suffering from a rare bone disease in his left leg. Four operations have been performed.

CHURCH RITES OPEN LENT

The Lenten season began today with Christianity marking the dark hours before the Crucifixion in fasting and self-denial.

Today is Ash Wednesday, observed in Catholic churches with the rite of ashes, signifying the penitence of the faithful.

Victim of Trolley Dies Unidentified

Morgue officials today were endeavoring to establish the identity of a man, about 60, who died last night in Homestead Hospital from a skull fracture suffered February 2, when he was struck by a street car on Brown's Hill. The victim died without regaining consciousness.

BABIES ARRIVE AS VALENTINES

When next St. Valentine's Day rolls around it is going to carry a double significance for several Pittsburgh district youngsters who made their first whimpering protests at being ushered into this world shortly after last midnight.

Those entitled to a double greeting next February 14, are a son, born to Mrs. Anna Brazel, of 112 North Fourteenth street, at the West Penn Hospital; a daughter, born to Mrs. Thomas Race, of 2308 Cronmeyer street, McKeesport, at the McKeesport Hospital, and a boy, born to Mrs. Joseph Santovipa, of 148 Maxwell street, at the Pittsburgh Hospital.

CONTRITE PONZI FREE, SEEKS TO STAY IN U. S.

Swindler Leaves 'Pen' Asking Forgiveness; Fights Deportation

BOSTON, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Charles Ponzi, 40 pounds heavier after 11 years and seven months of imprisonment, stepped out into the free but frigid air of Prison Point today, through with get-rich-quick bubbles and hopeful only of having a chance to work.

Ponzi, although he had paid what the law demanded for promoting one of the most sensational investment schemes the country ever knew, was not quite a free man. United States immigration inspectors were on hand with a warrant for his deportation to Italy, and a car was waiting to whisk him to the immigration station.

ASKS FORGIVENESS

The Italian did not look with pleasure on the prospect of being forced to leave the country and indicated his intention of trying to remain by appealing to the courts.

It was a strange new Ponzi that stepped out of the prison door today.

Gone was the braggadocio that marked his demeanor back in 1920 when the world was rushing to his doors with its savings; gone the careless flippancy that marked his court appearances when the government sought to show that his "50 per cent in 45 days" scheme was only a fraud.

Prison life had subdued Ponzi, and he came out repentant, asking the world's forgiveness, and constantly reiterating his desire to work and live in this country.

FAREWELLS SINCERE

There was a trace of the old Ponzi, however, in the contagious smile and the laughter with which he parried the jests of the news and camera men. His wit was as keen as of old, and his ability to make friends apparently unimpaired, because there appeared to be sincerity in the warm handshakes of prison officials and trusties alike as they crowded about to bid him goodby and wish him luck. He said:

"I have no plans whatever. I hope that I might now be forgiven for what I did, which I believe was due more to my bad judgment than an intent to do wrong."

He denied the suggestion that he might have sufficient funds to maintain himself and his family for a while or that he would go to his former friends for financial assistance.

BOY DISAPPEARS AFTER SLAP

ROCKFORD, Ill., Feb. 14.—(AP.)—The police today began a search for 8-year-old Charles Backus, Jr., after the detention for questioning last night of Backus and several members of his family for information concerning the boy's disappearance. The police said the case was first reported to them as a kidnaping.

Among those detained with Backus was the missing boy's grandmother, Mrs. Beulah Anderson.

The police said they had been told by the lad's stepsisters, Dorothy and Pauline, that the elder Backus had slapped his son twice last Wednesday and that the boy had fallen unconscious and that later the boy was taken away by his father in a truck.

The police said they were told the slapping was administered after the boy, described as sickly, had been reprimanded by his mother for not changing his clothes after he had returned home from school.

Backus denied the accusations.

Divorces Banned On Valentine Day

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Seekers after singleness whose cases are on today's docket in City Court here will have to come back. Judge William F. Borders said:

"This is St. Valentine's Day, the one day in the year dedicated to romance. No divorces will be granted today."

Dillinger Gangster Hearing Delayed

LIMA, O., Feb. 14.—(AP.)—A defect in the murder indictment against three Dillinger gangsters held in the Allen County Jail today caused a postponement of their scheduled arraignment until tomorrow.

The three men, Harry Pierpont, Charles Makley and Russell Clark, are charged with murdering Sheriff Jess L. Sarber last October 12.

'Baby' Dies, 3 in Family End Lives, 4th Fails

International News Service.

FORT WAYNE, Ind., Feb. 14.—Reunited in death today by a weird suicide pact were Kenneth L. Larwill, prominent attorney, his wife and their two daughters.

Only one member of the family survived after it was agreed at a family conference that the death of 9-year-old Florence Larwill left "nothing to live for." The lone survivor was Louise, 27. Although she had signed the death pact she was saved by falling from a chair in the gas-filled room at their home.

Police broke into the Larwill home and found the bodies of the 54-year-old attorney, his wife, Mary, 52, and Miss Mary Larwill, 28. Life still remained in the body of the other daughter.

All had been seated in a semi-circle around a gas heater. Beside the husband and father was a note, signed by all four, which read:

"By reason of the death of our little girl, we all decided that we have nothing to live for, so we all went together. Neither one urged the other. We request that our bodies be not displayed and that we all be buried together with Florence."

Death from scarlet fever took Florence only a few hours before.

CAR FIRM GETS ULTIMATUM ON 5-CENT FARE

A five-cent trolley fare or a refusal to renew the Traction Conference Board agreement is the plan advanced by the Democratic bloc in Council in an effort to bring the Pittsburgh Railways Company to terms.

A resolution offered by Councilman Walter R. Demmler is to be considered today in service and surveys committee.

Apparently a receivership for the railways company, often referred to by its executives when lower fares were mentioned, has no terrors for the Democratic Councilmen.

APRIL 2 TIME LIMIT

The resolution states that if reduced fare and improved service is not forthcoming by April 2 the city should refuse to extend the traction agreement. It reads:

"The courts should then be appealed to for the appointment of a liquidating receiver upon the expiration of the present temporary extension."

The Traction Conference Board agreement was made in 1921 for the purpose of taking the railways out of a receivership, making it possible to obtain capital for new equipment, and operating the various lines as a unified system.

On the board, which has much to say about the management of the railways, are two representatives appointed by the Mayor, one named by other municipalities, and one by the company.

APPOINTMENT DELAYED

Appointment of Attorney William E. Schoyer to the traction board in place of W. Edgar Reed, which had been asked by Mayor McNair, has been delayed again, this time at the Mayor's request.

The Mayor, in explaining the delay, said he wanted to learn what the proper procedure is in making the appointment and dismissal. It is generally believed, however, that the strategy of the move is simply to add more force to the threat to refuse to renew the traction agreement.

Demmler's resolution would renew the agreement for one year provided a five cent fare is installed on all one fare routes and sufficient cars are used for comfortable travel in rush hours.

On the meter tax, the Mayor has expressed himself pleased with the result of the meeting of the Democratic City Committee which voted to ask Democratic Councilmen not to pass the bill immediately over the Mayor's veto. The Mayor has until Saturday to sign the ordinance, send it back without his signature or veto it.

KANE PRESENTS LAND TAX BILL

A 10 per cent tax on all land rent when the tenant pays the taxes has been introduced to Council by Councilman John J. Kane.

Kane presented the proposition, originally an idea of Mayor McNair's, yesterday in spite of a previous opinion by City Solicitor C. D. Scully that only ground rents in the legal sense could be taxed.

Kane's bill would comprehend more than the old legal ground rents, additions to which has been discontinued by statute. A definition in the bill defined ground rent to include:

"All monies paid to any landowner for the use of land where the party paying the same is liable for taxes upon said land and said rents are paid to the owner of the land free and clear of all taxes."

Kane recently said he was introducing the bill to allow the Mayor to speak in its behalf.

PLAY LEADERS PROTEST CUT

A series of protests, which brought one young woman to the verge of tears in Council chamber, greeted attempts to cut the city recreatoin budget.

Edith Provert, recreation leader, attacked Recreation Superintendent W. C. Batchelor as being unfamiliar with her work when elimination of one of the four leader's positions was proposed.

Batchelor defended himself by saying he had an inspector to do the work. Councilman Robert Garland came to Miss Provert's defense, stating her courage in appearing had saved her. Miss Provert was barely able to control herself following the exchange with Batchelor.

Several matrons from recreation centers protested against being put on half time.

P. H. Dillman, of the North Side Chamber of Commerce, and George A. Young, of the Twenty-seventh Ward Board of Trade, objected to the North Side recreation set-up under the North Side Playground Association.

Attorney Enters Legislature Race

Attorney Meyer Feldman, University of Pittsburgh law school graduate, has announced his candidacy as a Democrat for the Legislature in the First District.

He will run on a liberal platform, in accord with President Roosevelt's economic and social policies, and in favor of old age pensions, taxation of public utilities' real estate, abolition of all fee offices, unemployment insurance, and other social reform legislation.

County Shakeups To Purge Payroll Of Parasites Set

Impending shakeups in the county departments of highways, bridges and tunnels, with the possibility that it be extended to the property and supplies department, appeared today.

Thomas O. Hasley, director of highways, was notified to prepare a list of what Commissioner Charles C. McGovern called "bosses, straw-bosses, district or divisional lizards or what not."

Commissioner C. M. Barr mentioned the supplies department.

McGovern, in a letter directed to Hasley read at the meeting of the Commissioners yesterday, struck out at loafers, parasites, political workers and tale-bearers who form clicks and waste the county's time and money."

CITES GROWING COSTS

He pointed out that the cost of maintaining county highways was increasing as the roads got older, and that more efficient men must be put to work. He declared it was a moral responsibility on the Commissioners to care for county men who had become slower over long years of service, but there was no responsibility for taking care of incapable men.

Previously, he had said:

"When some of them get on the job, it's like the old soldiers' home—they have to help each other off the trucks."

McGovern's letter stated:

"There is a great deal of pulling, hauling, political intrigue and behind-the-back criticism any time an attempt is made to do anything that will benefit the county. Unless the district foremen and others are kept in close check, they form friendships and cliques and put up barriers to protect favorites in their departments who do nothing or very little except chambermaid around acting as talebearers or servants for the boss."

WILL FIRE 'PARASITES'

When he gets the list, McGovern said, he would make a motion that the undesirable "political parasites" be fired. The board ordered the list made.

More than 10 days ago Commissioner Barr secured a list of the Property and Supplies Department personnel, with a view, it was understood, of weeding out this department. It includes "hangovers" from the Armstrong administration.

JUVENILE HOME FUNDS SOUGHT

The County Commissioners were preparing today to sign and forward to the Public Works Administration in Washington an application for $350,000 to build a new Juvenile Court Detention home.

Their promised action followed a request yesterday from Judge Gustav L. Schramm, of the court, and the board of managers of the home.

On the motion of Commissioner William D. Mansfield, the commissioners voted to ask the Public Works Administration for a 30 per cent gift, the remainder to be a loan, subject to such interest rates and maturity dates as might later be agreed upon.

Limitations concerning the loan were placed in the resolution at the request of Commissioners C. C. McGovern and C. M. Barr. Barr said that if the government asked 5 per cent the county could do better with local bankers, paying 4 per cent.

MACHINES' TEST DELAYED AGAIN

The final test of the county's repaired voting machines has been postponed again—until next Monday, according to reports from Harrisburg.

Richard J. Beamish, secretary of the commonwealth, announced he would not be here before Monday, but last night announced he had sent an official examining board of three.

Commissioner C. C. McGovern said he had talked to Beamish by telephone but he had not mentioned the examiners. Originally, Beamish set February 10.

Meanwhile, the three Commissioners visited the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company's laboratories yesterday to see the machines functioning.

LIGHT CABS CUT RATES, P. S. C. TOLD

Lighter taxicabs operating on a low-fare basis in Cleveland produced a higher net revenue than the heavier, higher-priced cabs in Pittsburgh, according to testimony today in the opening of the hearing before the Public Service Commission.

Daniel Sherby, secretary treasurer of the Zone Cab Corporation, of Cleveland, which seeks a certificate of public convenience to operate cabs here, testified that its net income for 1932 was 13.01 cents per mile against net earnings of 8.9 cents per mile by the Parmelee Transportation Company in Pittsburgh.

OPPOSE PERMIT

Opposing the Cleveland company's effort to place 300 cabs in Pittsburgh at about half the fare of the Yellow and Green cabs were the Parmelee Company and the Pittsburgh Railways Company, parent concern of the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company.

Attorney P. J. Haber for the Cleveland company, said:

"If our application is granted it will mean employment for 600 people in Pittsburgh and will take up the surplus of cab drivers now existing here."

According to Sherby's testimony the Cleveland cab rate is 10 cents for the first half mile and five cents for each additional half mile.

Attorney C. K. Robinson for the Parmelee Company questioned Sherby closely as to the financial structure of his company. His questioning drew fire when he asked about the resignation of Herbert Glassman, of Washington, as president of the Zone Cab Corporation in 1931. Robinson queried:

"Wasn't it because Glassman was convicted in Washington of illicit liquor traffic and was sentenced to prison?"

'TROUBLE' ADMITTED

After objections to the question had been overruled Sherby answered:

"It is true that Glassman got into trouble."

The Parmelee company has informed City Council it will soon operate five lightweight cars as an experiment.

Assistant City Solicitor John J. Kennedy attended the hearing before Commissioner Herman Goldberg as an observer.

CHECK BALLOTS IN VOTE TRIAL

More than 100 voters testified they cast straight Democratic ballots in the election in the Seventh District, Fifteenth Ward, but a federal investigator said today he found only 48 in the ballot box.

The testimony was given at the trial of five officials of the district election board in Federal Court. Nelson Zimmerman, the government investigator, followed a parade of voters to the stand and told what he found in the ballot box.

Besides the 48 straight Democratic ballots, he said, there were 261 straight Republican and eight straight Socialist ballots. Maurice A. Nernberg, handwriting expert, testified more than one person had marked crosses on ballots he examined.

The defendants are Clement Wessell, judge; Mrs. Mary Burns and John W. Stanton, inspectors, and Martin L. McTighe and Mark Stanton, clerks. They are represented by Attorneys E. G. Coll and John R. Frankel.

Fred A. Rolle, of 3925 Riddle street, North Side, is foreman of the jury, and on it are seven men who last week served on juries which returned verdicts of convictions in two election fraud cases.

School Bond Issue Sold by Duquesne

The sale of a $150,000 bond issue was awarded to Halsey-Stewart & Co., of Philadelphia, at a meeting of Duquesne School Board last night. The bonds are being sold under a recent act of the State Assembly, which permits school districts to borrow 80 per cent of the amount of uncollected taxes.

Election of Liberals Advocated by Kane

A change in state government was recommended to obtain relief from high utility rates by Councilman John J. Kane in an address at a meeting of the Board of Trade of the Twelfth District of the Fourteenth Ward, in Swisshelm School, Whipple street. Kane advocated selection of liberal-minded men as Senators and representatives.

Petition Asks Park At Brookline Blvd.

Creation of a city park at the intersection of Brookline boulevard, Queensboro and Chelton avenues, has been asked in a petition sent to Council by more than 450 residents. An ordinance has been introduced for purchase of the Ida A. MaGaffin property at that location for $5,750.

N. S. CITY HALL HELD FIRE TRAP

North Side City Hall, Federal and Ohio streets, was called an extreme fire hazard in a report to Council by George J. Simons, division leader of Civil Works Administration workers.

The result of Simons' inspection has been sent to Council by Safety Director Ralph E. Smith, who has asked that a new three-story building be constructed at a cost of $615,000.

Simons in a letter points out that the present three-story building has no fire escapes and but one stairway, that the North Side fire alarm system is located on the hazardous third floor, and that the interior construction of the building is highly inflammable.

Wiring is in bad condition and a gas-heated boiler is not properly safeguarded, he declared.

NEW ART BOARD CONFIRMED

Mayor McNair's appointments on the Art Commission, including the appointment of M. L. Benedum for W. L. Mellon, have been confirmed unanimously by Council.

By a vote of 6 to 2, Council confirmed Donnell D. Reed as city assessor, replacing William H. Robertson. John J. Kane and John M. Huston voted "no," and declined to comment. Reed was sworn in a short time later by the Mayor.

The Mayor's two suggestions for the City Planning Commission have been referred to the Public Works Committee in Council. They are Frank Vittor to replace S. L. Tone, and Henry Brockman to replace W. C. Rice.

Homestead Schools To Seek CWA Fund

The Homestead School Board will seek $68,000 from the CWA to paint and repair buildings and to improve the high school's athletic field.

Samuel Boot, president of the board, was selected at a meeting last night to see the CWA officials.

MOTOR TRUCKS WELCOME TO GUARDSMEN

Motorization of the 107th Field Artillery, with headquarters at the Hunt Armory, East End, will be welcomed here, officers indicated today.

The War Department ordered the motorization, which will replace almost 100 horses with gasoline engines. New equipment is expected in the late spring or summer.

Meantime, if they don't know already, guardsmen are going to learn to tinker with carburetors and how to change tires. For their familiar curry combs they are going to substitute a bottle of lacquer polish.

ATTEND DEMONSTRATION

Col. Eric Fisher Wood commands the 107th. With other National Guard officers, he was a member of a Pennsylvania contingent who watched a demonstration of a motorized test battery at Fort Bragg, N. C., a year ago.

Strategical advantages of the motorized unit are so great, Col. Wood says in their report to Brig. Gen. William S. McLean, Jr., that it was the general conclusion that motor adoption in the near future by most, or all, of our light field artillery seems inevitable.

His report points out that any recruit who can drive a car or truck can be a driver, and fewer drivers are needed. Big motor companies could equip all the United States light field artillery with motors in 30 days as against the time it would take to obtain 40 to 50 thousand horses, train, and harness them.

BIG SAVING SEEN

A motorized battery, the report emphasizes, requires about 150 pounds of gasoline and oil to march 25 miles. A horse drawn battery would require nearly two tons of hay and oats per day, whether marching or not.

Trucks, instead of horses, are not going to outmode polo for the 107th, however. Officers explain that many of the polo ponies are privately owned, and that the organization will probably buy enough others from its own funds to continue the sport.

Clock, Bell Tower Planned by Tech Students

Plans for a student bell tower are almost complete, Charles F. Slater, student of architecture at Carnegie Tech, announced today.

A proposal to build the tower, to house a clock and bell, originated with students in the Tech student council several weeks ago. Students would do all the work, including the construction of the clock, as part of their training in various trades and sciences.

A committee of trustees and student leaders will attempt to raise money for the needed materials. The first site suggested for the tower on the Tech campus, the "cut" behind the senior fence, has been ruled out because it is filled ground. The committee is looking for another site.

'BULLET' TRAIN PASSES CITY

Although its formal appearance here is not scheduled until Monday, the Union Pacific new streamlined aluminum train slipped through Pittsburgh on its way to Washington over the B. & O. today. It will return via the Pennsylvania and be on view at the Union Station Monday.

A fresh train crew and official delegation boarded the train at its Glenwood stop. An oil company greased the wheel bearings and rolled another can of lubricating oil on board.

Although the train is capable of 120 miles an hour, the crew had orders to hold speed down to the B. & O. limits, 60 miles an hour.

SALES TAX TALK FOR WOMEN VOTERS' CLUB

Maj. E. Lowry Humes, former United States Attorney, will discuss the proposed manufacturers' sales tax before a meeting of the Friday Morning Club in Carnegie Music Hall, Friday at 10:15 a. m.

The Friday Morning Club is one of the activities of the Allegheny County League of Women Voters. The club's interest in current events leads it to hear a discussion of the proposed manufacturer's sale tax on a program on which Dame Rachel Crowdy, foremost official of the League of Nations secretariat in the administration of its various social activities, is also scheduled to speak.

Dame Rachel Crowdy began her international service in France with the volunteer aid detachment and in 1921 became head of the social questions and opium traffic section of the League of Nations, a position she has held ever since.

Maj. Humes, widely known throughout the Pittsburgh district, has given considerable study to the sales tax question. He has declared that it holds the adequate solution of America's vexatious taxation problems.

Teachers, Trade, Social Groups Join Movement

Five more organizations today joined the ranks of civic, industrial and educational groups in Pittsburgh and Allegheny County in advvocating a manufacturers' sales tax to replace the income tax.

Prominent among today's advocates of sales tax legislation is the board of directors of the Pittsburgh Teachers' Association. Esther M. Smith, president, signed a resolution advocating enactment by Congress of a national manufacturers' sales tax as a substitute for the present federal income tax for two reasons:

"First, an income tax discourages industrial and commercial enterprise, lessens employment of labor and thereby reduces payrolls and purchasing power.

"Second, that as against an income tax a manufacturers' sales tax, as has been adequately demonstrated in other countries, will produce a larger national revenue with a minimum of disturbance to the economic structure of the nation and without interference with individual welfare and convenience; that such a tax, while producing a greater revenue, would be less expensive to administer and more equitable in its incidence."

GROCERS' HEAD APPROVES

Charles Wolff, president of the Retail Grocers Association of Allegheny County, today signed a similar resolution, expressing approval of sales tax legislation for his group. Similar action was taken by the North Side Chamber of Commerce, and a like resolution approved and signed for the group by F. E. Tencate, president.

Two women's clubs in Allegheny County, at meetings yesterday, discussed the advantages of a sales tax and expressed approval by adopting resolutions comparable to those signed by the above organizations. Mrs. H. A. Doverspike, president of the Homewood Woman's Club, reports indorsement by her group, and Mrs. E. H. Broden, president of the Edgewood Cot Club, at the direction of her group, signed a similar resolution.

Both clubs contemplate sending telegrams to Congress, urging enactment of a national manufacturers' sales tax as a substitute for the present federal income tax, Mrs. Doverspike and Mrs. Broden said.

American Opposition To Sales Tax Puzzles Canada; Popular There

(This is the third and concluding article of a brief series dealing with the advantages Canada has experienced since incorporating the sales tax into its fiscal policy.)

By M. GRATTAN O'LEARY,
Canadian Writer of Economics.

OTTAWA, Feb. 14.—Canadian industrialists and government officials express inability to understand the opposition which exists in the United States to the adoption of a manufacturers sales tax.

It is pointed out here that although the Canadian income tax is constantly attacked, there is practically no opposition to the sales tax.

The Canadian Manufacturers Association, representing the chief industries of the country, has never opposed this tax. Neither is there any record in recent years of any protest against it on the part of organized labor, business men or consumers.

BOOSTS TAX YIELD

Significantly, too, the sales tax has never been an object of debate or controversy between the various political parties. Adopted in 1920 by a union or coalition government, which included representatives of farmers, liberals and conservatives, the tax was continued by the Conservative governments of Sir Robert Borden and Arthur Meighen. It was maintained by the Liberal government of Mackenzie King, and was strengthened and made more permanent by the present Conservative government of Mr. Bennett.

No political group or party, whether in Parliament or out of it, has ever suggested the abolition of the sales tax. Judging from existing conditions, no such suggestion is likely to be made. The tax is as much a part of the country's fiscal system as the income tax or the tariff.

An admirable feature of the sales tax as it has been worked out in Canada is that it stands up well under advserse conditions. Thus while the income tax declined from 71 million dollars in 1931 to 61 million in 1932, the sales tax increased from 20 million dollars in 1931 to 42 million in 1932. This year the advance will be to 62 million dollars.

This, considering that Canada's population is but 10 millions, and that footstuffs are largely exempted from the tax, is regarded as an extraordinarily fine yield. In a year of normal prosperity the sales ax would undoubtedly bring well over 100 million dollars.

COLLECTED CHEAPLY

Another satisfactory feature of the sales tax is that it is easy to collect and is collected cheaply. Officials of the Department of National Revenue estimate that its collection costs less than 2 per cent, which is lower than the average for the collection of all revenue. Furthermore, while the Department of National Revenue is frequently compelled to resort to the courts in the collection of income tax, the past year has not seen a single court action over the sales tax.

Finally, the sales tax is not felt by the public. What it adds to the cost of a pair of shoes or a suit of clothes is so trifling that there is no apparent difference in the price.

The public is unaware from day to day that the tax exists. Canadian consumers learn of the tax only through the returns in the revenue statements of the public accounts.

This probably explains why the sales tax is as popular in Canada as it is possible for a tax of any kind to be—no matter what its character is.

HOUSE TO VOTE TAX BILL ON 'GAG' RULE

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—The House today voted to consider the new $258,000,000 tax revision bill under "gag" rule, which assures final passage of the bill virtually as presented by the Ways and Means Committee.

Despite taunts from the Republican side, the heavily-Democratic House adopted the special rule which permits only the Ways and Means Committee to offer amendments to the bill.

Although the House will debate the bill for 16 hours, its only chance to change it will be in a motion to recommit the bill.

Backers of a manufacturers' sales tax hoped to obtain the right to make the motion to recommit and thus place the House squarely on record.

Under a proposal of Representative Crowther (Rep.), of New York, a general manufacturers' sales tax would be substituted for $350,000,000 selected sales taxes which, he contends, bear heavily on a few industries.

His proposal would also repeal "nuisance" taxes which, he says, bear heavily upon the poorest people in the nation.

Advocates of a provision denying present surtax advantages to the eight community proper states of the West and South, publicity of income tax returns, and abolition of tax-exempt securities also were seeking the right to make the recommittal motion.

MEYER IN AIR TALK ON TAX

Continuing discussions on the radio of the proposed manufacturers' sales tax to replace the income tax, sponsored by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and other Hearst newspapers in the United States, John D. Meyer, former United States attorney, will speak tonight from Station WCAE at 6:20 p. m.

On Thursday, Andrew H. Blass, business consultant, editor of Modern Finance, a Pittsburgh financial magazine, will discuss the proposed legislation from Station WCAE. Mr. Blass is founder and former president of the Pittsburgh School of Accountancy and former secretary-treasurer of the Pittsburgh Chapter, National Association of Cost Accountants.

William E. Armstrong, president of the Allegheny County Association of Township Commissioners, was interviewed by Louis L. Kaufman, Sun-Telegraph globetrotter, on the sales tax yesterday.

In his interview Mr. Armstrong, who was the first president of the State Association of Township Commissioners, pointed out that the income tax has failed of the duty set for it and urged the enactment of a manufacturers' sales tax. He said:

"The manufacturers' sales tax plays no favorites. Persons of small incomes will not be penalized. It is planned to exempt food, clothing and medicine from taxation."

Braddock Policemen Accused of Beating

Two Braddock policemen are under bond today charged with beating and kicking a prisoner. Information was made before Justice of the Peace George H. House by Edward Kress, of 25 Moody street, Braddock, last night.

He charged that while he and his uncle, Joseph Naphtew, of New Castle, O., were standing on a Braddock street corner, Patrolmen Phillip Cognito and Thomas Frain handcuffed them and would give no reason for their arrest.

At the police station, he charged, he protested and one of the policemen knocked him unconscious with a blackjack, threw him in a cell and then kicked his face, knocking out four teeth.

TREASURE HUNT BOAT LOST

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Four of seven men who reached Havana yesterday after being rescued from the wrecked auxiliary schooner Pieces of Eight off the coast of Cuba, were Philadelphians seeking buried treasure.

The wreck Sunday left the four and their friends stranded in Havana, their treasure ship lost, and with it the map they expected to lead them to buried wealth.

In addition, $5,000 in cash which they took with them was at the bottom of the sea.

The four are Richard W. Peters, of Merion; B. Warren Davis, of Springhouse; Edward W. Shober, of Haverford, and S. K. Reeves, Jr., of St. Davids. With them was H. C. Farrington, of Philadelphia, captain of the vessel.

The vessel struck a reef while the party was fishing off the north coast of Pinar Del Rio province.

Rockefeller Wins Tax Dispute Suit

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Feb. 14.—(INS.)—Supreme Court Justice Frederick P. Close today had directed the village of North Tarrytown to return to John D. Rockefeller, Jr., $21,249 paid as taxes in 1927, 1928 and 1929 on property which Rockefeller asserted was not in North Tarrytown.

The taxes were paid on a gymnasium appraised at $300,000 and one-third of a dwelling appraised at $32,000. The village ruled that one-third of the building was within the village limits.

PINCHOT URGES DEFENSE; RADIO DRIVE OPENS

An intensive radio campaign in observance of National Defense Week, the aifs and factors of which were commended by Gov. Pinchot in a statement, opened with three broadcosts in the Pittsburgh area today.

Scheduled to make the broadcasts on KDKA, WJAS and KQV at 8:25 a. m., 4:45 p. m. and 4 p. m. respectively, were Capt. James O. Corbett, Lieut. Col. Andrew B. Berger and Capt. Robert Mellin. Brief talks also will be given over WCAE and WWSW during the week.

In addition to the radio campaign, an exhibition will be staged in the city's armories by several units of the National Guard and a number of Reserve Officers' meetings and conferences will be held as a part of Pittsburgh's Defense Week program. The Reserve Officers' Association, which opened the local observance with a military ball and dinner Saturday night, will meet tomorrow night, it was announced.

Commenting on the observance, Robert Garland, president of City Council, said:

"I believe that our city and its environs are of such great importance to the military establishment as to merit the expending of any necessary sum of money to properly protect the plants and people of our great city and county in the event of war."

In his statement Gov. Pinchot declared:

"The first great President Roosevelt said, 'if I must choose between righteousness and peace, I choose righteousness.'

"The second great President Roosevelt has never forgotten the right and the duty of the American people to be prepared for National Defense.

"But neither the first nor the second has overlooked our national obligation to lead and support the great world movement for international peace.

"I agree with these two leaders. I have always stood for adequate preparedness. War is the curse of mankind. We must neither invite nor provoke it.

"Goodwill between neighbors is the stronghold of peace."

SHEPPARD ASKS ADEQUATE ARMY

By SENATOR MORRIS SHEPPARD

Chairman, Senate Military Affairs Committee

(Written Expressly for the Hearst Newspapers.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—The foundation of our defensive structure is the Regular Army.

The Regular Army should be able at all times to furnish any troops required by internal emergencies and initial defense against surprise attack.

The civilian components depend upon it for instruction, leadership, and technical progress, while in case of general mobilization it is the model and directing head for all.

The national defense act provided that it should comprise approximately 18,000 officers and 280,000 men.

During the decade just past this strength has, in the interests of immediate economy, been progressively reduced until present appropriations are on the basis of 1[illegible]000 officers and 125,165 enlisted men, including the Philippine scout contingent of 6,415, the scouts being available for duty only in the Philippine Islands.

Any continuing tendency to cut further into this already weakened backbone of our military skeleton must be viewed with great concern by all citizens.

PREPAREDNESS URGED BY VET

Graphic, uncensored World War pictures being published by the Sun-Telegraph as its contribution to a nation-wide fight for national defense and preparedness have elicited comments from numerous celebrated men.

Today the Sun-Telegraph prints a letter from Charleroi, written by a man without title or prominence, which sums up the purpose of the pictures' publication no less effectively. He concludes:

"I'm just trying to do my part to prevent another war."

The writer formerly was with the 6th Engineers, 3rd Division, A. E. F., and asks that his name be withheld. He says:

"If we are to profit by the experience in the last war, we must talk peace, preparedness, and teach the lessons we have so dearly bought.

"The remarkable pictures your paper is publishing is doing this very thing."

CLASH OVER SUICIDE NOTE BRINGS CONTRADICTION IN SOLES TRIAL

you thought it was possible for her to write the note, and didn't you answer yes? Didn't you say, 'She impressed me as being very game?'"

The surgeon replied:

"Yes."

"Haven't you changed your mind a little now?"

"Yes."

Judge Patterson took a hand in the confused questioning by asking flatly whether LaRoux was in condition to write the note.

Dr. Heisey replied she "could have."

FRIEND IN COURT

Listening intently to the wrangle was attractive Rose Hardy, good friend of Soles, who may be called later today to testify against him.

She will be questioned about the jewels detectives say Soles gave her—his wife's jewels!

She will be questioned about Soles' visit to her the night of his wife's death. And a telephone call he made to her while his wife lay dying.

She will be questioned generally, according to Prosecutor Haggerty, about her relations with the accused Soles before and after the death of his wife, LaRoux, who Soles claims shot herself with his heavy Army service revolver.

Mrs. Hardy is the "girl friend the case," Haggerty contends. She made her first appearance in court yesterday after hiding since the reopening of the Soles case.

Escorted by County Detective James O'Brien, she moved quietly through the crowded corridors into the trial room, taking a chair not far from the defendant. She glared straight ahead, defiantly. She stole covert glances towards Soles, but he was looking either out of the window into space or at the witness chair. Not once did their glances meet.

DESCRIBES WOUND

Dr. Heisey testified he was called to the Soles home by Dr. S. S. Jordan, the attending physician, about 3:30 on the morning of the shooting. He described in detail the fatal wound, which he said, was located in the left side just below the heart. What appeared to be powder burns were found around the wound, he testified. The bullet, Dr. Heisey testified, went through the body, leaving a hole in the back about the same level as the place where it entered.

Soles, himself, found the note, Dr. Heisey testified, and turned it over to him. The note, admitted in evidence, as a commonwealth exhibit, read:

"Dearest Bob: Please forgive me for this, but my health is so poor I am no good to myself or anyone else. All my love, LaRoux."

Dr. Heisey testified to making a search for the gun.

SEARCH FOR GUN

Prosecutor Haggerty questioned:

"Did you look in the room for anything"

The doctor replied:

"Yes, the gun."

"Did you find it?"

"No."

"Where did you look?"

"On the floor, under both beds and all around."

The physician testified that later, at the hospital, he was informed the gun had been found by Soles—in a locked grip in the hall outside the bedroom. He identified the formidable looking weapon handed to him on the witness stand by Prosecutor Haggerty as "that gun."

Previous to the calling of Dr. Heisey, James L. Davidson, chief clerk to the Coroner, was called to introduce into evidence the note, the gun, five loaded shells and one empty shell. He followed Dr. S. S. Jordan, the first physician called to the Soles home, on the stand.

Dr. Jordan testified that when he asked Soles' wife what had happened, she replied:

"I've become sickly and melancholy and couldn't help myself, so I shot myself."

Haggerty asked:

"Would she be physically able to write that suicide note?"

The physician replied:

"If somebody held her up she might be able to write it."

On cross-examination Attorney Eaton sought to wring an admission from Dr. Jordan that a person wounded as badly as Mrs. Soles could not have written the note.

Eaton asked:

"Wouldn't you expect to find something different?"

Dr. Jordan repeated:

"She could write a note."

EMPTY CARTRIDGE

The physician also testified that Mrs. Soles told her husband where to look for the empty cartridge shell. He said Soles asked his wife:

"LaRoux, do you know anything about it?"

He said she replied:

"'It's either on the floor or the foot of the bed.'"

It was found on the floor at the foot of the bed, Dr. Jordan said.

Mrs. Iva Johnson, Negro maid in the Soles home, was called just before the noon recess. She identified various articles of clothing warn by La Roux on the night she was shot and testified she wasahed bloodstains from a flimsy silk kimono worn by her mistress.

She said she washed the garment because she "go ttired" walking past the pile of dirty clothes in the basement several months after the shooting. She said blood had been on the kimono.

Haggerty asked:

"What else did you wash?"

She replied:

"A blanket, two sheets, the matress paaid and the mattress cover."

"Did Mr. Soles tell you to wash the kimono?"

"He told me not to wash it."

STAINED MATTRESS

County Detective Peter Connors preceded the maid on the stand. He identified the various articles of clothing as having been obtained at the Soles home, also a heavy mattress, which he testified, was taken from the bed on which Soles told him his wife lay on the night of the shooting. A large bloodstain showed on the mattress.

Connors also told of finding various bullets in the Soles home. He identified four bullets—one .38 caliber and three 45-caliber slugs—he said Soles himself turned over to him. Another slug, a .38-caliber said to be the death bullet, Connors testified he found beneath the floor, directly under the broken mirror on the dining room side.

Connors explained that he found two partitions between the wall of the bedroom closet and the dining room wall. The .38-caliber slug, he testified, passed through both partitions, struck the wall behind a mirror in the dining room which was broken, and fell down beneath the floor above the basement.

BULKY EXHIBIT

Two county detectives trundled the bulky mattress into the courtroom while Connors was on the

SOLES MURDER CASE UNFOLDS IN COURT TESTIMONY

Following is the story of the Soles murder trial told in quotations from court testimony today:

When Dr. W. C. Heisey, the McKeesport surgeon, returned to the stand, Defense Attorney Oliver K. Eaton obtained a correction in the court reporter's transcript of yesterday's testimony in relation to the so-called suicide note. His testimony was changed to read correctly—that he said Mrs. Soles could have written "a note," not specifically the note in question.

Haggerty then produced the "suicide" note, which Dr. Heisey examined. And the doctor testified:

"The letters are perfect and the lines are straight . . . I am unable to say whether she did or did not (write the note)."

Dr. Heisey was then given the hospital records of Mrs. Soles' case to examine.

Eaton—You found Mrs. Soles suffering severe pains and difficult respiration?

Dr. Heisey—Yes.

Q.—Now I want to know, doctor, the difficulty of handwriting under such circumstances. Wouldn't you expect the hand to shake, expect some jerkiness, some pause for breathing?

A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Now look at that note and see if you can find any.

A.—I am not able to detect any.

TALK WITH MRS. SOLES

Q.—What was the conversation you had with Mrs. Soles before she was taken to the hospital?

A.—I asked her three questions. I asked her what had happened and she told me she shot herself. I asked her if it was an accident and she said, "No, I did it with the intention of killing myself." I asked her what time it had happened and she replied, "Some time after midnight."

Q.—How did the suffering manifest itself?

A.—By the severe pain, by the difficulty in respiration.

Q.—Was there blood around her slip?

A.—I couldn't say.

Eaton then demanded that Prosecutor Haggerty produce the slip reputedly worn by Mrs. Soles when she was shot.

Haggerty—I don't know what slip you're talking about.

Eaton—The slip worn by Mrs. Soles when she was in the hospital.

Haggerty — The District Attorney will try this case in the conventional way, and if we have the slip we will produce it when necessary.

Judge Patterson then ruled that Haggerty could do just that.

POWDER MARKS

Eaton — Dr. Heisey, from the hospital report will you read whether powder marks——

Haggerty—I object to the doctor reading anything from that report unless he put it there.

Judge Patterson — Objection sustained.

Eaton managed to find Dr. Heisey's signature to a statement in the report indicating powder burns were found on the slip. Eaton asked for a private side-bar conference.

Haggerty — I don't want a side-bar on the records. Let him make it openly.

But Judge Patterson called Haggerty to the confab.

The trial resumed with Eaton cross examining Dr. Heisey.

Q.—You saw Soles at home. Had he been drinking?

A.—Yes. He impressed me as though he had been drinking.

Q.—To what extent?

A.—He could not pronounce words, he swayed in his walk, there was no co-ordination of thought.

Haggerty then took the witness.

Q.—You testified you looked for the gun.

A.—I was finished with my examination of the patient and Dr. Jordan told me there was no gun.

Q.—At the hospital did you know anything of the injury to the diaphragm?

A.—No.

Q.—Is it true that you did not know of this until you read Dr. McMeans' (Coroner's physician) report?

A.—Yes.

Haggerty—Your Honor, at this point I wish to plead surprise.

Judge Patterson granted the plea, which gave Haggerty the right to cross examine his own witness.

Q.—On Friday didn't you talk to me and didn't I ask you whether you thought it was possible for her to write the note and didn't you answer yes? Didn't you say, "She impressed me as being very game?"

A.—Yes.

Q.—Haven't you changed your mind a little now?

A.—Yes.

Q.—On cross-examination you replied you did not think she could have written the note?

Judge Patterson then interrupted to ask:

Q.—Was she in condition to write the note?

A.—She could have written it.

Haggerty—Are you satisfied now the injury to the diaphram made no difference.

A.—Yes. It made no difference. The difficulty in breathing was caused by the injury to the lung.

Detective Peter Connors then went on the stand to identify the slip worn by LaRoux, a coolie coat and red mules worn in her home that night.

Connors testified that the mules and coolie coat were turned over to him by Soles' Negro maid, Ivy Johnson, and that Soles himself handed over LaRoux' slip.

HEISEY BACK ON STAND

Dr. Heisey returned to the stand to be questioned by Eaton.

Q.—Could Mrs. Soles in her condition have written that note in the form in which you see it?

A.—In my opinion this note evidences no tremor. I would think she did not write this note (after she was shot).

Haggerty jumped up to ask:

Q.—You say you didn't arrive at the house until three hours after Mrs. Soles was shot. Would her condition be the same three hours later, when you examined her?

A.—I couldn't say . . . I am under the impression she wrote the note before she was shot.

Q.—Do you think she was physically able to write the note (after being shot)?

A.—I think not.

Q.—She lived about 48 hours, didn't she?

A.—It was about 36 hours.

Q.—Would that affect your opinion as to whether she could write the note?

CONFUSED BY QUERY

A.—I don't understand the question.

Q.—I mean, would her condition get worse of better during the 36 hours?

A.—Worse.

Q.—Doctor, what's changed your opinion since you talked to me Friday? . . . What's changed your opinion about the note?

A.—Probably I didn't understand one of the questions.

A.—Yes.

Q.—Which answer was correct?

A.—What I told the judge (that LaRoux could have written the note.)

Q.—Did Mrs. Soles lose much blood?

A.—About a pint and a quart.

Q.—In 36 hours?

A.—Yes.

BULLETS FROM HOME

Detective Conners was called to identify bullets, clothing and bedding taken from the Soles home. Haggerty took the witness on direct examination.

Q.—I believe you got a couple of bullets at the Soles home, too.

A.—That's right.

He produced the bullets, one a .45-caliber and the other a .38. He holds one up, saying:

"This here is a .45-caliber slug. It was found under the floor at the Soles home by a man employed there."

He emptied an envelope containing three more .45-caliber bullets, saying:

"These were turned over to me by Soles."

Q.—What did he say to you at the time?

A.—He said they fitted the hole in the wall. There was another turned over to me by Soles, too. It was a .38.

Q.—I was going to ask about that later. Who has that bullet now?

A.—Mr. Davidson, in the Coroner's office.

Q.—How many bullets did Soles turn over to you all together?

A.—Four. There was one .38 and three .45's.

Q.—Then you found another bullet yourself?

A.—I did.

Q.—What was that bullet?

A.—It was a .38.

Q.—Where did you find it?

A.—Between the partitions between the walls of the bedroom and the dining room.

At this point Connors went into a detailed explanation of the construction of the Soles home. He testified that a partition divided the walls between the two rooms. The .45-caliber bullet found by an employe in the home, he declared, was found on the bedroom side of the partition. Connors said he found the .38-bullet on the other side, nearest the dining room.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

Eaton began his cross-examination.

Q.—Who found that partition? (His question concerned a peculiar type of construction in the wall.)

A.—Frank Soles (brother of the defendant).

Q.—Then he found it and did he call the District Attorney's office about it?

A.—He did.

Q.—Then you went out there to investigate?

A.—I did.

Q.—And you found the bullet?

A.—I did.

Q.—Then I'm to understand the .38 caliber bullet you found went through the bedroom closet wall, through the partition dividing the walls and struck the dining room wall, breaking a mirror on the other side and then dropped down underneath the floor?

A.—That's right.

Q.—And you got it in the basement?

A.—Yes, I had to bore up through the floor with an auger and reach through the hole.

Q.—And where was that bullet in reference to the holes in the wall and partition above?

A.—Directly below them.

Mrs. Iva Johnson, Negro maid in the Soles home, was called. Haggerty questioned.

Q.—Are these the clothes you turned over to Detective Connors?

A.—Yes, sir, they are.

Q.—Is this kimono part of them?

A.—It is.

Q.—Didn't you wash this kimono?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Why?

A.—Why, it was lying around in the basement so long and I got tired passing a bunch of dirty clothes all the time.

Q.—Was there blood on this kimono?

A.—There was.

Q.—Where was it?

A.—Around the hole (pointing to hole in kimono left by bullet).

Q.—You know for sure that Mrs. Soles wore this the night of the alleged accident?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Who told you to wash it? Soles?

A.—He told me not to.

SLIP DISPLAYED

Q.—Have you ever seen this slip before? (Haggerty held up a torn and blood-stained garment.)

A.—Yes, it was Mrs. Soles.

Q.—What else did you wash?

A.—A blanket, two sheets, a mattress pad and the mattress cover.

Q.—Where is the mattress cover now?

A.—In the little cupboard in the closet in the bedroom, right up on top of the linen things.

Q.—Is this the mattress that was on the bed Mrs. Soles was lying in?

A.—Yes, it's the same.

Q.—Was that stain on the mattress all the time?

A.—No, just after Mrs. Soles died. It has never been cleaned.

Q.—Where was the stain on the mattress pad?

A.—It's still on.

Q.—Is this it?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Do you always go home from work at night?

A.—Yes.

LEFT AT 5 O'CLOCK

Q.—What time did you go home on the night in question?

A.—Around 5 o'clock in the evening.

Q.—What time did you come the next morning?

A.—Somewhere around 9 o'clock.

Q.—When did you first learn about the shooting?

A.—Mr. Soles told me.

Q.—What happened when you came in in the morning?

A.—When I came in Mr. Lynch and a doctor was just coming down the steps. I noticed the glass was shattered in the buffet. By this time Mr. Lynch was downstairs and he said, "Iva, Mrs. Soles is in the hospital." I was much excited and I asked what hapened. He never said a word, but just walked out.

Q.—Then when did you learn what happened.

A.—Later.

Q.—Who did you serve for dinner in the Soles home the Sunday before the shooting.

A.—Mr. and Mrs. Soles and Mr. Lynch.

Court recessed for lunch at this point.

When the maid returned to the stand this afternoon, Eaton sought to prove his contention that there were others in the Soles house besides Mrs. Soles and her husband and father some hours before the shooting.

TOLD OF SHOOTING

Iva testified that there were more dishes to be washed than would appear necessary for three persons.

Q.—What did Lynch say to you the next morning (after the shooting)?

A.—He said, "There's been an accident and Mrs. Soles is in the hospital."

Haggerty—What became of the drapes (through which the fatal bullet ripped)?

A.—I sent them to the cleaner.

Haggerty—Where are they now?

A.—In possession of Mr. Eaton.

Eaton (to Haggerty)—Do you want them? We'll produce them any time.

Haggerty (to the witness)—Why wasn't the slip (presumably worn by Mrs. Soles when she was shot) with the rest of the dirty clothes in that bunch in the cellar?

A.—I don't know.

Q.—You don't know where the slip was all these months?

Monday and yesterday the Judge could barely speak. He was compelled to leave the bench and charge the jurors while standing close to their box.

When Kidney Trouble Causes You To Get Up Nights

When Bladder Is Irritated When Passage Is Difficult When Backache Bothers

Flush Poisonous Waste and Acid From Kidneys

If you aren't feeling just right—are nervous—have dizzy spells and occasional backache—study your kidneys and learn more about yourself.

Through the delicate filters of the kidneys, acid and poisonous waste are drawn from the blood and discharged from the body thru the bladder—sometimes these filters become clogged with poisonous waste and kidneys do not function properly—they need a good cleaning.

One reliable medicine, highly efficient and inexpensive is GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules—you can't go wrong on this grand medicine for it has been helping people for 50 years—to correct their aches and pains and to banish uric acid conditions, the aggravation of sciatica, neuritis, neuralgia, lumbago and rheumatism.

So if you have such symptoms of Kidney trouble as backache, nervousness, getting up two or three times during the night—scanty, burning or smarting passage—leg cramps—moist palms or puffy eyes, get a 35-cent package of this grand diuretic at any modern drug store—it starts the first day on its errand of helpfulness.

But be sure it's GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules—the original—the genuine—right from Haarlem in Holland.

IF you would share in the secret of those suave juleps and highballs served by Southern gentlemen . . . If you would start upon an equal footing with them, by possessing that mellow Southern blend preferred by them for generations . . . "

SUICIDE NOTE BATTLE IN SOLES TRIAL

stand. Prosecutor Haggerty tugged and pulled the bedding into position before the jury box. He asked Connors to point out which end lay at the head of the bed and then, pointing to the soiled portion, asked:

"What's that mark?"

"That's where Soles said his wife was lying."

When Eaton took the witness for cross examination, Connors carefully avoided making a positive assertion that the stain was blood. He explained:

"I think it is."

There were no holes in either the mattress or the pad which covered it.

Harry L. Ross, assistant county detective in charge of photography, also was a witness. He identified pictures of the Soles home.

Second witness of the afternoon session was James L. Davidson, assistant to the Coroner, who testified that the .38-caliber bullet found between partitions of the Soles home had been fired from Soles' Army pistol. He explained that he had arrived at this conclusion by firing a second shot from the gun and finding the lines on both bullets the same. He produced pictures to bear out this conclusion.

Neither side had disputed from which gun the shot was fired. They disagree on who pulled the trigger.

Davidson followed Mrs. Johnson on the stand.

Mrs. Soles' father, Harry B. Lynch, occupied the witness stand most of yesterday. Soft-spoken and hesitant, he raised his voice only once during a gruelling cross-examination by Attorney Eaton. It was his son-in-law's counsel who aroused his ire with an intimation that he had struck his daughter and knocked her to the floor.

FATHER AROUSED

Twice Eaton asked the question:

"Didn't you knock your daughter down?"

The first time Lynch replied:

"No, and it's not necessary for me to answer that."

The next time he shot back:

"No, I did not."

The insinuation came during cross-examination of Soles' father-in-law concerning a certain turbulent night in April, last year, when a scene occurred which the defense maintains had much to do with what happened subsequently on the night Mrs. Soles was shot.

La Roux' father testified that his daughter came to him with a letter, a mysterious missive from Florida, the contents of which have not been divulged, and handed it to him.

WEEPS OVER LETTER

After handing him the letter, he testified, LaRoux threw herself on the floor and began to cry. There, the father-in-law testified, Soles found her when he came into the room a few minutes later.

Eaton asked:

"What did you do; just sit in the chair?"

Lynch answered:

"Yes."

Haggerty took the witness at this point for more direct examination. He asked Lynch whether his daughter told him why she was afraid to go on a trip to Europe with Soles shortly before her death. He said she told him she didn't know what might become of her if she went with him to France, because he had been drinking so heavily.

Haggerty asked:

"Did she tell you anything else?"

The old man's eyes filled with tears as he answered brokenly:

"She—told me: 'Bob—loves me—and—I—love Bob'."

SCIENCE ESSAY TO WIN PRIZE

The prize award for the best chemistry essay submitted by a high school student will be made Saturday morning when Duquesne University sponsors its second annual conference for teachers of science in the Catholic high schools. Sidelights of Soles Trial

Robert S. Soles looked often through the courtroom window at the cold, gray sky outside as his trial proceeded yesterday. Consistently he eyed the ceiling of the room, apparently bored while his father-in-law, Harry B. Lynch, was testifying.

Chewing gum came into its own. Prosecutor John Haggerty came in late from a five-minute recess in the afternoon chewing it. Five minutes later County Detective Peter Connors, seated at Haggerty's right, was chewing some, too.

Abandoning his attitude of boredom for a moment, Soles strred to action and craned his neck to watch proceedings when Dr. W. C. Heisey, of the McKeesport Hospital staff, pointed out on Prosecutor Haggerty, at Haggerty's request, the approximate point of entrance and direction of the fatal bullet through Mrs. Soles' body.

"Lou" Soles, brother of the defendant, arrived at the courtroom during the morning session, after flying from the West Coast, where he has been located for a number of months. He arrived at the Municipal Airport at about 8:30 yesterday morning.

Late in the afternoon, after hours of arduous listening to testimony, the courtroom crowd became restless. Judge Frank P. Patterson rose and paced behind the bench, stretching his legs. And rumor of night sessions persists.

Young and attractive is the new juror No. 7, chosen to replace Mrs. Caroline Benson, of 1911 Wylie avenue, whose brother died in a fire which partially destroyed the Benson home. She is Mrs. Lorrene Winter, of Allison Park, the mother of two children.

Pale as a result of a recent illness, Mrs. Rose Hardy, comely friend of Soles, sat listening intently throughout yesterday's proceedings beside Miss Anne Free, close friend of both the Soleses and Mrs. Hardy. She wore a black fur coat over a black silk crepe dress with a demure-looking white crepe collar and a black fabric hat.

A surprising resemblance to Mayor McNair is presented in Juror No. 6, even to the curling lock of hair that won't stay put. But he isn't as tall as the Mayor . . . and he didn't have an apple.

Crowds, drawn from all parts of the county by the trial, surged about the corridors outside of Courtroom No. 6 throughout the day. Several times the mass, congregating at the courtroom door, rushed on the entrance, but were repelled by officers. All seats in the room were occupied and more than a score of persons stood in the rear.

Accused of creating a disturbance in the corridor, F. P. Golden, 58, of Pine Creek, was fined $10 or 10 days in jail by Magistrate Howard B. McNutt in Central Police Court today. Capt. N. R. Rucker, of the county police, testified Golden was a frequent visitor to murder trials and caused trouble yesterday while the police had their hands full handling the crowds.

Man Beaten by Thugs Taken to Hospital

Attacked by three men at Lincoln avenue and Meadow street early today, W. C. Kopp, 34, of 280 Hansel street, was taken to Pittsburgh Hospital with a cut below the left eye after his assailants had robbed him of 50 cents and three car tokens.

One of the men, Kopp told police, struck him in the face with his fist and broke his glasses.

Ladies Aid Gives Benefit for Hospital

"Old Maids Remade," a two-act comedy, was presented to the people of McKees Rocks and Stowe Township last night in the Stowe High School auditorium under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Ohio Valley General Hospital. The play, under the direction of Mrs. Gale F. Stroup, was said to have benefited the hospital by $250.

DOLLFUSS SEEKS TO CRUSH REDS FIRST, THEN NAZIS

TACTICS RECALL VON PAPEN'S FAILURE

many. Will it succeed in that purpose?

AIMS OF DOLLFUSS

By smashing the Socialists the Dollfuss government expects to do three things:

First, satisfy Prince Starhemberg and his Heimwehr who furnish Dollfuss his chief semi-military support and who have demanded the destruction of the Socialist party as the price of their loyalty to the government.

Second, to remove the Nazis' last excuse to charge Dollfuss with being in league with the Reds.

Third, to show the Nazis how strong the government is and that it could strike the Nazis just as hard as it is striking the Socialists now.

But Chancellor Von Papen tried these same tactics in Germany. There, too, the government first removed the Socialists from the field, but the Nazis seized the fruits of victory.

If Dollfuss goes, the Nazis come. If the Nazis come, trouble comes with them. Maybe war.

HITLER'S PROGRAM

Europe thinks in these terms of the Austrian question. The reason why Adolf Hitler wants Austria are the reasons why Italy, France, Czechoslovakia and England do not want him to have it. They are determined to keep him out, but not as determined as he is to get in.

There is only one man in Central Europe who is just as determined to keep Hitler out as Hitler is determined to get in. That is Engelbert Dollfuss, Chancellor of Austria, minister of foreign affairs, defense, the interior and agriculture, 41 years old, youngest head of a government in Europe, scarcely five feet high, smallest man in public life in the world.

Great powers have trembled before Germany. Austria under Dollfuss has not trembled. Men big enough to make three of Dollfuss have cowered physically before the threat of the Brown Shirt storm troops. Dollfus, smaller than the smallest Brown Shirt alive, has dared the whole 2,500,000 of them to "come on." The help of the great powers has been essential in maintaining Austrian independence. But without Dollfuss the great powers probably would have to resign Austria to her fate.

JOKES ABOUT SIZE

He does not look as small as the stories about him. He laughs the hardest at jokes about his size. Half Vienna the other day was asking, "Have you heard about the latest attempt on Dollfuss' life?" "No, what?" "His bodyguard found a mouse trap in the Chancellor's bedroom."

He is simply a small man. When he came around the table in the Metternich room of the Ballhaus Platz his waist measured about level with the table top. He smiles often, talks fast, looks very tired, but they say he has looked that way all his life.

His two tasks are to keep the Austrian Nazis out by police power and by improving the economic situation; and to keep the German Nazis out by using the threats of the great powers. To do the latter he has to remind the world constantly that the question of Austrian independence is a question of peace or war for Europe.

Chancellor Dollfuss said:

"The independence of Austria concerns Europe as a whole. It touches the interests of every European state. Take Poland, for example. Just about a year ago the most acute tension existed between Poland and Germany. Now Germany has concentrated her whole attention on Austria. Also, about a year ago the relations between Italy and Jugoslavia gave grave cause for anxiety. Today the attention of both states is concentrated on Germany and the question the world is asking is what are the real intentions of Hitler."

THREE QUESTIONS

He folded his hands and leaned forward over the table.

"On the question of whether and how Austrain independence can be maintained, let us divide it into three categories: First, can Austria be economically independent? Second, what are the internal political prospects for the preservation of Austrian independence? Third, what is the role of the great powers?

"Now I want to preface this discussion with my conviction that we will stick it out. There is no question in my mind about that. We will in the long run win out. But from the economic point of view, it is essential that we improve our export trade."

The Chancellor pointed out that Italy had helped the most. But France and Czechoslovakia had failed to reflect their political interest in their purchases. He asked for more tourist trade. He hinted that it would help immensely if Austria's foreign creditors would realize how important her debt burden is in her struggle to keep independent.

"Those who are against the independence of Austria have always used the economic argument as their strongest propaganda. They have argued that Austria standing alone as she is now cannot live and therefore that she must join Germany. But this is not true. One forgets that for long periods of time Austria existed independently since the war. There is no reason why we cannot continue to exist independently.

BACKED BY NATION

"Now as to the internal political situation, I believe it is safe to say that today at least 70 percent of the population of Austrian is in favor of Austrian independence. The Social Democrats have recently declared for it. They had around 35 per cent of the voters. If you take them plus the people back of our Fatherland front we must have around 70 per cent of the population.

"As to the foreign political situation, it is obvious that if all the great powers were opposed to our independence there would be small chance to maintain it. We might all die the deaths of heroes, but it would do no good. This, of course, is the position of all the small states. But it just happens that the interest of many of the great powers is to maintain Austrian independence. If the borders of Germany were to be extended to Italy and Jugoslavia the constellation of European politics would be absolutely revolutionized."

With a pencil he carefully drew rectangles on a tablet. He said:

"Your new minister, Mr. Earle, has shown complete understanding of the position. I am most happy over the sympathy America has shown Austria. This sympathy is a political factor I do not underestimate. Practically you help us most by buying our goods, sending us your tourists."

"But if all this does fail, Herr Kanzler, a good many people say you hold the Hapsburg card up your sleeve?"

"That question cannot be put for Austria alone. We alone are too small for the Hapsburgs. I do not see it as a probable development now and I am not striving for it, although I do not hold it excluded. For a Danubian state perhaps, but it is not a real problem now."

HITLER UNMOVED

"Do you feel any lessening of the pressure from Germany?"

"No. As the situation is at present national Socialism in Austria continues to live only because of the encouragement and support it receives from Germany. There are few signs that the intentions of Hitler himself have altered. Hitler, one must remember, is an Austrian."

"What will be the position if Germany once more becomes the strongest military power in Europe?"

"Then the problem will not be just an Austrian problem any more."

Thirty-five years ago two little Austrian boys were playing in their front yards, in villages less than 100 miles apart. Today the two Austrian country boys are dictators, of brother countries. They are quarreling. Hitler is four years older, and sixty million bigger. The odds are on his side. Dollfuss has only his nerve, and a few big friends!

WOMEN FIGHT WITH REBELS IN AUSTRIA

tured, today, after a short lull, the battle was resumed through streets still littered with the dead.

The women fought like old pioneers of the American prairies. A government troop commander said they helped carry munitions and reload rifles of their embattled husbands and brothers, who fought from the windows of their homes.

RESISTANCE SMASHED

Their resistance was smashed by artillery. One officer said:

"There were plent of innocent noncombatants who had no choice but to go through the shelling."

The state of civil war between the Socialists and the government continued serious throughout the nation, but in outlying regions the government rapidly appeared to be gaining the upper hand.

Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss, determined to retain control of the government, declared the Socialist fight was "madness." He said:

"One may say already that this undertaking has entirely failed and that the position of the federal government is stronger than ever."

At Linz, one of the bloodiest spots in the rebellion, the government was definitely in control.

The government carried out its threat of death sentences against the rebels when a court martial sentenced a 43-year-old shoemaker to hang. He was executed quickly.

The government, summoning all available man power to its side, poured reserve troops into the capital.

Elsewhere in the nation, the situation was believed to be coming under government control.

However, spokesmen for both the government and the Socialists confidently predicted victory.

CABINET SHAKEUP

In government circles a reorganization of the cabinet was discussed and it was expected that three members would be eliminated and replaced by men of Right Radical beliefs. They are Dr. Karl Buresch, minister of finance; Richard Schmitz, minister of social welfare, and Dr. Robert Kerber, minister without portfolio.

EARLE SPEEDS TO VIENNA

HAVERFORD, Pa., Feb. 14.—(AP.)—George H. Earle, United States minister to Austria, sails for Europe tomorrow, hastening back to his post in Vienna because of the serious situation there. He is ending a furlough.

Earle is the candidate of the Democratic state committee for the Pennsylvania gubernatorial nomination in the spring primary election.

Today, however, is the first provided by law for the signing of nominating petitions and party leaders are rushing them through nearby counties so that the necessary signatures may be obtained and the petitions signed by Earle before he sails.

Hurrying from his home in Pittsburgh to Washington, Joseph F. Guffey, Roosevelt leader in Pennsylvania, plans to confer with Earle. In Philadelphia, the Democratic state chairman, Warren Van Dyke, promised to "carry on" his campaign.

Hitler Government Abolishes Reichsrat

BERLIN, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Chancellor Hitler's government today abolished the Reichsrat—the federal council—thereby abrogating section four of the Republican constitution of Germany.

Big Powers Fear Austrian Union With Germany

Associated Press.

Concern lest the ultimate result of the uprising in Austria be its union with Nazi Germany was expressed today in the capitals of Great Britain, Italy and France.

London, through Capt. Anthony Eden, Lord Privy Seal, is expected to inform Chancellor Hitler, of Germany, within a week that it insists on Austrian independence.

The French cabinet decided to give the Dollfuss government economic aid and plans to enlarge quotas on Austrian goods and join other countries in extending credits.

Official comment was lacking in Rome, but many Italians expressed fears Nazis would gain the upper hand in the little neighboring country.

An unorficial proposal by Henry Berenger, chairman of the foreign affairs committee of the French Senate, that France, Italy and Great Britain intervene to protect Austria's independence should the Socialists win had drawn no response from London or Rone.

CLAIRTON WIFE ASKS DIVORCE

Charging she was put out of the house by her husband, Margaret M. Leasure, 43, of Clairton, yesterday asked Judge M. A. Musmanno for a divorce from Walter F. Leasure.

She told the court her husband had threatened her life, and that he burned their marriage certificate.

His wife had a mania for throwing things at him, George S. McDonald, of 1730 Nevada street, Swissvale, charged in his divorce suit against Mary Louise McDonald, of 566 Price avenue, North Braddock.

Divorce suits were filed by John P. Quillen against Anna D. Quillen, Irwin Souger against Ruth Souger, Blanche Fox against Samuel Fox, Mary Walters against Edward Walters, John E. Knock Out that COLD!

Give It No Chance To Get Going!

A cold once under way is a cold hard to drive away! Let no cold endanger you. At the first chill or sneeze, take Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. It usually makes short work of a cold because it is expressly a cold remedy and because it gets a cold from the inside. A cold, you known, is an internal infection and calls for internal treatment.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine means COMPLETE relief because it is COMPLETE treatment. It does all the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relives the headache and grippy feeling and tones and fortifies the entire system. That's the action you want and anything less is taking chances. Get Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine at any druggist, 30c and 50c. Ask for it by the full name and accept no substitute.

It Was a Hard Nut to Crack..

But we did it!

—Five weeks ago we went to Hart-Schaffner & Marx, and asked them for their season's surplus stocks, to sell at a SHARP CUT UNDER CURRENT PRICES. They refused to make the reduction, because of advancing prices...and we came home empty handed. But we don't give up so easily...and after many telegrams and letters had passed between us, we again visited the factory...this time with better results. We did a lot of arguing and a lot of talking...we explained what we wanted to do...and we came home with FOURTEEN HUNDRED SUITS...selected from their surplus stocks...It was tough sledding ...but we got them...and here they are, Ready for you Tomorrow.....

1400 HART-SCHAFFNER & MARX

TONIGHT'S AIR FEATURES

Radio Enemies To Exchange Greetings

"Love and Kisses," Valentine Greeting from alleged air "enemies" to each other, will be read by William Lundell, master of ceremonies during a St. Valentine's Day program heard over WCAE tonight from 11:30 to midnight.

* * *

Edmund Lowe, one of the best known film stars in the country, who recently was featured in the screen version of "Dinner at Eight," will be the guest artist with the Troubadors on WCAE at 9.

Lowe will be heard in a scene from one his motion pictures.

Ray Heatherton, the Singing Troubador, Harry Salter's Campus Choir and the Troubadors' Orchestra under the direction of Lennie Hayton, will complete the program.

Ted Fiorito and His Orchestra, with Dick Powell, master of ceremonies, the Three Debutantes, Lief Erickson, the singing doorman; Muzzy Marcellino, crooner; Ray Hendricks and the Fireeaters present another half hour of entertainment over WJAS tonight at 10 o'clock.

* * *

John D. Myer, former United States District Attorney will discuss the Manufacturers National Sales Tax from the studios of WCAE tonight at 6:20 p. m.

* * *

John McCormack, Irish tenor will sing one of his own arrangements of the Traditional old Irish song "The Harp That Once Thru Tara's Halls," during his half hour broadcast over KDKA tonight at 9:30.

* * *

Ted Loeb's Orchestra makes its bow on KQV tonight at 8:15.

* * *

Another batch of ridiculous solutions to equally ridiculous problems will be given by Fred Allen during his program on WCAE at 9:30.

Allen will be aided and abetted by Portland Hoffa, Jack Smart, and several other comic artists.

Mary McCoy, soprano; Ferde Grofe's Orchestra, Scrappy Lambert and the songsmiths quartet will offer the musical selections on the program.

Dick Powell

Pittsburgh's popular M. C. is heard with Ted Fiorito on CBS-WJAS network tonight at 10 o'clock.

Local Highlights on WJAS Tonight

A medley of "Cowboy Tunes" is the promised highlight of the Barnyard Frolics at 8.

Boake Carter promises some more "inside" sport dope during his 10:45 program.

'Erect' Music To Save Wear On Pants

By AIRCASTER

It seems bizarre to link the state liquor law with radio music.

But it has become a fact that the rule which decrees that those who drink in New York's public places must do so sitting down, is going to influence concert music as dispensed by the Radio City studios by creating what shall become known as "the standing orchestra."

The time is not far off when the NBC will reverse the technique of the liquor rule, and require its concert orchestras to play standing, instead of sitting.

It just happens that Frank Black, musical director for NBC, personally disapproves the regulation which prohibits taking drinks directly from Jimmy, the bartender.

So vigorous has his opposition to this restriction grown that it has set Black to thinking about the merits of a musician standing on his feet as compared to the talents of a musician sitting on his chair.

And he has concluded that, like drinkers, musicians on their feet are preferable and certainly more tractable than those otherwise poised or strictly horizontal.

LAZY BONES

'Cellists, fiddlers, saxophonists, oboists etc., he claims are merely mechanical men when they flop in a chair and play to the tapping of their feet.

But stand 'em up, says he, and you have individuals.

In addition to that, an orchestra, standing in a studio, brings stress of tone, delicacy of shading and tenderer nuances, so far as the new, sensitive mikes are concerned.

So the standing orchestra, pianists excepted, will be inaugurated on February 23, at WCAE and KDKA, simultaneously, when Black leads a musical appreciation concert, utilizing a 60-piece orchestra.

P. S.—Black will occupy the only chair in the studio.

GLOBE TROTTING

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

What has the cancellation of air mail contracts done to the army of stamp collectors? Globe trotters, among them, are simmering in excitement, ready any moment to boil over. It seems that the collectors want "covers" of the last air mail to be delivered under existing airmail contracts and more feverishly do they want "covers" from the first mail carried by the United States Army planes.

"Covers" to those of us yet uninitiated into the dark and devious methods of stamp collectors mean envelopes that have been postmarked.

In answer to questions from them the last mail is carried by private operators February 19. At midnight the government steps in.

We might co-operate with the Sun-Telegraph stamp club and see if we can give the same service on stamps that we have on old coins. If you have stamp problems you might send them in. Let's give it a whirl anyway.

* * *

A letter came today about a young man who is too proud to ask for charity yet is in desperate need of an artificial limb. The one he last used is worn out. He is a capable mechanic and handy man and will gladly do any kind of work in return for a new limb.

Who's afraid OF THE BIG BAD BREATH?

The answer is nobody—if Listerine has been used. For Listerine instantly makes the breath sweet, pure, agreeable—beyond power to offend others. Actual tests have shown that Listerine instantly conquers cases of halitosis (unpleasant breath) that ordinary mouth washes fail to hide in 12 hours. Before any social engagement use Listerine.

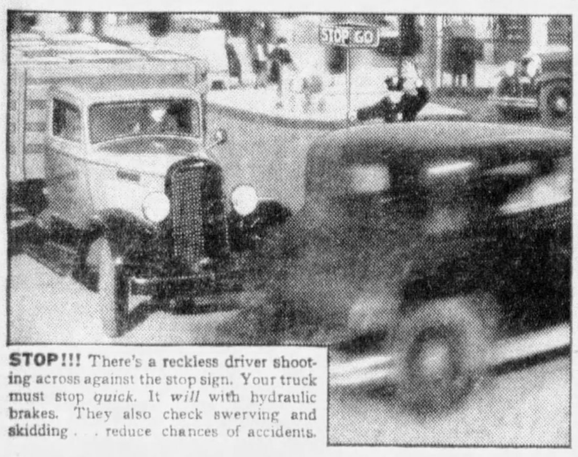
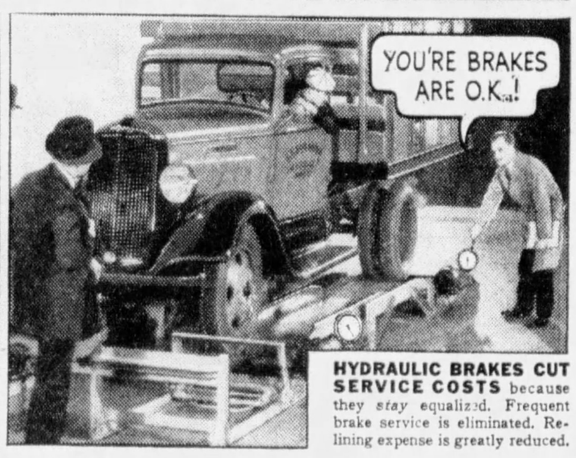
"This Feature Alone Switched Me To Dodge Trucks"



STOP!!! There's a reckless driver shooting across against the stop sign. Your truck must stop quick. It will with hydraulic brakes. They also check swerving and skidding . . . reduce chances of accidents.



HYDRAULIC BRAKES CUT SERVICE COSTS because they stay equalized. Frequent brake service is eliminated. Relining expense is greatly reduced.

No Other Low-Priced Truck Has Hydraulic Brakes . . . Plus These 17 Other Great Features That Save Gas . . . Oil . . . Tires . . . Cut Upkeep Costs

LOW-PRICED Dodge trucks have been winning buyers four times faster than the rest of the industry. Many of the nation's best known business firms are switching to Dodge. These people are buying on the same basis that you should buy your next truck . . . they are checking features, comparing Dodge with other low-priced trucks, learning to judge truck value for themselves.

These buyers are finding, just as you will find, that Dodge offers eighteen quality features that actually cost Dodge more money, yet are put there because they will save money for you.

One of these money-saving features is hydraulic brakes that stay equalized, cut tire expense, reduce service costs and cut relining costs. They save in still another way because they are safer, stop smoother and quicker . . . thus reduce chances of accident.

Another expensive Dodge feature is four piston rings instead of the usual three . . . this saves gas and oil. Dodge also gives you four main bearings, they naturally cost Dodge more than the usual three, and save money for you by reducing vibration and prolonging engine life.

Roller bearing universals, oil filter, valve seat inserts, air cleaner, crankcase ventilator, double tapered roller bearings in rear wheels, these and many more cost Dodge money while they very definitely and obviously save money for you.

Before you buy any low-priced truck, Dodge urges you to learn the facts. The extra value Dodge gives you is almost incredible 'til you make your own comparison. See your Dodge dealer at once.

All prices F. O. B. Factory, Detroit. Special equipment including Dual Wheels on 1½-Ton models extra.*

Help Keep the 'UPTURN' up!

BUY ... FLOOR COVERINGS in February

FEBRUARY!... MONTH OF HOMEFURNISHINGS SALES brings perhaps the last of the money-saving opportunities to buy needed floor coverings before higher production costs are reflected in retail price offerings. Already so called "low priced production stocks" have left the factories and have either been sold through the retail outlets . . . or are awaiting consumers in the February Sales. Pittsburgh Merchants assure us they were among the bold plungers to place advance orders of rugs and floor coverings in anticipation of a good February turnover. Their advertised offerings are now presenting these facts . . . that these rug values are extraordinary. There are many new effects in Rugs . . . Modern Chintzes, Persian Reproductions, Plains with Borders . . . all selling at special February prices.

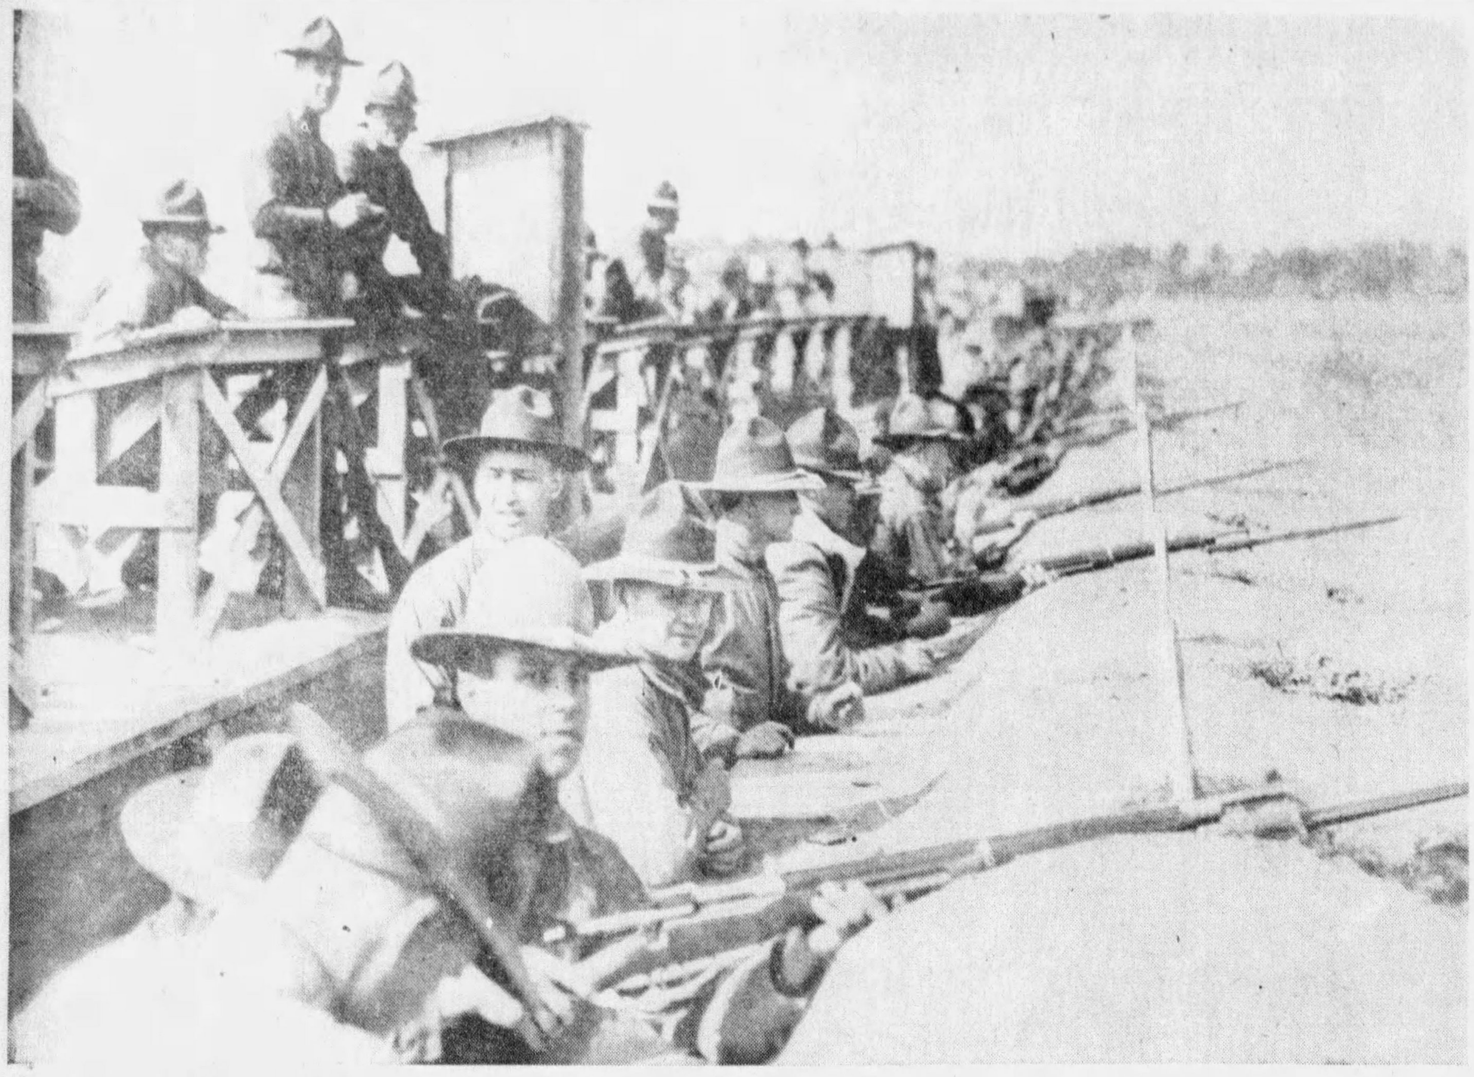
HOW WINGING DEATH ACTUALLY STRUCK IN WORLD WAR



Men from the Pittsburgh district—the men who had to give up their jobs and leave their homes—at target practice at Camp Lee, Va. Here they were learning to be soldiers—soldiers in the Eightieth Division of the A. E. F. The more accurate the aim, the better the soldier, the greater the hero.

An infantryman at Camp Lee practicing—that is, practicing the best way to use the death-dealing trench grenade to make its effect upon the foe to be met abroad most deadly.

On this page today begins a new series of uncensored pictures of war in the raw. You see the horror of death at the instant it strikes.

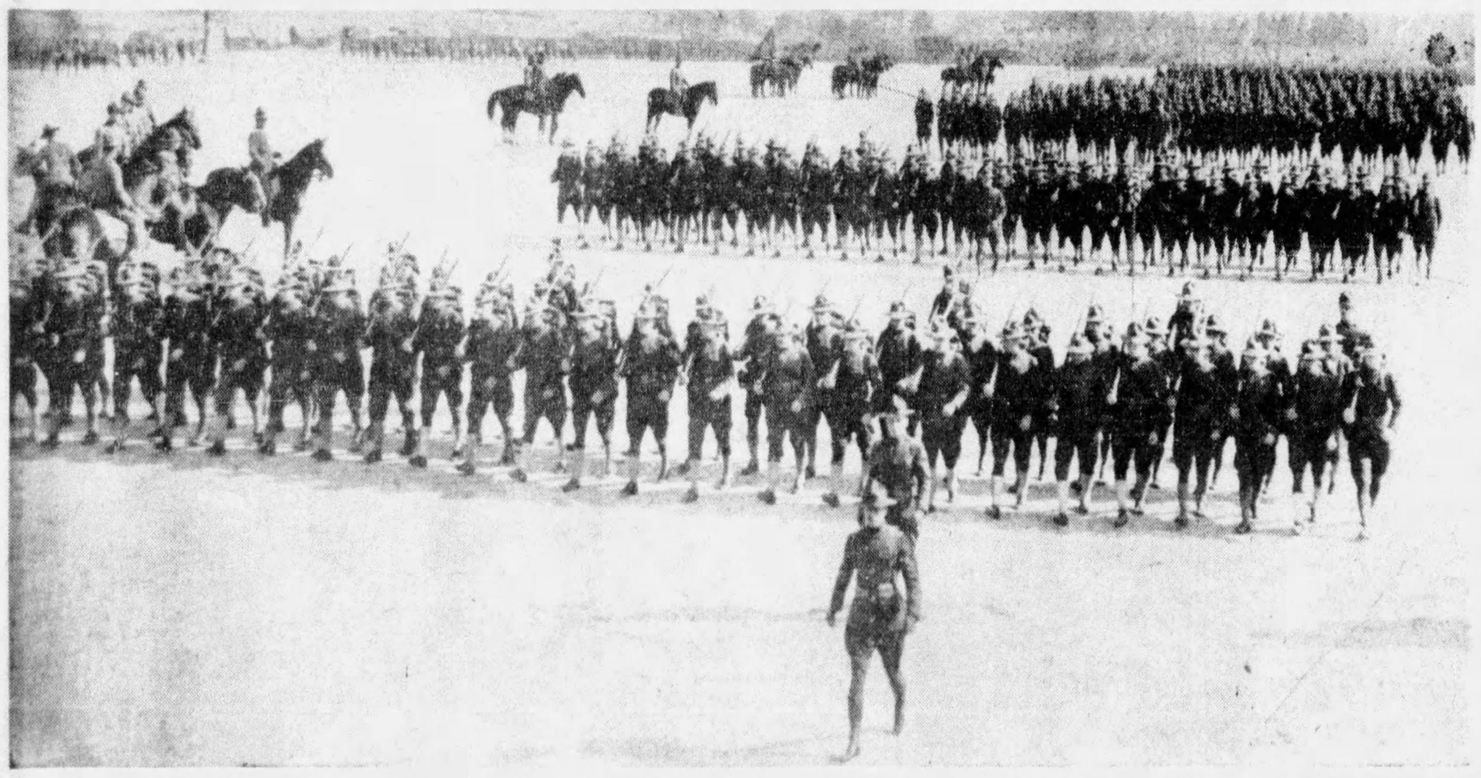
The pictures are grim reminders of the tragic days of 1918; days when the boys themselves made glory of the "great adventure"—but days—and nights—of anxiety and heartbreak in tens of thousands of American homes.

The boys who made so triumphant an epic of war's mischances are proud of themselves and their "outfits" and justly so, but to the country that sent them into war against unprecedented odds, because the country itself was unprepared, the pictures teach a lesson that must be remembered forever.

NEVER must such scenes be enacted On AMERICAN SOIL.

We must keep foreign wars out of America and America OUT OF FOREIGN WARS.

PREPAREDNESS must be the watchword of the Republic—now and for all time.



The Eightieth Division on review at Camp Lee before its assembled officers and distinguished visitors—citizens, for the most part, there to see what fine soldiers their friends, relatives and neighbors had become. Thus with this great fanfare of flags, bands, these men in a patriotic surge prepared to——Make their last march in Virginia, the quiet parade with full packs, under secret orders and unwitnessed by proud friends, to the train that carried them to the Europe-bound boat. These Camp Lee pictures are from Leo Sable's collection.

'Preparedness' Picture-Lesson —Ellenbogen

"One of the most interesting features of the Sun-Telegraph is its incomparable series of photographs of the World War, and each day I look for these illustrations. I am interested particularly in the pictures of the local units in action and the scenes in Pittsburgh during the war time. I consider the war pictures of especial educational value. In depicting the horrors of war, we are taugh a lesson on the need of NATIONAL PREPAREDNESS which can be inculcated by no other means. I congratulate the publisher of the Sun-Telegraph in the graphic reproduction and printing of these pictures."
—Congressman Ellenbogen.

Three Steps to Death!

The pictorial record of how a motion-picture camera ground as Death struck—hard and fast—in the World War. Here two officers lead American doughboys in a bayonet charge. One officer is struck by a bullet. His knees buckle! He pitches forward! He drops! All the while his fellow officer trod three steps! That's how near Death was.

SCENE: The Argonne Forest.
TIME: September 26, 1918.
CAST: U. S. Soldiers.

THREE INDICTED AS SLAYERS

Three murder indictments were returned by the grand jury late yesterday. They were:

Edward Green for the shooting of John W. Burris, a Negro, 36, a Creighton puddler, December 9. Burris died December 31.

Herman Cannon, alias Jackson, for the fatal stabbing of Cla Lyle, Negro, 28, of 2167 Center avenue, a barber's helper, January 1.

Thomas Hall in the death of Adam Butler, 56, a hod carrier, 93 Arlington avenue, who died from being hit on the head with a chair, December 24.

CWA MAN SAVES DROWNING BOY

A 7-year-old Millvale boy was saved from drowning late yesterday by Matthew Vogel, of 106 Shoup street, Millvale, a CWA worker.

Floyd Hubstenberger, 920 O'Brien street, was kicking a tin can on the ice at Girty's Run, Millvale, and broke through.

Vogel, working nearby, heard the boy's screams, ran to him and pulled him from a depth that was over his head.

Trainer and Salus Favor Schnader for Governor

By MARK SHIELDS

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 14.—Philadelphia Republicans will be badly divided in the coming primary election for governor, U. S. Senator and state offices. There will be lacking the cohesion usual in this city, because various leaders intend to make their own commitments without regard to the wishes of William S. Vare or any other man who affects to act as organization leader in Vare's absence.

Mr. Shields

An example is Harry J. Trainer, of the Third Ward, and one of the Republican leaders in South Philadelphia.

Mr. Trainer, while so far remaining publicly silent, is reliably understood to be ready to back Attorney General William A. Schnader for the nomination for governor. So is Senator Samuel W. Salus.

In view of the fact that Mr. Schnader stands well with the Pinchot administration, though he will not become a mere Pinchot candidate for Governor, it is doubtful if the state organization through the state committee will get behind Mr. Schnader as its candidate.

That, it is reported, will make no difference to Mr. Trainer. He is not in the humor to be guided by City Chairman James M. Hazlett, who more than likely will be found following the direction of State Chairman Edward Martin.

The fact that Schnader probably would adopt most of the Pinchot social legislation program, and would take care of many Pinchot people now in state employ, is no barrier in the mind of Mr. Trainer. The people of his section are for the legislative program, and there are enough other jobs to make the picture attractive.

Furthermore, when the Philadelphia municipal campaign rolls around next year, and the party goes to the mat in what promises to be a revolutionary struggle for power, Mr. Trainer would like to have as Governor some one who is his friend. That would not be the fact if the Governor were either a Democrat or a Republican beholden to Gen. Martin and thus friendly to Mr. Hazlett.

* * *

Terrific Struggle Looms In Municipal Contest

It is recognized here that the state primary is little more than an overture to the 1935 municipal campaign. That will be a titanic struggle, as by then the authority of William S. Vare over the Republican organization will be even less than it is now.

There is fear that the political ferment which seized the city last year—resulting in the election of Democratic city officials—will extend through this year into 1935.

That is the reason there is so much warfare among the leaders who feel that another campaign with candidates bearing the Vare label would be as fatal as was that of 1933 and would turn all of City Hall over either to Democrats or to independent Republicans, with little organization but backed by a public sentiment which is tired of the old order.

For the 1933 result here, as it was in Pittsburgh, was a vote against the Republican organization as now constituted.

Gov. Pinchot, while not popular here, will get more votes as a candidate for the Senate than he ever before received in Philadelphia.

Former Mayor Harry A. Mackey in West Philadelphia will do what he can for the Governor. While Mr. Mackey's "Town Meeting" party got no great vote in the recent election, it assisted in stirring sentiment for Democrats who were on its ticket. It added to the political stew, and every additional atom of unrest is favorable to Mr. Pinchot.

City Controller Davis Wilson, anathema to the Vare organization, was elected Controller as a Democrat. He and Mr. Mackey are friends. If Mr. Wilson should become a candidate for Governor he would have Mackey's aid. Perhaps he will not, for there would be many hurdles for him to take, but he will not be for the Republican regular, nor the Democratic regular, as things stand today.

It is understood the Guffey Democratic group, when slating George H. Earle for Governor, asked Mr. Wilson to be for him, he having been a beneficiary of a Democratic sweep. Mr. Wilson reclined with the observation that he had ambitions of his own.

Parties Shattered, Voters Enjoy New Freedom

This is an instance of the confusion and warfare which reigns all over the lot here, confined to no party. Indeed, it might be said that there no longer are parties here in the sense they once existed, with some fair estimate possible of what each would produce. The Philadelphians are voting freely and boisterously, and appear to enjoy their new freedom.

Former Congressman Benjamin Golder is another Republican who will not go along with the regular primary slate. While Mr. Golder was retired from Congress at the orders of Mr. Vare, and has been unable to come back, it is nevertheless true that he has been a thorn in the side of the organization, and some of his work entered into the wrecking of that outfit prior to the last municipal election.

Golder is preparing to go to the mat with Sheriff Richard Weglein, leader of the Twenty-ninth Ward, also Golder's territory. Mr. Weglein, wishing to hold his leadership, will not be enthusiastic about any Republican slate which has the appearance of having been handpicked by Vare and other organization influence or condonation.

Herbert Tiley, prominent merchant, George Horace Lorimer, publisher, and Supreme Court Justice George W. Maxey are some of the names heard for Gov-

PROBING ABUSE OF GIRL HOTEL STRIKER

Mayor Extends Little Attention to Complaints

Supt. of Police Ben R. Marshall has promised an investigation of alleged police brutality to a girl hotel striker and has declared that if the charges hold up they will be made the subject of Police Trial Board action.

The same complaint, made by Mrs. M. J. Emery, of 208 Beltzhoover avenue, received scant attention from Mayor McNair yesterday. The Mayor let it be known that he remembered the way the hotel strikers treated him at a recent meeting in Moose Temple.

Mrs. Emery declared that a policeman had left marks on her arm where he pulled her about when he arrested her Monday near the William Penn Hotel.

CAN PICK OFFICER

She will be given an opportunity by Supt. Marshall to pick out the officer responsible.

The Mayor heard Mrs. Emery's complaint yesterday and said:

"I told you not to wear those banners. Don't come around to me when you get in trouble."

Mrs. Emery asked that the Mayor tell the police to let the girl pickets at the hotel alone. The Mayor said he would have nothing to do with it until the girls stayed off the street. Before leaving the Mayor's office Mrs. Emery said:

"Get this clear, Mr. McNair. We don't intend to call our pickets off. We intend to win this strike. You are forgetting the working people who elected you."

NRA TAKES HAND

Local NRA officials today took a hand in the hotel situation in an effort to straighten out one part of the code which they believe partly responsible for the strike of hotel workers.

Their move was coincident with failure by Joseph Washington, state mediator of the Department of Labor, to settle the strike. Washington spent several hours here yesterday in conference with F. L. Andrews, manager of the William Penn Hotel, and A. C. Jewett, secretary of the Regional Labor Board. Before leaving last night, Washington declared he had been unable to accomplish anything.

Dissatisfied with workings of the hotel code, Edward N. Jones, state direcor of National Emergency Council, is en route today to Washington to confer with Gen. Hugh S. Johnson. Jones explained that the hotel code permits a hotel to obtain an automatic exemption from labor provisions by the mere filing of an appeal. He said:

"All but one of the first-class hotels in Pittsburgh filed applications for exemption from the wage provisions of the hotel code. The way the code works now, the hotels automatically became exempt from following that povision.

Wilson K. Ray, local NRA administrator, said he had written to national headquarters last week for a ruling on the clause. The state's efforts to settle the strike will be continued today. Labor officials in Harrisburg are anxious to prevent the spread of the strike to hotels other than the William Penn, it was learned.

Logan St. Building Damaged by Blaze

Damage estimated at $100 resulted from a fire in a two-story brick building at 85 Logan street last night. The blaze, its cause undetermined, was confined to the second floor, which was vacant.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:
SANTA BARBARA, Cal., Feb. 14.

Funny thing, just when I was reading about our great ship the Leviathan being tied up and getting, who drops in to my igloo to see me but my old friend Capt. Harley, who was the skipper of that ship during all its great years. He says that the excuse is, that it is too big to operate, yet England and France both are building ones bigger. Germany is waiting to see what they do, then she will build one still bigger. But ours is laid up because it's too big.

Will Rogers

Well, anyhow, what is there to worry over? Greta Garbo is not married. So cheer up, everything is fine again. What does it matter who carries the mail, there hasn't been an important letter written in years. Yours,

WILL.

Assassins Take Role of Heroes In Devil's Island

MEDELEINE DRON, 21

Gold Hunting Family Laud Killers Who Saved Lives

By GORDON SINCLAIR

CHAPTER XIII

CAYENNE, French Guiana.—How would you like to spend your last hundred on a grubstake to carry you on a quest for gold through the land of the dread vampire bat, only to find your boat drifting through floods toward the camp of a dozen escaped convicts; every man a murderer?

That's what happened to Marcel and Louis Dron, gold prospectors of Montreal and Edmonton.

The Dron family, Louis, Marcel and wife, and their daughters, Jeannette and Madeleine, represent 17 per cent of the entire free white population in the convict colony. A colony that once totaled 13,000.

Their Edmonton-born daughter, Madeleine, blonde, blue-eyed and 21, is the belle of Devil's Island.

The Drons rose up on their hind legs recently and sang a song of salutes, salaams and salvation to the condemned of France. They told me:

"Twelve assassins saved our lives. What's more they wouldn't take a can of beans or a sack of flour for their trouble because to help a convict to escape is a high crime and we might have been jailed for it."

The Dron bothers have fol-

EXPERTS URGE MANAGERS FOR COUNTIES

Policy-determining Board Also Would Be Elected

(Principles of a model county government are outlined in today's article, the thirty-third of a series the Sun-Telegraph is publishing in its campaign to cut taxes through elimination of waste and duplication in governmental agencies.)

Five principles are included in a plan of reorganization of county government as advanced by the committee on county government of the National Municipal League, in a report recently made public. A score of college professors, economists and leaders in public life are members of the county committee, headed by John A. Fairlie, of the University of Illinois.

The five-point program is as follows:

1—The election of a representative policy-determining body by the people, responsible to them for the conduct of county government.

2—The creation of a single responsible executive head chosen by the policy-determining body, and accountable to it for the administration of county services, i. e., a county manager.

3—The choice of administrative officers through appointment by the chief executive, thus providing a short ballot and centralized administrative control.

4—The concentration of activities in a few departments on the basis of functions.

5—The provisions of a substantial degree of flexibility to permit adjustment to varying local situations.

PROGRAM ADAPTABLE

Such a program would of course, the report states, be subject to local constitutional requirements. The report indicates that the proposed plan is suitable for embodiment either in a county government law of state-wide application, or in an individual county charter.

Discussing the county board, the report states this should be constituted distinctly as a legislative and general policy determining body and should consist of not less than five nor more than nine members. The chairman should be chosen by a majority vote of the members to preside over the board for a term of two years.

The report further points out that no member elected to the county board should be eligible for appointment to the office of county manager or to any other office or position in the county service during the term for which he was elected, and that neither the county board nor any member should direct or interfere in any way with the appointment or removal of any officer or employe in the administrative service of the county.

ADVANTAGES OF PLAN

Among the advantages of a county manager plan as pointed out by the committee, are:

First, it favors the selection of the chief executive on the basis of administrative fitness. Second, the manager plan goes as far as organization alone can go toward separating the policy-determining and administrative func-

Old Gold Flows to Father Cox To Melt Into Altar Vessels

FATHER COX AT OLD ST. PATRICK'S COUNTING HIS GOLD . . . IT'S FOR A GOLDEN CHALICE

Strange and precious souvenirs and treasures make up the fast growing pile of old gold given to the Rev. James R. Cox in response to his appeal for gold to make a chalice honoring St. Bernadette, recently canonized.

The response has been so generous that Father Cox plans to make still other sacred vessels from the donated gold. There are more than 1,000 wedding rings among the gifts.

Among the more interesting of the pieces received is a wedding ring of heavy gold, made from a nugget mined in the gold rush of 1849, and a narrower ring, set with a diamond, flanked by two sapphires, the last gift of a sailor son sent to his mother from Gibraltar.

Included in the pile is also a service pin, as well as a number of gold medals awarded for scholastic honors. In making his appeal for the old gold to be made into a chalice, Father Cox is following a European custom which dates back to the Middle Ages and which, the church teaches, awards the giver with heavenly remembrance every time the chalice is used.

TOWNSHIPS ASK ROAD FUNDS

READING, Pa., Feb. 14.—A resolution calling upon the state government to turn over to the townships all money due for road purposes, was adopted at the closing session of the State Association of Township Supervisors here. The association also had before it a resolution opposing merging of or destroying of township governments without the voters' consent. It was pointed out the governor has the power to order the State Highway Department to either use appropriated moneys for road purposes in the designated townships or turn the money over to the townships, which would then be able to cut taxes.

Blaming the alleged high cost of operating many of the state departments as the reason for high taxes and defending local governments, Louis W. Hagmaier, of Aspinwall, today urged the supervisors to fight for home rule and against abolition of the township.

Hagmaier charged that state officials are using a demand for lower governmental costs as a smoke screen to hide real extravagance in government and to shield themselves.

Hagmaier urged adoption of a program including home rule for boroughs and decentralization of power in Harrisburg.

For the best exclusive news tip of the week $15.00 will be given, for the second best, $10.00, and for the next 25 best, $1.00 each.

'Devil Slayer,' Wife Held Insane; 'Jailed'

SEATTLE, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Oscar Hestnes, Ballard fisherman who strangled his two small sons to death a month ago to "choke the devil out of them," and his wife, Marie, must spend the rest of their lives in the criminal insane ward at the State Penitentiary.

After a trial of the two yesterday, on first degree murder charges, a Superior Court jury deliberated only 14 minutes and found the couple not guilty by reason of insanity.

BACKERS URGE BOTH FOR GOVERNOR

Nomination Petitions Circulated; Mrs. Felix To Run Again

Two prospective candidates for the Republican nomination for Governor appeared on the political horizon today.

They were State Senator Frank J. Harris, of Crafton, and former Congressman Thomas W. Phillips, Jr., of Butler, twice unsuccessful candidate for the Governor nomination on a wet ticket.

Nomination petitions for both were being signed by their friends and supporters today, the first day for circulating such papers.

HARRIS UNDECIDED

Harris apparently has not decided whether he will toss his hat into the ring with an announcement of his candidacy. The circulation of petitions is a move by his friends, he asserts.

However, the recent big testimonial dinner to Senator Harris left little doubt that he will enter the arena for some state office at the primaries, May 15.

His supporters have hinted that he might be ultimately found running for Lieutenant Governor, but the Senator has given no intimation as to his attitude.

The Senator's name has frequently been linked with a slate that would include Gov. Pinchot as the candidate for the United States Senate, Attorney General William A. Schnader for Governor and Harris for Lieutenant Governor.

DEMOCRATS GET PETITIONS

Nominating petitions for the Democratic state organization's slate were taken out today at the County Bureau of Elections.

The ticket includes Joseph F. Guffey, of Pittsburgh, for United States Senator; George Earle III, of Philadelphia, for Governor; Thomas Kennedy, of Hazelton, for Lieutenant Governor; Thomas Logue, of Philadelphia, for Secretary of Internal Affairs, and Chester Rhodes, of Monroe County, for judge of Superior Court.

Mrs. Anne E. Felix, whose contest of the 1932 election of Congressman M. J. Muldowney, in the Thirty-second Congressional District, started a government investigation of alleged ballot frauds, is to run again. Petitions for her nomination on both Democratic and Republican tickets were taken out.

SEEK NOMINATIONS

Petitions also were taken out by Matthew A. Dunn, blind Congressman, who seeks renomination on Democratic, Republican and Independent tickets in the Thirty-fourth Congressional District; J. William Schuchman, for the Republican and Democratic nominations for Congress, Thirty-fourth District; J. A. Rectenwald, Republican and Democratic nominations for Legislature, Twelfth Legislative District; Carnie R. Lebder, Republican nomination for Legislature in First Legislative District.

Leo O. Guthrie, Democrat and Republican, took out petitions for Congress in the Thirty-first Congressional District; John J. Benning, Republican and Democrat, for Congress in the Thirty-third Congressional District; George E. Mills, Democrat, for State Senate, Forty-fourth Senatorial District.

MIRRORS TO SAFEGUARD NEW MELLON BRANCH BANK

Glasses Will Prevent Robbers Lurking In Corridors

Mirrors will stand guard at Pittsburgh's newest bank vault.

When the Gulf Building branch of the Forbes National Bank, member of the Mellbank group, opens tomorrow morning, an unique arrangement of mirrors surrounding the vault on three sides, top and bottom, will join forces with four time locks, two combinations, guards and an electric safety system in protecting the vault.

A guard, standing at the front of the vault, can see completely around it, preventing robbers from hiding in the vault corridors.

This is the first vault thus equipped in Pittsburgh, according to Richard K. Mellon, president of the Mellon National Bank. In addition, it is the first downtown branch to be established for a district bank. Explaining the purpose of the new facilities, Mellon said:

"We are happy to announce the opening of the Gulf Building Branch of the Forbes National Bank tomorrow morning. It is an indication of our confidence in the present and future of Pittsburgh.

"Within the past five years the vicinity of this new banking office has developed into one of the most important business centers in the city."

Adolph W. Schmidt, formerly with the Mellon National Bank, has been appointed assistant cashier of the Forbes bank as manager of the downtown branch. A modernistic motif has been carried out in the designing of the new quarters, using aluminum and black glass in building the counters and interior walls.

Sweet Sentiments Adorn Valentines For Our Politicians

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Lots of political valentines were flown by the Army mail boys today:

"If you vote for me like I vote for you, we will split Tammany in two."

"Dearie, you will get your dower, when the Repubs get in power."

"I had a good job, dear, don't repine. I would have married you, but I had to resign."

"Down in Congress we shake our heads yes, like a hoss, Farley's got patronage, that makes him the boss."

"Little watered bank stock, growing up so high, Pecora put the works on, now no one will buy."

CATHOLICS HEAR PLEAS TO BACK NRA PROGRAM

A new industrial revolution in which the old doctrine of "unlightened selfishness" would be replaced by an ideal of "social justice" was predicted by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. John A. Ryan, speaking at the closing session of the Catholic Conference on Industrial Problems in the William Penn Hotel last night.

He was followed by the Rev. Dr. R. A. McGowan, of Washington D. C., who spoke in the absence of Bishop Hugh C. Boyle. Dr. McGowan urged capital and labor to co-operate in the interest of permanent recovery.

URGES CHEAP HOMES

Dr. Ryan declared that revival of Pittsburgh's heavy industries often cited as essential for a return of prosperity, can come about only through a government-subsidized program of low-cost home construction. He decried "human greed" as one of the greatest obstacles to national recovery. In this connection he said in part:

"The Aluminum Company of America, dominated by Andrew W. Mellon, is one of the most profitable businesses in the country. It objects to minimum wages of $13 to $15 a week, preferring a rate of $10. It also objects to dealing fairly with the few independent manufacturers of aluminum."

First consideration for the common man was held by Dr. J. E. Hagerty, of Ohio State University, as a distinguishing step of the NRA that differs from all previous programs to improve the welfare of mankind.

POPE'S VIEWS CITED

Comparing the NRA program with recommendations made by Pope Pius XI in his Encyclical on Reconstruction of the Social Order, Dr. Hagerty said:

"Pope Pius would have industry controlled jointly by a commission consisting of representatives of employers and representatives of labor, all elements subject to approval by a commission of the federal government. Under NRA industry is still under control of the managers of industry, subject to public control by government in the interest of labor and the public.

Public sentiment today is aroused behind a federal old-age pension, State Senator Frank J. Harris told yesterday afternoon session. He outlined the benefits under the state law that become effective December 1.

Dr. Francis D. Tyson, of the University of Pittsburgh, upheld the need for industry to prepare for unemployed periods through unemployed insurance. He outlined the systems already operating.

GROCERY GROUP TO ORGANIZE

Representatives of grocery and food distributors will meet in the Chamber of Commerce tonight to organize a food and grocery distributors code authority for Allegheny County.

The meeting was called by a committee named by the state code authority. It is composed of Charles Wolff, president of the Retail Grocers' Association of Allegheny County; R. R. King, of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company, representing chain stores; Fred Fichtel, president of the Wholesale Grocers' Association of Western Pennsylvania; Carl Behrhorst, representing the voluntary chain; Louis Quantz representing retail-owned wholesalers, and George L. Ewing, representing the Retail Meat Dealers' Association.

Each group will elect a representative to the authority.

Bellevue Traders Name New Officers

New officers elected by the Bellevue Board of Trade at a meeting in Bellevue Borough Hall last night included E. H. Wickes, president; C. J. Devar, Augustus Frishkorn, and E. V. Baker, vice presidents; Benjamin Moore, secretary; Ralph Witherspoon, treasurer, and C. Edward Keck Park H. Martin and C. C. Elste, directors.

The guest speaker was C. Leonard O'Connell, dean of Pitt's School of Pharmacy.

BASIC RECIPES MAKE VARIED DISHES WITH FEW CHANGES

Gumbo Dishes Can Be Made in Different Manners

If you just know how, Prudence Penny has found out, you can make one dish into many dishes by a few changes in the ingredients used. Basic recipes that can be transformed in this way are invaluable to any housewife's cooking file, for they are so certain and satisfying.

Mrs. Madelena Klein, of 6218 Butler street, wins a $1 prize today with one of these recipes of many possibilities, creole shrimp gumbo. Concerning the gumbo she writes:

"Creole gumbo with rice, savory and so different from other soups, is a course in itself. When this hearty soup is made with okra it is called gumbo in New Orleans, but when file, the powdered leaves of the young sassafras plant, thickens the soup, is it known as gumbo file. The Creole cook prefers fresh fowl, oysters, crabs, shrimps or herbs to give character to the gumbo. Lacking the fowl, a piece of round beef can be used. A bit of ham also adds flavor to all but the oyster gumbo."

Do your menues include such much-to-be-desired recipes? If they do, send the recipes in to Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, for entrance in her contest which daily awards one $5 and ten $1 prizes. No recipes will be returned.

Five Dollar Prize Winner

MISS EVELYN FONTINELLO,
78 Magnus street, Wall.

HUNGARIAN DEEP DISH APPLE PIE

Six large apples.
Two teaspoons lemon juice.
One teaspoon grated lemon rind.
One-half cup seedless raisins.
One-half cup sugar.
Three-fourths teaspoon cinnamon.
One-half cup blanched almonds, chopped.
One-fourth cup melted butter.
Pare apples and slice thin. Add to them the lemon juice and rind, the raisins, sugar and cinnamon. Add half the blanched almonds and the melted butter. Mix thoroughly and place in deep buttered casserole. Cover with a rich pastry crust, pinch the crust to allow steam to escape. Brush crust with white of an egg, sprinkle lightly with remaining quarter cup almonds and bake in moderate oven (375 degrees) for 40 to 45 minutes. Serve hot with the following sauce:

SEA FOAM SAUCE

Two tablespoons butter.
Two tablespoons flour.
One-half cup sugar.
Yolk of one egg.
One-half cup boiling water.
One teaspoon vanilla.
White of one egg.

Cream the butter. Mix together the flour and sugar and add to the butter gradually, creaming well together. Beat the egg yolk well and add to the sugar and butter mixture. Add the boiling water, stirring constantly. Pour mixture into top of double boiler and cook over boiling water, stirring constantly until smooth and thickened. Cool slightly, and just before serving add vanilla and fold mixture into the stiffly beaten egg white.

Ten $1 Prize Winners

MRS. MAGDALENA KLEIN,
6218 Butler street.

CREOLE SHRIMP GUMBO

Two tablespoons fat.
Two tablespoons flour.
One-half cup finely minced onion.
One-fourth cup finely minced celery.
One spring parsley, minced.
Frying time: Ten minutes.
A bit of red pepper pod.
A bit of bay leaf.
A sprinkle of dry thyme.
Four to six cups hot water.
Two cups canned tomatoes.
One can shrimps.
Cooking time: Twenty minutes.
One can okra.
One teaspoon salt, or more.
Cooking time: Twenty minutes.
Three cups hot boiled rice.
Servings: Four to six.

Melt the fat in a porcelain or agate saucepan, stir in the flour and let brown lightly, add minced onion, celery leaves and parsley; fry until well colored, stirring to prevent scorching. Add hot water, canned tomatoes and a bit of red pepper pod, bay leaf and sprinkle of thyme. Cook steadily but gently. Drain liquid from shrimps into gumbo. Remove black line encircling each shrimp, rinse quickly and drain. Add to gumbo with the contents of a can of okra. Let boil, then season with salt to taking. Simmer 20 minutes to develop flavor. Serve in a mound of snowy rice in the center of each plate of shrimp gumbo.

MRS. ANNA HOLLOWAY,
532 North street, New Kensington.

DUTCH BEAN SOUP

One pound green beans.
Two onions.
Six potatoes.
One pound pound bacon.
One tablespoon vinegar.
One tablespoon flour.
Slice beans. Cook until two-thirds done. Fry bacon brown. Use one tablespoon fat, one tablespoon flour to make brown gravy. Pour over beans. Add sliced onions and potatoes. Season and cook until done. Just before serving add vinegar and dash of poultry seasoning if desired.

MRS. FRANCIS M. SPEELMAN,
707 S. Trenton avenue, Wilkinsburg.

CHEESE RAMAKINS

Six tablespoons grated cheese.
One and one-half gills of milk.
The yolks of three eggs.
Two tablespoons of butter.
Two ounces of bread.
One-half tablespoon of prepared mustard.
The whites of three eggs.
Cayenne and salt to taste.

Put the milk on to boil and add the bread, minced fine. Stir the milk and bread until very smooth, and then add butter, stirring well, and finally the grated cheese. Stir this for five minutes, letting it boil, and then take off the fire and add the beaten yolks of three eggs. Have the whites ready, beaten to a stiff froth and stir them in very gently. Season to taste. Grease a baking dish and pour the mixture into the dish. Set in a moderate oven and let it bake for a quarter of an hour. Serve hot.

MRS. SAMUEL C. McDOWELL,
Verona road, Verona.

UPSIDE-DOWN GINGERBREAD

One-fourth cup shortening.
One-half cup sugar.
One egg.
One-half cup molasses.
One and three-fourth cups flour.
One teaspoon soda.
One teaspoon cinnamon.
One teaspoon ginger.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
One-half cup sour milk.
Two tablespoons butter.
One cup brown sugar.
Three or four tart apples.

Cream the shortening and add the sugar gradually. Add the well beaten egg and molasses. Sift the flour once before measuring. Mix and sift flour, soda, cinnamon, ginger and salt together, add alternately with the sour milk, and mix well. Melt the butter in a cake pan (about a 9-inch square) or a regular frying pan. Add the sugar, and stir until melted. Then add the thinly sliced apples. Pour over this the gingerbread batter, and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 30 minutes.

MRS. J. P. CRUISE,
2914 Zephyr avenue.

BAKED CORN

One can crushed yellow bantam corn.
Two level tablespoons flour.
Two level teaspoons baking powder.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
Two eggs.
Six soda crackers.

Add dry ingredients to corn. Add the two egg yolks which have been beaten until light. Beat two egg whites very stiff. Fold the mixture. Pour in buttered baking dish. Sprinkle crumbled soda crackers over top. Dot with butter and bake in hot oven 30 minutes.

CHAS. HOOKS,
Ward K, Allegheny General Hospital.

HOT HAM SANDWICH WITH RAISIN SAUCE

Trim crusts from slices of buttered bread. Saute slices of boiled ham in butter. Arrange each on a slice of bread. Cover with sauce made by cooking minced apples in butter and water until soft and adding cooked raisins, one tablespoon butter and one teaspoon raisins to one apple. Serve hot.

MRS. S. W. CALDWELL,
7131 Jonathan place, Homewood.

HUNGARIAN SAUERKRAUT

Three pounds sauerkraut.
Two or two and one-half pounds spare ribs.
Three or four shoulder steaks (if more meat is needed).
Eight medium sized onions.
One quart tomatoes.
Salt.
Sugar.

If kraut is very sauer, put into colander and pour cold water over it quickly. Put half of kraut into baking pan; lay the salted ribs over the top; cut into pieces for serving; onions peeled, cut into rather thick slices and salted; the tomatoes salted and sweetened much more than for use on the table; then the rest of the kraut. Almost cover with water if not already so with the tomato juice. Put into a moderate oven for from an hour to an hour and a half. If the extra meat has been used, cut steaks in half, salt and sink into top of kraut the last half hour of baking. Do not bake too fast, for it must be moist. Serve with plenty of mashed potatoes.

MRS. JEROME J. HESSLER,
Osceola House, Osceola Mills.

FROSTED APPLES

Pare five firm, smooth apples. Remove the cores and cook in a syrup, made of two cups of water and two cups of sugar, until apples are tender, but not broken. Beat the whites of two eggs to a stiff froth, then add two tablespoons powdered sugar, one teaspoon lemon juice and one teaspoon grated orange peel. Place the apples a little distance apart in a flat, buttered glass cooking plate and cover each with the meringue. Place in a cool oven until slightly brown. Serve with a little bright jelly; also cream, if desired.

MONTE CARLO SALAD

Remove pulp from four large grapefruits and drain. Add an equal quantity of finely cut celery and apples cut in small pieces. Moisten with mayonnaise, pile on a shallow salad dish, arrange around a border of lettuce leaves and mask with mayonnaise. Outline, using tinted green mayonnaise, four oblongs to represent playing cards and denote spots on cards by pimentoes or truffles; pimentoes cut in shapes of hearts and diamonds, truffles cut in shapes of spades and clubs. Garnish with cold cooked carrot and turnip shaped with a small round cutter to suggest gold and silver coins.

APRICOT FRAPPI

One-half cup minute tapioca.
One-half cup brown and white sugar (mixed).
Eighteen apricots.
Three cups water.

Wash apricots good, then let stand over night in three cups water. In morning add other ingredients. If you do not have brown sugar use one-fourth cup corn syrup with the white sugar. Cook one hour in double boiler. When cool arrange in sherbet glasses. Serve after topping with whipped cream.

POLITICS

ernor as politicians gather. The number mentioned one day, to be knocked down the next, show how badly dislocated everything is.

Because of the uncertain situation, it may be next month before the state's regular Republicans indicate what their ticket is. They are continuing to confer all over the place, without realizing that leaders are not able to deliver as they once did.

In that they differ from some of the regular leaders in Philadelphia, who are well aware that they do not now wield their old power, and are anxious for a reorganization to re-establish their authority in governmental affairs.

NO Luckies don't use the top leaves . . . . because top leaves are under-developed . . . . they are not ripe . . . . They would give a harsh smoke.

YES Luckies use only the center leaves of the finest tobacco . . . because the center leaves are the mildest, tenderest, smoothest.

Lucky Strike presents the Metropolitan Opera Company

Saturday at 1:45 P. M., Eastern Standard Time, over Red and Blue Networks of NBC. Lucky Strike will broadcast the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York in the complete Opera, "FAUST."

In making Lucky Strike, we actually discard most of the tobacco plant—because we select only the center leaves—and for these center leaves farmers are paid a higher price. We do not use the top leaves—because those are under-developed. Nor the bottom leaves—because those are inferior in quality—tough, coarse and always sandy. But these center leaves are the mildest leaves, silky, smooth, tender. And so only these center leaves are used in making Luckies the fully packed cigarette—so round, so firm—free from loose ends. The tobacco doesn't spill out. That's why Luckies draw easily, burn evenly—and are always mild and smooth . . . And then, too—"It's toasted"—for throat protection—for finer taste.

Always the Finest Tobacco and only the Center Leaves

tions. Third, it offers the clean-cut centralization of responsibility for the conduct of public business.

Under the proposed plan the manager is subject to removal by the county board at any time, but should be entitled, upon his demand, to receive a written statement of the reasons for his removal and a public hearing thereon before the board.

POWER OF REMOVAL

The county manager would have the power to appoint, suspend and remove the heads of the various departments and the members of all boards and commissions whose appointment is not otherwise provided for. Any officer suspended or removed should be entitled to receive a public hearing before the manager.

It would be the duty of the manager to supervise the administration of the affairs of the county; to transfer employes from one department or body to another as needed; to attend the meetings of the county board; to participate in the discussion of matters coming before the board; to submit periodic reports on the condition of county finances and other reports as the board may request.

The manager would prepare and submit a budget and to see that the departments under his supervision had a definite work program and that the department kept within the appropriations.

GROUPING PROPOSED

The committee suggests that the county activities be grouped into a few closely-knit departments primarily on the basis of functions.

There would be a department of finance to assess property for taxation, to collect all taxes, to negotiate loans and sales of bonds, to receive and have custody of county funds, to help in preparing the county budget, to certify all contracts and purchases, to maintain a system of accounts and prepare monthly statements on the county's fiscal condition.

The second unit of government would be the Department of Public Works, which would include the road and bridge maintenance and construction, and ditch maintenance and construction, and care for other engineering services.

There also would be a department of Health and Welfare for public health administration, operation of hospitals, to provide poor relief and operate the charitable and correctional institutions.

In closing the report states:

"The following practices should be definitely prohibited:

"1—The appointment, promotion, demotion, suspension or removal of any officer for political or religious reasons.

"2—The solicitation of contributions for political parties or purposes either from or by any officer or employee.

"3—Holding party office or actively participating in a political campaign while employed in the service of the county."

HUNT THUG CUT BY WOMAN

An armed robber, slashed with a butcher knife by 19-year-old Mrs. Pete Archackie while he was robbing her husband's store, near Springdale, was sought today by police.

The bandit entered the store, at Russellton and Little Run roads, Rural Ridge, drew a gun and ordered Mrs. Archackie to the back of the store.

While he was opening the cash register, Mrs. Archackie grabbed a butcher knife and slashed his cheek.

The thief fled without loot.

Springdale Police Chief Harry Lloyd believes the gunman to be a man wanted for several other holdups in the district.

'Spiritual Marriage' Required Whiskers

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—The so-called "spiritual marriage cult" required its male members to grow long beards, Lawrence Arguello, Los Angeles, who said he was a member of the organization six months, had disclosed today as police continued their investigation.

The cult beceame an object of police inquiry when William Wallace, San Francisco, reported to police his wife had been enticed away from home and was about to be "spiritually wed" to a member of the cult.

Fat Men

I don't care how fat you are or how much you hate to get out and walk a couple of miles. If you will take one half a teaspoon of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water every morning for 4 weeks and cut out pastries, sugar and fatty meats—

You will feel so good—so energetic and the urge for activity will be so great that you will immensely enjoy a daily walk of several miles—and lose fat.

While you are losing fat you will be gaining in energy—in endurance—in ambition. Your skin will grow clearer and your eyes will sparkle with the good health that Kruschen Salts brings.

Just try one 85c bottle of Kruschen Salts; it will last you 4 weeks. After you have taken one bottle the old arm chair won't hold you any more—you'll want to be up and doing—you'll enjoy work—you'll sleep like a top and probably live years longer. Get Kruschen at Sun Drug Co. stores or any live druggists in America with the understanding that you must be joyfully satisfied or money back.

W. R. Daniels of Richmond Hill N. Y., writes: "After 2 bottle of Kruschen, I've removed 3 inches from my belt, feel 25% more active mind is clearer, eruptions have disappeared. Am 46 yrs. old and feel 20 yrs. younger. I get up feeling 100% Kruschen sure is great."

Banquet Here to Honor Retired Store Executive

Kaufmann Prepares For European Trip; Plans Undisclosed

ARTHUR C. KAUFMANN

Arthur C. Kaufmann, who resigned yesterday as vice president and general manager of McCreery & Co., today was preparing for a trip to Europe, while friends and business associates prepared to honor him with a banquet.

The banquet will be held tonight at the Concordia Club. Mr. Kaufmann will sail Saturday on the liner Paris for a six weeks' trip abroad.

Mr. Kaufmann, though young, has been a leader in mercantile circles, and for the past 15 years has been prominent in civic activities. He has been executive head of McCreery & Co. since February 1, 1928.

Typifying his wide interests, he was appointed by President Roosevelt to membership on the Labor Board for the Pittsburgh district, and was a director of the Research Bureau for Retail Training at the University of Pitsburgh.

Mr. Kaufmann announced he would disclose his plans for the future after his European trip. He said he regretted severing his connection with McCreery & Co., and had done so only to avail himself of better opportunities.

He became executive head of McCreery's after leaving the position of general merchandise manager and assistant to the president of Kaufmann & Baer Co., of which he also was a director. The latter store now is Gimbels.

He is vice president of the Retail Merchants' Association, vice president of the Pennsylvania Retailers' Association, president of the Wood Street Association of Pittsburgh, and director of the Better Business Bureau and of the Credit Bureau of Pittsburgh.

JONES TO FIGHT CODE CHEATERS

E. N. Jones, state director of the National Emergency Council, was in Washington today for a final conference with Frank C. Walker, executive director of the National Emergency Council, making plans to launch vigorous drive throughout Pennsylvania for compliance with NRA codes.

Upon his return here, Jones said, he will be prepared to handle all complaints against violations. Field agents of the State Department of Labor and Industry will conduct investigations under the supervision of a labor compliance officer and a trade practice officer who are to be appointed.

Names of persons registering complaints, he asserted, will not be revealed.

Amicable settlement of code problems will be the aim of his office, Jones declared. Only in cases of flagrant violation of the NRA will the Department of Justice be urged to prosecute.

All the titles gave credit to BUZ for writing, directing and whatnot (which of course he didn't do) with the exception of the words and MUSIC which were credited to two RIVAL DANCE DIRECTORS by way of a gentle but firm "RIB."

The NEXT DAY, still in a SLIGHTLY WILTED condition, the GROOM directed his own wedding rehearsal, to which the pianist gave the "VAMP TILL READY" and then burst into LOHENGRIN. Then the FOLLOWING DAY the groom, still in a wilted condition, was married amongst great pomp and ceremony to the beautiful MERNA KENNEDY. The entire Warner Brothers lot turned out for a command performance, and afterwards some 200 guests attended the wedding reception for QUAIL and CHAMPAGNE. TOO PICTUREesque for words!

Changes in Foreign Stars Never Touch Garbo

By MICHAEL SHAW

The turnover in foreign stars in Hollywood is always interesting. They come and go as fashions change—sirens from Central Europe, fresh and healthy young girls from England, more sirens from Latin America—and only Sweden's great Garbo seems to hold her place, secure against threats from home or abroad.

We recently saw Lyda Roberti in a very small part in "Three-Cornered Moon." Polish Lyda didn't go so well in the movies. She was splendid in "Million-Dollar Legs," an insufficiently appreciated film if there ever was one, and she played the lead in one of Eddie Cantor's musicals. But the fans didn't seem to like her, and she will be seen no more for the present. What is Hollywood's loss is Broadway's gain, for Lyda is now in Jerome Kern's "Roberta," and helping to make it a grand hit.

Several other notable departures are apparently pending. Germany's Dorothea Wieck and the English-German Lilian Harvey are reported dissatisfied with their American vehicles and prepared to return to Europe.

Miss Wieck and Miss Harvey were something new in importations. Instead of being exotic and glamorous and all that, the one proved an actress of great dignity, and the other an ingenue of surpassing grace and charm.

More in the old tradition is Anna Sten, the one-time Russian peasant girl who has just scored such a tremendous trimph in Samuel Goldwyn's "Nana" that the New York critics are mentioning her in the same breath with Garbo.

Soon we are to have another newcomer ffom England. Madeleine Carroll is her name, and you may have seen her in "I Was a Spy," in the Pitt recently. Miss Carroll is a stunning beauty and an actress of promise. She will be a distinct addition to the British colony in Hollywood.

Steel Worker

Jack Holt is a steel worker in "Master of Men," first-run photoplay, incidentally, the first in months for the Enright, will be shown in that theater Saturday, with Fay Wray as feminine lead.

Quake Views On Screen

THE GLOBE TROTTER

First pictures of the earthquake that left a trail of ruin over India, with 15,000 killed and property damage reaching $40,000,000, are contained in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News. The cities of Mongyr and Muzzafarpur are shown with practically every building razed. The Globe Trotter describes the catastrophe.

Edward G. Bremer, St. Paul banker, describes for Hearst Metrotone News the details of his kidnaping, of his 23-day ordeal while held prisoner. Mr. Bremer paints a thrilling picture of the crime.

A magnificent picture shows New York Harbor ice-choked and the city gripped by the coldest weather ever recorded, 14 degrees below zero. The Berengaria noses up the bay and after she has docked guards are shown unloading from her strong box $25,000,000 in gold.

Exciting races for the Middle Atlantic skating championship come from Newburgh, N. Y. At Lake Placid, the champion Blue Birds retain their title in a mile-a-minute bobsled dash.

Blue blooded dogs compete in the Westminster Kennel Club show at Madison Square Garden, New York.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, with her girlhood friends, Mrs. Rumsey, of New York, and Mrs. Greenway, Congresswoman from Arizona, are seen attending the Junior League ball in Washington.

Mussolini parades with the Fascist militia in Rome on the eleventh anniversary of the founding of the organization.

Highlights of the air mail scandal come from Washington, with W. P. MacCracken, aeronautics secretary under former President Hoover, being arrested by Sergeant-at-Arms Jurney, of the Senate, on charges of contempt. Postmaster General Farley outlines how the Army will take over the air mail service.

NOTE—Owing to the necessity upon theater managers to arrange their programs in time schedule, it is possible some of the subjects of the above issue of Hearst Metrotone News may not be shown in your theater.

The Columnist Again Interviews Himself

THE LAST interview column having been received with no more than ten or twelve complaints, I am tempted to try the same stunt a second time. Here you have the columnist, such as he is, being interviewed by himself.

It all sounds pretty silly, and I guess that's exactly what it is. However, here we go again. Hold on:

QUESTION: Good morning, Mr. Hellinger. We've had some pretty cold weather here lately.

ANSWER: Your's telling me!

Q.—When we hit 14 below zero, we're certainly going some.

A.—You said it.

Q.—Are you going to Florida this Winter, sir?

A.—Positively not.

Q.—Why not?

A.—I had all the rain I wanted when I was out in California.

Q.—You feel pretty good today don't you?

A.—Why shouldn't I? I just wrote a song that I dedicated to the Colony Club, in Hollywood.

Q.—What did you call it?

A.—"There's An Old Spinning Wheel in the Parlor."

Q.—I don't understand that.

A.—You're not supposed to. But, by the way, did you hear that to compete with Garbo—Paramount is going to star Marlene Dietrich in a revival of its last year's picture success, "If I Had a Million?"

Q.—No. What are they going to call it now?

A.—"If I had a Mamoulian."

Q.—Let's get away from Hollywood for a moment. Did you read about those Paris riots last week?

A.—I certainly did.

Q.—What did you think was the real cause of all those people fighting?

A.—Somebody must have suggested seriously that they pay their debts.

Q.—Oh, come, come Mr. Hellinger. Don't hold grudges. You know the French will pay us in time.

A.—I'd hate to sit on a bicycle that long.

Q.—What's a bicycle got to do with it?

A.—Because it fits in with being taken for a ride.

Q.—Whom do you like in the big fight—Loughran or Carnera?

A.—My money rides on Loughran.

Q.—Why?

A.—Because all the experts pick Carnera.

Q.—That's a rotten reason.

A.—Well, it's as good a reason as it is a fight.

Q.—There may be something in that. By the way, Mr. Hellinger, you're a columnist, aren't you?

A.—There has been quite some discussion about that.

Q—We'll take the will for the deed. What I want to know is why none of the gossip columnists have as yet predicted a baby for Barbara Hutton Mdivani?

A.—Maybe she isn't heirminded.

Q.—That's possible. But suppose she had a baby. What do you think she'd call it?

A.—I can't answer for her. But I'd call it a Hutton-Tot.

Q.—That's pretty awful. Let's get back to Hollywood. Did you see the Anna Sten picture?

A.—Yowzuh.

Q.—What did you think of Anna's speaking voice?

A.—There's Goldwyn in them thar trills.

Q.—Were you mixed up in last week's taxicab strike in New York?

A.—No. All I did was to suggest a name for the strikers' headquarters.

Q.—And what was that?

A.—"The World's Fare."

Q.—You're getting worse and worse. I think I'll ask you some personal questions.

A.—Go ahead.

Q.—What type of razor do you use?

A.—I don't. My barber handles that.

Q.—How long have you been going to a barber?

A.—Ever since I was a little shaver.

Q.—Please, Mr. Hellinger! What's the idea of springing such ancient jokes?

A.—I'm practicing to be a radio star.

Q.—How are you getting along?

A.—Not so well. I can't remember back far enough.

Q.—It's getting late, sir—and I see you're not feeling so well. Let's finish this thing up with a song.

A.—Okay with me. Whom will we dedicate it to?

Q.—The Income Tax Department.

A.—Fine. Altogether now, boys. "Everything I Have Is Yours." . . . . .

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

When lawyers are unable to pick a flaw in an alibi it must be good. Harry Brown, manager of the Nixon, thought so after receiving a letter yesterday from Louis J. Bloch, Pittsburgh lawyer, who was prompted to write after seeing "Ten Minute Alibi" Monday night. Mr. Bloch qualifies as a flaw-picker in a double sense, for he is not only an alibi-scanner but an avid reader of mystery thrillers and decatif tales. He has felt that the "perfect crime" has never been committed, nor the "perfect alibi" framed. There must always be at least one fatal slip on the part of the criminal, else not even the author would be able to solve the crime. So, after the performance, Mr. Bloch and three companions who saw "Ten Minute Alibi" together held a huddle on the matter, but they couldn't even find a flea, let alone a flaw. You can imagine that Mr. Bloch was pretty mad, but he isn't giving up. He is looking for a published form of the play, and will study it word by word. He still thinks there ain't no perfect alibi, but says one used in the Nixon play would be good enough for any jury.

Harry Kalimine, general manager of Warner Theaters in the Pittsburgh zone, yesterday announced the appointment of Ben Kalmenson of the Warner-First National Film Exchange here as chief booker and buyer for Warner Brothers theaters in the local zone. Frank Damis, whom Mr. Kalmenson succeeds, goes to the New Jersey zone.

Another Warner item of interest concerns Ken Grimes, manager of the Warner house in Morgantown. Mr. Grimes will go to Washington Friday to receive the first honorary plaque given by the Quigley Award Committee. Thus Manager Grimes will become the first man in the United States to be honored as having conducted the best exploitation campaign in behalf of a picture shown in the theater under his management. The area of the competition is the entire country, and a similar award will be made monthly, Mr. Grimes having scored over all other house managers, anywhere, for the month of January. Good work, Ken!

Elizabeth McFadden, who wrote "Double Door," coming to the Nixon, Monday, February 26, was a student of the drama under Prof. George Pierce Baker when he was conducting his noted "English 47" class at Harvard, the seat of which is Cambridge, Mass., where she resided at the time. She is a graduate of Smith. She wrote "The Product of the Mill," which was awarded the Craig prize. It had a run of 59 performances in Boston. "Double Door" is a dramatic play, thought to have been suggested by the lives of the Wendell sisters, wealthy recluses of New York.

Corn-Hog Reduction Details Available

Information on the government corn-hog reduction plan today was made available by the Allegheny Agricultural Extension Association.

Director Henry R. Eby announced detailed requirements for farmers who agree to reduce their corn acreage 20 per cent and hog production 25 per cent this year. Eby said the farmer's proportion of the local administration costs will be deducted from the benefit payments.

Concert of Sacred Music Arranged

A concert of sacred music, mostly Negro spirituals, will be presented by the Schola Cantorum, South Hills Civic Choral Group, in the South Hills Harris Theater at 4 p. m. Sunday. It will be under direction of Prof. Charles Dana Beachler.

Guest artist will be Mark Meyers, violinist, concert master of the Pittsburgh String Symphony. The concert will be open to the public.

Alarm Calls Police To Downtown Bank

Central police sped to the Commonwealth Trust Company early today when the bank's burglar alarm sounded. Search of the bank disclosed nothing out of order. Police believed the alarm was touched off by a woman engaged in cleaning.

Contract Bridge :-: HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Successful Psychic Bidding

It is usually regarded as axiomatic in the bidding of hands at Contract Bridge that psychic Opening bids and psychic Doubles must be made only by players who are not vulnerable. This is considered doubly true when one side is vulnerable and the other is not. However, this is a rule which some very fine players honor in the breach more than in the observance. It is a dangerous departure from sound principles for a vulnerable player to venture a bid on a nearly trickless hand, but if it works it is apt to bring a very fine result, whether in Rubber or in Tournament play.

One of the most successful users of psychic bids is Mr. John P. Mattheys, who in the recent Grand Nationals of the United States Bridge Association, held at the Hotel Pierre in New York, was the partner of Mr. Walter Beinecke. One of Mr. Matthey's successful vulnerable psychics was ably seconded by Mr. Beinecke with the result that the non-vulnerable opponents failed to bid a game although either three notrump or five diamonds was easily makable.

The hand and bidding were:

East, Dealer.

East and West vulnerable.

	♠ Q J 9 ♡ A K 6 3 ◇ A Q 8 ♣ A 10 3
Mr. Mattheys ♠ A 10 7 5 4 ♡ 10 9 8 ◇ 3 2 ♣ 8 4 2	West North East South	Mr. Beinecke ♠ K ♡ Q 7 5 4 2 ◇ J 7 ♣ K Q J 9 5
	♠ 8 6 3 2 ♡ J ◇ K 10 9 6 5 4 ♣ 7 6

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	Pass	1 ♠ (1)	Double (2)
Pass	2 ◇	Pass	2 NT
Double (3)	3 ◇ (4)	Pass	Pass (5)
Pass

1—A very dangerous bid, indeed, but Mr. Mattheys knew that a Double of one spade could hardly be considered as for penalties and counted upon the vulnerability to temper the future bidding.

2—Of course, North is not deterred from making his correct call.

3—Mr. Beinecke ably seconds Mr. Mattheys' efforts. Of course, he is unaware of the psychic nature of the Opening bid and counts on establishing his club suit with either a heart or a spade re-entry.

4—South certainly should not make this bid. The decision as to the future bidding should rest with North. As a matter of fact, in view of the fact that he holds four spades and his partner has shown a spade stopper, he should be anxious to see the hand played at notrump to avoid the spade ruffs as East is probably marked with a singleton unless West's Opening was on a four-card suit. An alternative call for South would be a Redouble, but the best choice would be to pass and leave the decision to North.

5—North passes regretfully but he reasons that after all, in view of South's refusal to permit him to decide what should be done over the doubled two notrump, South's hand is probably trickless and may have no better diamond holding than four worthless cards, in which event the play for a part-score is probably best.

Of the fourteen North-South pairs who played this hand, two of them made four notrump, having bid three, ten made three notrump, having bid three, while the two remaining pairs played the hand at three diamonds, one making five and the other six. Obviously, whether or not West opens the bidding, nothing should deter North and South from reaching a game contact.

Tomorrow's Hand

If West is playing a contract of four hearts, after North has doubled for a Takeout a bid of one heart, how should he plan the play of the hand after the Opening lead of the King of spades, followed by the lead of the heart Ace and heart deuce?

South, Dealer.

Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ A K 5 2 ♡ A 2 ◇ K 9 5 4 ♣ 5 4 2
♠ J 7 ♡ K Q J 10 7 ◇ 10 6 ♣ A 10 8 7	West North East South	♠ Q 9 6 4 3 ♡ 8 5 3 ◇ A Q J 3 ♣ 6
	♠ 10 8 ♡ 9 6 4 ◇ 8 7 2 ♣ K Q J 9 3

The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

Tito Schipa.

Answering a sudden call in the absence of Lily Pons, Tito Schipa, tenor, and Louise Lerch, soprano, both singers from the roster of the Metropolitan Opera gave us a really musical evening at the Syria Mosque last night. Judging from their reception by the large audience, the substitution was a happy choice.

Mr. Lissfelt

Schipa is now probably the reigning Italian tenor in America. I have always believed that he is the most musical of all Italian singers we have before the public today. Certainly he is an excellent exponent of the bel canto. He resorts to no stage tricks nor vocal stunts to project his songs which he can safely choose from any school. He thinks musically rather than operatically, and so if there were those last night who expected only fireworks they must have been disappointed.

Instead Schipa gave us some fine old Italian songs and some modern ones, among them his own "Serenata Matutina" which recently won first honor in a contest in Naples. When he writes a song, it may not be profound music, but it is likeable and shows thought. His English group was well received, and the operatic airs were marked by those lovely nuances which only the best Italian singers know how to give their native music.

As encores Schipa sang a "Venetian Lullaby" of Sibella, his own "I Shall Return," the popular air from "Rigoletto" and several folk songs. The finest offering of the evening was the duet from "La Traviata" with Miss Lerch in which both singers gave their best, and it is a long while since we have had such a demonstration of fine operatic ensemble singing as during that music. It had to be repeated.

Louise Lerch has never before sung as well in Pitsburgh as she did last night. The voice was clearer and her musicianship was assured in every phrase. She is an excellent exponent of style in singing, and gave to her old Italian, her modern songs, and the German classics the thought worthy of the masters who wrote them.

Outstanding among her songs were the Handel "Care Selve," the Wolf-Ferrari "Rispetto," the "Marienlied" of Marx and decidedly the Strauss "Staendchen." As encores she gave Mimi's first air from "La Boheme" most sympathetic to her voice and style, Brahms' "Vergebliches Staendchen" and a charming English song, "Return from the Banquet," of Leoni.

We were indeed happy to note that May Beegle chose to invite Miss Lerch (now a Pittsburgh resident) to participate in this concert. It is a fine gesture towards our own artists.

Julian Huarte played accompaniments for Mr. Schipa, and Earl Mitchell for Miss Lerch.

REVELERS AT TWENTIETH CENTURY CLUB DRAMA DEPARTMENT'S ANNUAL MARDI GRAS LAST NIGHT AT THE CLUBHOUSE IN BAYARD STREET: SOCIETY WOMEN FRAMED IN WHITE PAPER-LACE VALENTINES THAT THEY CARRIED WITH THEM

In Mayfair

—With—

Patricia Pitt

More amusing than ever was the annual Mardi Gras of the drama department of the Twentieth Century Club last night in the clubhouse. And because it was Valentine's Eve, clever and pretty valentines predominated.

There were ever so many who wore colonial costumes and white curled wigs and held large frames of white paper lace before them so that they did, indeed, appear to be old fashioned lace Valentines.

Mrs. H. Allen Machesney, assistant chairman of the affair, represented "Love's Emblems" and what more appropriate than that she should carry a turtle dove and wear a red satin heart for a headdress? Her gown was of brilliant red satin with a huge bow and streamer of silver ribbon festooning the front of the skirt. Mrs. Frank A. Evans was the general chairman.

Even Rouge Carries Out Idea of Cross-Stitch

Two especially authentic costumes were the cross-stitch boy and girl—the boy was Mrs. Boyd Miller and the girl, Jean Henninger. Their costumes were embroidered in a huge cross-stitch design. Mrs. Miller carried a box of candy, and most intriguing of all, their eyebrow pencil and rouge was put on in tiny criss-cross to represent embroidery.

Lace valentines were Mrs. Kirkland W. Todd, Mrs. Richard D. Baker, Mrs. Hugh G. Nevin, Mrs. James Carruthers, Mrs. H. A. Power and Mrs. C. B. Monroe, and several others who were all in colonial dress with white wigs and two-by-two carried white lace frames, and danced a minuet later in the evening.

The three little pigs and the big bad wolf were there, but so closely masked were they that no one knew them, and there were two Mae Wests swaggering with a "why'ncha c'mup sometime?" and they were Mrs. George Macbeth and Mrs. Charles L. Pierce in much be-plumed hats and Mrs. Macbeth wore black satin with rhinestones.

Crepe Paper Garbs Little Girls in Blue

The "two little girls in blue" were Bettie Dunlap and Bettie Guiler, whose costumes were of crepe paper—blue ruffled skirts, white paper pantalettes, poke bonnets of the paper with red ribbon streamers, and even diminutive muffs of crepe paper to which were pinned red and yellow flowers.

Mrs. S. Brainard West was "say it with flowers" in a ruffled yellow lace dress over pink and she carried a heart-shaped frame of flowers over her head.

Snappy cadets were Louise Baton, Margaret Rowe, Florence Willock and Mrs. J. Sidney Hammond, who were really the four marshals of the parade, in blue satin uniforms.

Mardi Gras Judges Costumed as Owls

Mrs. F. S. Morris was a French chef, complete with wooden salad spoon and cork mustache, and Mrs. M. E. V. Williams was a Spanish dancer. Mrs. Walter Carroll was a lace valentine. The judges, by the way, were costumed as owls.

Mrs. Bess Dunlap surprised everyone by being Dan Cupid's messenger instead of just a postman. Miss Marian Cowan was a very modern Valentine, one of cellophane, in fact, with her hat and costume of red and white cellophane and lace, and Mrs. John S. Wilson was a demure eighteenth century Valentine in white sprigged satin.

Mrs. Edward E. McCoy was a pink and white Valentine, wearing dotted pink tulle and silk and carrying a frame of white paper lace. And there were ever and ever so many more, who made up the grand march, whose costumes defy description.

Pittsburghers to Attend Smith Alumnae Meeting

Off for Northampton this weekend will be Mrs. H. F. Thomas and Gwendolin Niemann. They'll atend the twentieth mid-winter meeting of the Smith College Alumnae Council, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Both are members of the Pittsburgh Smith College Club.

Mrs. George Thomas Moses, of Amberson avenue, gave a farewell party recently in her home for her father and mothen-in-law, the Thomases Moseses, of the Schenley Apartments, who are leaving for Florida for the remainder of the winter.

Informal, Friendly Air Prevails at Concert

There was a phenomena last night in huge Syria Mosque—between the applauding audience and the artists, Tito Schipa and Louise Lerch, substituting for Lily Pons, there was a current of as informal and friendly a feeling such as one finds at small, intimate musical affairs. Everyone was generous—the artists with their encores, the audience with applause.

Tito Schipa's singing is well-known, but Louise Lerch, who is now married and living in Pittsburgh, had been heard by comparatively few Pittsburghers.

Among those talking over the concert with friends during intermission were William Frew, his mother, Mrs. William N. Frew, and Virginia Frew Wright. Virginia was in robin's egg blue crepe, over which she wore a striking cape of white ermine.

Mrs. D. A. Clemson, among the most enthusiastic, wore an interesting gown of black, woven with fine diagonal white lines. Mrs. Harold J. Dorrance was there with her daughter, Eloise; Mrs. Joseph H. Bialas in black velvet, Mrs. Hugh Campbell Shaw, the H. Vaughan Blaxters, the Edwin Rheas.

Margaret Phillips was in a navy blue crepe gown with a bodice of Alice-blue satin. With her was her fiance, A. Craig Succop. Mrs. John W. Lawrence, the A. Rex Flinns, Mrs. A. S. F. Keister, Mrs. Jacob S. Payton, Mrs. John E. Nelson, Peggy Nelson, Dr. and Mrs. Alexander Silverman and Mrs. Enoch Rauh were there.

Juliet Hillman was there Evelyn Freeman in sapphire blue crepe with slits in the long sleeves, Mary Rust, Madeleine McClintock.

Gossipy Chat

By NANCY JANE

Some of the folks at the preview of the Junior League's third art show were startled to hear Mrs. W. McCook Reed greet Henry Scott, Jr., and Walter Hovey, of the University of Pittsburgh art department, with

"Have you recovered from the hanging?"

The hanging refered to was the hanging of the pictures. The men are among the advisors of the Junior League's arts and interests committee, and helped hang the exhibit.

This exhibit, portraits of Nineteenth Century Pittsburghers, is now open to the public it closes March 3) in the Junior League headquarters, Clark Building.

Here's a chance for aspiring playwrights. The Golden Triangle Players, who've been giving a series of children's plays this winter at the Twentieth Century Club, will now welcome scripts for next winter's series of plays—to be given, of course, for children.

Marion Black, sub-deb, who has been doing publicity for the Players, tells me that the plays must entertain, and still have a serious touch. Jack Wolley, 4 Roseland terrace, the director, will receive your scripts.

PINCH-HITTING SOUTHWARD

By PRUNELLA WOOD

SUPPOSE YOU are one of the lucky ones who will get a mid-winter holiday, though short, far to the South. Don't let the prospects of an adequate wardrobe dim your pleasure—it will be easy. Have one good "dressmaker" frock for the coolish day when you tour for luncheon; have one swell, arresting sports costume for the races; and fill up the trunk with nothing else but beach clothes, evening gowns, and a tub frock or two.

Not all the clothes one sees in Palm Beach or Miami are airy-fairy models. There are lots of times when a tailored frock of jewel-toned silk is the heart's desire. And evening gowns may be very diaphonous or frankly the sort of gown that one would wear on the identical date to step out into city life up north.

It is such items as your hats, shoes, bags and scarfs which will transform an average wardrobe into one which looks very sunny playground.

Above are shown two perfect costumes for a complete daytime wardrobe—dressy and spectator sports, verging on the formal. Left, sheer black flat crepe with a ruched apron and a back split. Organza fluttings at neck and wrist. Right, a knitted two-piece model of brown and tan with edgings of hunter's green. The lacing and pom poms are white worsted. Note the pinched waistline.

Mrs. J. R. Pierpoint Wins Century Drama Prize

Mrs. J. R. Pierpoint won first prize in the Twentieth Century Club's annual play writing contest. Her play is "There Ought to Be a Law." Mrs. S. Brainard West's "Sweet and Simple" took second prize, and Mrs. William J. Powell's "Mrs. Green Wants Dramatics," third prize.

Honorable mention was given for two plays to Mrs. Kirkland Wiley Todd, who walked away all three prizes last year. Miss Sophie Keenan also won an honorable mention in this year's contest.

Mrs. William P. Witherow, chairman of the music and art committee of the Twentieth Century Club, will be assisted tomorrow afternoon by Mrs. Norman McLeod, Mrs. Otto Gaub, Mrs. Jacob Simpson Payton and Mrs. George J. Willock. Mrs. Thomas H. Eddy, hostess for the tea, will have Mrs. J. Peter Williams, Mrs. Simon T. Patterson, Mrs. J. R. McCune, Jr., Mrs. Maynard Teall and Mrs. Robert J. Young as her aides.

The occasion is the two-piano recital by Frances Hall and Rudolph Gruen.

Upton Close Will Speak At Friday Morning Club About Asia

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Joseph Washington Hall (Upton Close) is to tell the Friday Morning Club this week "What Is Coming Out of Asia for Us." Mr. Close, as he is booked, comes back to the club by popular demand, having spoken twice before the group in past sessions.

It was while conducting intelligence work for the United States in the invaded Shantung Province, China, that Mr. Hall acquired his nom de guerre "Upton Close."

Mr. Close went to China as a secret investigator in the American diplomatic service during the World War. From councilor to the student revolution which saved China's being sold by traders, Mr. Close became editor of the Peking Daily, the paper which is descended from the oldest newspaper in the world, that published in 875.

He left the Daily to engage in relief activities during the terrible famine of 1920. His findings published throughout the world under the now famous title, "Where the Mountains Walked," brought the author election to the Explorers' Club.

He served as chief of foreign affairs on the staff of Gen. Wu, then dictator of China. Typhoid fever sent him home to America and he became lecturer in the oriental department of the University of Washington. He recently returned from Asia where he had been studying the problems of the peoples.

Epworthians to Give Benefit for Children

The next production of the Epworthian Players is to be "The Passing of the Third Floor Back" by Jerome K. Jerome.

This ambitious production is to be staged in the South Hills High School auditorium on April 5 and in Westinghouse High School on April 6 under the auspices of the entire Pittsburgh area of Methodist Episcopal Church for the benefit of the Baker Fresh Air Farm for Underprivileged Children.

Invitations have been sent out by the Congress of Clubs for a reception to be given at Congress House next Wednesday from 2 until 4 o'clock in honor of the new nembers of the organization. A program of entertainment will be given at 3 o'clock.

Jewish Society Giving Bridge On Sunday

Delta Phi Epsilon, National Jewish Women's fraternity at the University of Pittsburgh, is giving a bentfit bridge on Sunday in the Rodef Shalom Temple annex, Devonshire street, beginning at 2:30 o'clock.

Every chapter of the fraternity is conducting a national, city-wide campaign to obtain funds for the National Home for Jewish Children, Denver, Col. Most of the proceeds will be used in the consumptive wards, and the rest for general hospital equipment.

Miss Rose Honig is chairman of the bridge on Sunday, and on her committee are Miss Sarah Hochhauser, chairman of prizes; Miss Nellie Jonas and Miss Ruth Lazirovitz, tickets; Miss Esther Simons, correspondence; Miss Beatrice Gelbman, tables and reservations, and Miss Sarah Zeman, refreshments.

* * *

Dr. E. G. Kuhlman will speak on "Interplay of Habits and Health in Children" at the February meeting of the James E. Rogers Parent-Teacher Association tomorrow afternoon.

Two Peabody High School students, Miss Elizabeth Melnick, violinist, and Miss Evalina Palmieri, pianist, will give the musical part of the program.

* * *

Mrs. Frank F. Corby, dramatic revelator, is giving part of today's program for the Edgewood Woman's Club in the Edgewood Club. She is accompanied in her musical readings by her daughter, Mrs. Carl Cunderman. Music is by Mrs. P. L. Crittenden.

Who would ever have expected to learn a lesson about makeup from the art of oil painting! And yet we've just garnered in some knowledge regarding evening makeup . . . taken from this very source! For according to a cosmetic authority in town—

No artist would think of "doing" an oil portrait with but ONE color. And still, we will and DO use but one shade of powder for evening! Which, as this authority points out, is far from flattering under electric lights.

One of the interesting things about the truth of this being that powder for evening, when made up of the following shades—turquoise, mauve, rose-pink, peach, and white—is far more attractive than any one of these evening shades . . . or than any blend of them. We watched them being mixed (if you could call it that) and saw that they were merely tossed about a bit, not enough to really blend them evenly, but enough to leave them slightly streaky with an irridescent effect when smoothed out.

AND THIS is the secret of the most charming evening makeup—a luminous iridescence which is achieved only through this use of powder. In other words, this way one is able to achieve the high-lights which are present in oil paintings. And while, of course, you're wondering just now these sundry shades will look on your skin if observed closely . . . have no fear. Under a microscope, they show up in their various colorings . . . but tchuk! tchuk! . . . who goes to a ball with a microscope under an arm?

SO with our powder puff a medley of turquoise, pink, and purple . . . we're dashing blithely off in search of more startling truths about this business of beauty being "skin deep!"

SPEAK UP, SISTERS!

:-: Glances Into the Realms of Domesticity and Romance :-:

By MARION BRUNOT

Happiness Available if We Strive for It

Troubles are yours. They have come thick and fast, and are getting the better of you.

You don't like to speak right out loud about them. Maybe it is your pride. Or it may be your shame. Anyhow you're up against it.

It may be a love affair. Or a business one. Or the folks at home.

Or a girl friend. Or one whom you thought was a friend.

Anyhow, it is just too bad.

"There goes Miss Brunot," you say. "What does she know about my corner of the world?"

But you're wrong there. Chances are I've had the same trouble which is gnawing at your heart strings. And it may be far enough in perspective now, for me to see the right side of it for you.

Ups and downs. They come to us all. Dark clouds and sunny days. And my Dutch and Irish ancestors have given me enough backbone to weather most of them.

It's life we all have to meet, sister.

FRIENDS FORGET

I know what it is to have friends forget you are alive. To have both men and women turn their backs when I needed them most. At times I've almost lost belief in God.

But then the wind shifted. It fell, and there was a calm. And I was glad.

No, I've never gone under water. My mother used to say:

"Well, as long as you stay above water!"

And do you do that? Is there still time for it?

There is a place for you somewhere. There is a path leading right out into the open.

You are young. You have health. You're richer than John D. Rockefeller. He has a big income, but a bad stomach.

You are better off than that pretty divorcee who has been granted big alimony. She has been embittered. And bitterness of mind is worse than an emptiness under the belt.

In a recent newspaper we read of the death of a great man here in Pittsburgh. He was a choirmaster, and wore old clothes, ones that were hand-me-downs. But he sang his way into people's hearts, because he knew humanity, and was always ready to help. He was rich inside. And that is what counts. Human qualities, he had. A heart of gold that would never suffer from changing value in currency.

LAUNDRESS DISCOURAGED

I have several letters here.

Dear Miss Brunot:

I am a poor young woman who has had to do laundry work. I have customers who send me their fine clothes, but I never see any further than their back doors, where I often go with my finished work.

Often I wonder what it would be like to be all dolled up underneath like these people are. There is one lace trimmed piece I have done time and again, and I've hugged it to my heart more than once. I'd love to have it, if it was just to lay away to be buried in.

But I feel I shall never have anything like it. Every cent I make has to go for soap powder, and rent, and electricity. Sometimes I think it isn't worth the struggle. There's nothing for me now but hot irons and soap suds. Please help me.

AGNES.

Poor Agnes, I so hope I can help you. Within all women who are real women, there is a love of finery. A love of the perishable things. If it is just a pot of growing flowers. If it is just a piece of fine glass. Romance is down deep in our hearts. And when it dies, we might as well be in a six-foot hole in the ground. It isn't pleasant to bend over a tub and to blister hands with hot irons. But washing clothes and ironing them is better than standing in a bread line.

I met a young girl on Dithridge street the coldest day this January, and she was looking for work. Trudging from door to door, wanting to find an honest living for herself. Her face was blue with the cold, and her body was shivering in an old and all too thin coat. How about that, Agnes?

You say you haven't any pennies after your just bills are settled. Let us budget a little. Why don't you visit soap sales? Ask that renting agent to ease up on you just a few cents. Watch the electric meter as carefully as you watch the lace frills on your ironing board. And see if you don't have something left. Miracles may happen even in 1934.

And then, for goodness sake, use it on pleasure. Go to a movies. But some fluffyruffles!

Famished hearts kill some girls almost as rapidly as does a hollow chest.

GIRL EMBARRASSED

Dear Miss Brunot:

I am too big for my age. And when I walk down the street where I live, the men laugh at me. They say: "There goes a barrel," and they say: "How'd you like that armful?"

I'm so ashamed I don't like to go out. What shall I do?

MABEL.

I am sympathetic with you, Mable, for I was once a big girl for my age. And I did so want to wear longer dresses. I blushed every time the boys looked at me, and I imagined they were looking oftener than they did.

The thing to do, Mabel, is to walk past these rude fellows as if you never heard a word they are saying. They will soon quit deriding you, for they want an audience. Ask the other girls on the street what they say to them. That will ease your pain. For you will find out they razz them, too.

Girls who mature early always have their troubles. Boys think them wiser than they are. But hold your head high, and do what you think is right, and in time you will look back at it all, and be glad.

Widows and Widowers Make Happy Homes, Fay King Thinks

HOW AM I EVER GOING TO RAISE YOU POOR MOTHERLESS LITTLE YOUNGSTERS!
WHAT ARE WE EVER GOING TO DO NOW WITHOUT DADDY!
WELL, MY DEAR, WE'VE RAISED THE CHILDREN AND SEEN THEM SETTLED IN LIFE!
YES, AND I FEEL THAT YOUR DEAR MARY, AND MY GOOD GEORGE BOTH KNOW AND ARE PLEASED TOO!
FAY-KING

By FAY KING

I think it is a blessed fate, indeed, which brings together a woman who has lost the husband she loved, and a man who has lost the wife he loved, and when these two marry and make a happy home for their half-orphaned ones.

Such a marriage is not founded in the rosy romance of youth, but in a deeper sentiment, that of understanding and unselfish devotion.

The woman becomes a loved and devoted mother to his little motherless ones and he in turn a loved and kind father to her little children.

And both can understand and freely talk together of the dear ones who are gone. Such a worthy good marriage seems to me nobler than a life devoted to remembrance—alone!

Avis Explains Reason for Pretended Swoon

What would Avis Arlen do next? This was the query which beat insistently upon my brain as Katherine finished stripping her pretense of a swoon from her in pungent, forceful phrases.

But even I, used to her effrontery, was surprised at her answer to Katherine's indictment.

"Of course I pretended to faint," she said, "and if you hadn't been a trained nurse no one would have found out."

"Don't be too sure of that, little one," Harry Underwood drawled. "Me and my frau, we're also used to fakes of all kinds. I was pretty sure you were pulling a fast one when you keeled over against me, but I always give a pretty girl the benefit of the doubt. But now the next question is 'Where do we go from here?'"

"Not quite the next," I put in softly. "Why did you do this, Avis?"

"Because you wanted me to," was her reply, and Harry Underwood chuckled at my astonished face. "You practically told me to."

"You will have to explain that, Avis," I told her coldly. "I surely never told you to pretend to swoon at the close of the wedding, and risk an unpleasant scene."

WEAK EXPLANATION

"But you told me I was not to go near Mary or Noel to congratulate them or anything, so I didn't know how else to manage it. I didn't want just to stay away without any excuse, it would look so awkward."

"So you chose the alternative of staging a swoon," Lillian said caustically. "It won't wash, that one. Come again! Or, rather, figure up something else. For, unfortunately for your little plan, no one in the living room, not even your mother, dreams that you have fainted."

She put her hands over her face with a swift, dramatic gesture.

"Oh, you are all against me!" she sobbed. "I want my mother."

"You mean, you are against everybody else," Lillian retorted coolly. "You're like that famous private who declared that 'everybody in the company is out of step but me.' And as for your wanting your mother, we can have her here in a jiffy. But first, you'd better fix up something plausible to tell her. You surely do not wish to alarm her by telling her falsely that you have just been brought out of a swoon. She's too good a mother to you to rate that anxiety."

AVIS SPITEFUL

Avis took her hands from her face and I saw, as I suspected, that she was perfectly dry-eyed.

"I—I did not think of that," she faltered. "She would worry at that. But what shall I tell her?"

"Just tell her that you have had a headache all the morning," Katherine said briskly, "and that you suddenly felt dizzy and came out here. I'll stay here with you while the rest go back to the living room. Mrs. Graham will tell her where you are, and you can ask your mother or anyone else to take your best wishes to the bride and groom. They're in such a daze of happiness they won't know who has wished them well and who hasn't."

"Well, I don't think No-el looked particularly happy," Avis said spitefully. "He looked to me more like a man going to his execution than to his wedding."

GARDEN SCENE — PATTERN 639

This Picture Is Fun to Do

This quaint garden scene is as decorative as it is fun to do. The cottage surrounded by flowers is set off when these are done in gay wools in all the simple stitches. And the work goes so quickly, for French knots and lazy-daisy stitches form the flowers. This lovely picture measures 9½x12 inches and is a companion piece to the garden scene, Pattern 568.

Pattern 639 comes to you with a transfer pattern of the picture; a color key showing exactly where each color is to be put, and directions for making the picture.

Send 10 cents for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

Household Hints

Hydrogen peroxide is an effective bleach, not harmful to most fabrics. It can be used in various concentrations, depending on the amount of bleaching required. One pint to a gallon of water is an average quantity. A teaspoon of concentrated ammonia solution or of sodium perborate added to each gallon of the solution makes the action stronger.

Quantities of hot water and soapsuds are required for cleaning the ice box. Wash well in hot water to which soda has been added, using one tablespoon of soda for each quart of water required. Wipe dry with a soft cloth and let the box air for half an hour before adding the ice or turning on the power, if you have a mechanical refrigerator.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

"Myxedema" An Unusual Condition

Perhaps no other branch of medical science has advanced as rapidly as that known as "endocrinology." This is the study of the "endocrine glands" of the body. There are several of these so-called ductless glands, the most familiar being the thyroid gland.

Dr. Copeland

Most of us are familiar with enlargement of the thyroid gland, producing what is known as "goiter." We may be familiar, too, with other disturbances due to an increased secretion of the thyroid substance. But few realize that certain important changes occur within the body when there is a decrease in the secretion of the thyroid gland.

This decrease or deficiency of the gland secretion leads to an unusual condition known as "myxedema." This is a disturbance found in adult life, but is identical with an affliction occasionally seen in infants and known as "cretinism."

Though myxedema may be found in males, it is more common in women, especially those beyond 40 years of age. The actual cause of the disease has never been discovered, but its ill effects are attributed to an actual decrease in glandular substance of the thyroid gland. Unfortunately, the symptoms are often vague and misleading. For this reason, the disturbance is frequently overlooked or disregarded.

The victim of this strange and disagreeable disease has a dry and scaly skin. The hair becomes coarse and brittle and rapidly falls out. Though the patient may not actually gain weight, his appearance is deceiving and he seems to have added to his weight. This can be explained by a swelling of the skin of the face and legs.

Not so long ago I told you about a special test known as the "basal metabolism test." You will recall that this enables the physician accurately to determine that there are disturbances of the thyroid and other internal glands. When myxedema is suspected, the diagnosis can be confirmed only by a basal metabolic rate being markedly decreased. It gives evidence of deficiency of function in the thyroid gland.

Tremendous advances have been made in the treatment of this disease. It was only a short time ago that the sufferer could be offered any avenue of escape or beneficial form of treatment. Today as a result of our better understanding of the thyroid gland and its action it is possible to combat and cure this affliction.

This is accomplished by the administration of thyroid extract. This is made from the thyroid glands of animals. It is a powerful medicine, stimulating the thyroid and other glands. But since it increases the work of the heart, it is imperative that it be given only under the supervision of a physician.

Announcing Engagement

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please give me the correct procedure for letting my friends and relatives know about my engagement? A.

When you have decided on the date on which you wish to make your announcement, it is gracious of you to go to see your close relatives and tell them of your engagement. And you would probably want to go to see your close friends to tell them also by word of mouth. Those who live too far away for this direct giving-of-the-news you would write to, charming little notes about the happy news and the date on which you plan to "tell the world" about it. You would, of course, ask them not to tell until the date of announcement.

This is all you need to do. Then, when the date comes, you wear your ring . . . and the news is out generally. But if you wish, your mother and father may send an announcement to the newspapers. And also if you wish, there may be some kind of announcement party, but this isn't necessary. You do not send formal announcement cards, for these are not in good taste.

Complete the Gift

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I just bought a leather key case for a boy friend of mine. Attached to one of the key holders is an identification tag of metal with a number on it. Also inclosed in the case is a card with directions to send name, address and tag number to a distant state where the firm which makes the product is located, and where they have a special department for this purpose.

Will you please tell me which is the proper thing to do . . . should I sent this card away, or is it the young man's place to send it? (The chances are he'll neglect to send it!) S.

It would, I think, be a pleasant and generous thing for you to complete your gift by registering the number with the manufacturer. And I'm sure that your friend will be grateful for your thoughtfulness!

Junior Patrol

We read a mighty interesting book the other day, fellows!

It was named "Human Geography" and it explained very plainly and carefully how the world helps man and what the relations are between men and the world.

For instance, it explained that New York is a great port because it is well equipped with railroad lines on a land-located bay, where many hundreds of ships can dock. And that it is on the shore of a country which is very rich and prosperous, and which manufactures and produces many things.

Pittsburgh is a great city, too, for other good reasons. It stands between two big rivers, right where a third begins, so that boats can carry goods cheaply up and down the rivers. It is near great fields of coal, so that iron ore can be carried here, and melted cheaply. Of course, there are many other reasons, too. Write and tell us some more good reasons.

Donald Magill, of 2103 Highland avenue, New Castle, Pa., writes to say that he and his patrol are going to write us a letter every two weeks. In his letter today, he sends two more pledges besides his own.

Marguerite Garbarino, of Cadogan, Pa., writes this note:

"This ticket is for five new members. We are going to start a Junior Patrol in our town. This town is only a mining town and we would like to have something to do so I thought of this. So I ask you kindly to send us four memberships. We are going to get more when we get our club house worries over."

Sure thing, Marguerite. And mightly glad to have you and your friends members today. Guess you have plans for having a good time. Some clubs have a book exchange, and trade their books so that all the members of a club have lots to read—magazines and papers, too. Making scrap books with magazines and papers is lots of fun, too. You cut out pictures, poems, jokes, short stories, and anything that you want to save and keep and paste it all in a big blank book. You can make the book by taking sheets of blank paper and clipping them together, or tying them together with red or blue ribbon.

And when it's better weather out of doors, we hope you will play jacks, and have a club house, swing and doll nursery, where you can play school, too.

Smart Ensemble for Young Fashionables

Pattern 1764

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

Here's a stunning ensemble for youngsters, who believe, as we do, that they should wear clothes with real "grown-up" chic. That chic is found here in the revers and perked up sleeves of the jacket—and the smart use of contrast. And the frock beneath is just as attractive. A gay note of color is introduced at the neckline with a pert ribbon bow. The jacket may be lined with self fabric or contrast. Choose for it sheer wool or novelty cotton—or combine both. This pattern includes a new instructor—the sewing guide to success.

Pattern 1764 is available in sizes 4, 6, 8, 10 and 12. Size 6 takes 2¼ yards 36-inch fabric and 1⅝ yards contrasting.

Send 15 CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

THE NEW SPRING, 1934 EDITION OF THE PATTERN BOOK features all the best spring styles for adults and children. Send for your copy of this interesting, helpful book and be chic this spring. PRICE OF BOOK 15 CENTS. BOOK AND PATTERN TOGETHER 25 CENTS.

ASSASSINS PLAY RESCUERS' ROLE ON DEVIL'S ISLAND

Gold Hunting Family Sings Praises of Convicts

lowed the call of gold into all the big camps for the past 15 years; Timmins, Kirkland Lake, Flin Flon, Great Bear and Eldorado.

Boat Builders in Florida

Pushing off from Edmonton, where Jeanette and Madeline were born, the brothers rolled into the Great Bear fields a few years ago and cleaned up $20,000. That was glorious, but whispers crept up to the Arctic circle about a new boom: bigger and better than ever. The Florida land boom. The Drons sold up their Edmonton home and streaked for Tampa, where their first flyers in real estate were squibs. So they quit land and started building boats. When they had stacked $25,000 away they hiked back to Montreal, where the brothers had been born, and then on to France.

There they heard fabulous tales of great gold finds in the rivers of French Guiana.

Gold was in the muck of the river beds they heard, great heavy flakes of gold. So away they sailed for the "Land of Do Without."

In Cayenne they were dismayed. There were no roads, no trails, no map of the interior. There might be gold there, but how to get it was the problem. They had to live in the convent while mapping their plans. At last they rounded up machinery and gear, got a few native guides and went into the bad lands. That trip was a $5,000 failure. They found no gold, but one morning the brothers woke with vampire bats clinging drunkenly to their faces. The squeaky blood drinkers were pie-eyed with blood and fell flippety-flop to the ground. The brothers, feeble and weak, had to stagger back to Cayenne, but on the way their faces continued to ooze. The vampires in their mad sucking for warm blood had slit the veins.

Undismayed the brothers restocked their boat and pushed up a different branch of the river, but again their efforts were wasted and they found neither gold nor food.

Find Vein

But on a third try—a try in which they were twice attacked by huge jaguars—they found a golden vein wiggling into the side of a hill like a great mottled python. They crushed some of this by hand, washed it in the river and started to stake their claims.

There was just a few hundred dollars left. Most of this was given to Mrs. Dron and the daughters. With the balance the brothers loaded their boat with dried fish and vegetables, bully beef, salt, nets to keep off the vampires, snake medicine and hand drills. Louis explained:

"We knew it was now or never. We knew, too, it was the bad season for rain and animals, but we had to make a try. The rivers were high at flood. Deep red in color and treacherous for whirlpools. We had to make camp by nightfall. But the boat, heavily loaded, couldn't make headway against the current. Night caught us.

"Those vampire bats came down by the dozen and we had to keep swishing them off our ankles and necks. Then a troop of howling monkeys came. Man if you've never heard a howling baboon you have heard nothing. Lions are light voiced sopranos compared to those big baboons.

"We came to a branch of the river and the current twisted us right around like a match, the engine coughed and we were left helplessly drifting toward a great fall. We swung our paddles and managed to get in by the shore. Away ahead we could hear somebody yahooing in the jungle so we headed that way and spotted a light. As we swung in toward it two men with knives leaped into the stream and grabbed the boat."

They exclaimed:

"Oh, you are not guards."

"No, we're miners."

"And your engine is broken down?"

"Hopelessly, we're stranded."

"You must stop here then; there is a waterfall ahead."

Louis continued:

"We looked around. There were 12 escaped men there around a fire. They were very hungry and wet. Their striped uniforms were in tatters. They were trying to eat boiled bananas and bread fruit."

"The convicts said:

"'You must stay with us. You must put your supplies in the trees. The river is rising higher and higher.'"

"The 12 men lifted out our bags of fish and potatoes and hard biscuits. One of them put our rifle in the tree. 'Nice gun. We'd like a gun like that.' We expected, of course, that would be the last we'd see of either gun or supplies.

'Pass Friend'

"But the men invited us to eat what meager supplies of food they had. We insisted on chipping in with our own bit, but they wouldn't let us. We couldn't puzzle that out, but we ate with them and slept with them. They were trying to make their break for Brazil right through the jungle. Some of them were terribly fevered, others were exhausted.

"They could have seized our boat, which had a motor, and kept our rations and gun. Instead of that they guided us out next morning, helped us portage the boat through rapids and down the bank where the falls were and, for all practical purposes, they saved our lives.

"I never saw or heard of those men again, but the chances are that every last one of them perished out there in the jungle?"

I asked:

"And what about you, did you find the pot of gold?"

"No. For us it was failure. Hard, hard work. We found the vein, yes. A fine fat vein. We had it staked now and started crushing. What gold we got at first was just about enough to meet our expenses.

"The vein went deeper and richer all the way. We had to cut trees to shore up our tunnels. At 110 in the shade we had to crush our own ore by hand. Yet we made a little money. Then one day Marcel was in the tunnel. I heard him yell: 'Louis, quick, quick; she's sliding.'

"I rushed in and grabbed what little machinery we could get and hurried out quickly. The timbers commenced to give under a load of muck and ooze. We had a mad run for it right to the river. The whole top of the hill slid down and crushed our mine into nothingness and—well, I guess that's that. We've never been back, yet we know the gold is there."

"Are you broke?"

"Practically. We lost our $10,000. We lost $2,000 we had kept in Tampa to get out of this place if things went blooey, and here we are."

Marcel put in:

"Not downhearted. We have now a charcoal business and we export some mahogany. All the timber men who cut and trim the mahogany are convicts. You must come to the camp."

$1 a Day Men

I did go. We were away off, miles from anywhere with murderers in the jungle. The convicts were paid a dollar a day. It seemed a bit fantastic out there in the blue with men whose reputation was about eight degrees worse than torch killers. But they sang and smoked at their work and seemed, in a dumb bovine sort of way, to be enjoying life.

I asked Madeleine, the belle of Devil's Island:

"How do you like being here among assassins while your men folks are away?"

"Oh, that's nothing. Nothing at all. You get used to it. We have convicts about the house all the time. Why you can get a first-class Paris chef to do your cooking for about a dollar a week. But I'd give . . . Oh I'd give anything; just anything, to go window shopping once more. I wouldn't want to buy anything. I'd be satisfied just to go and see the beautiful things in the windows in Montreal or Edmonton or Paris. But here we are."

"But aren't you a bit terrified walking about at night with these convicts all around you?"

Miss Dorn exclaimed:

"Nonsense! Why these men are gentle as lambs. They wouldn't harm you. It's my bet that Cayenne, capital of the convict colony, has less crime than any other city, town or village in the entire world. The records prove it. The police force has just been cut from 32 to 17 men. Nobody out here ever heard of a crime wave."

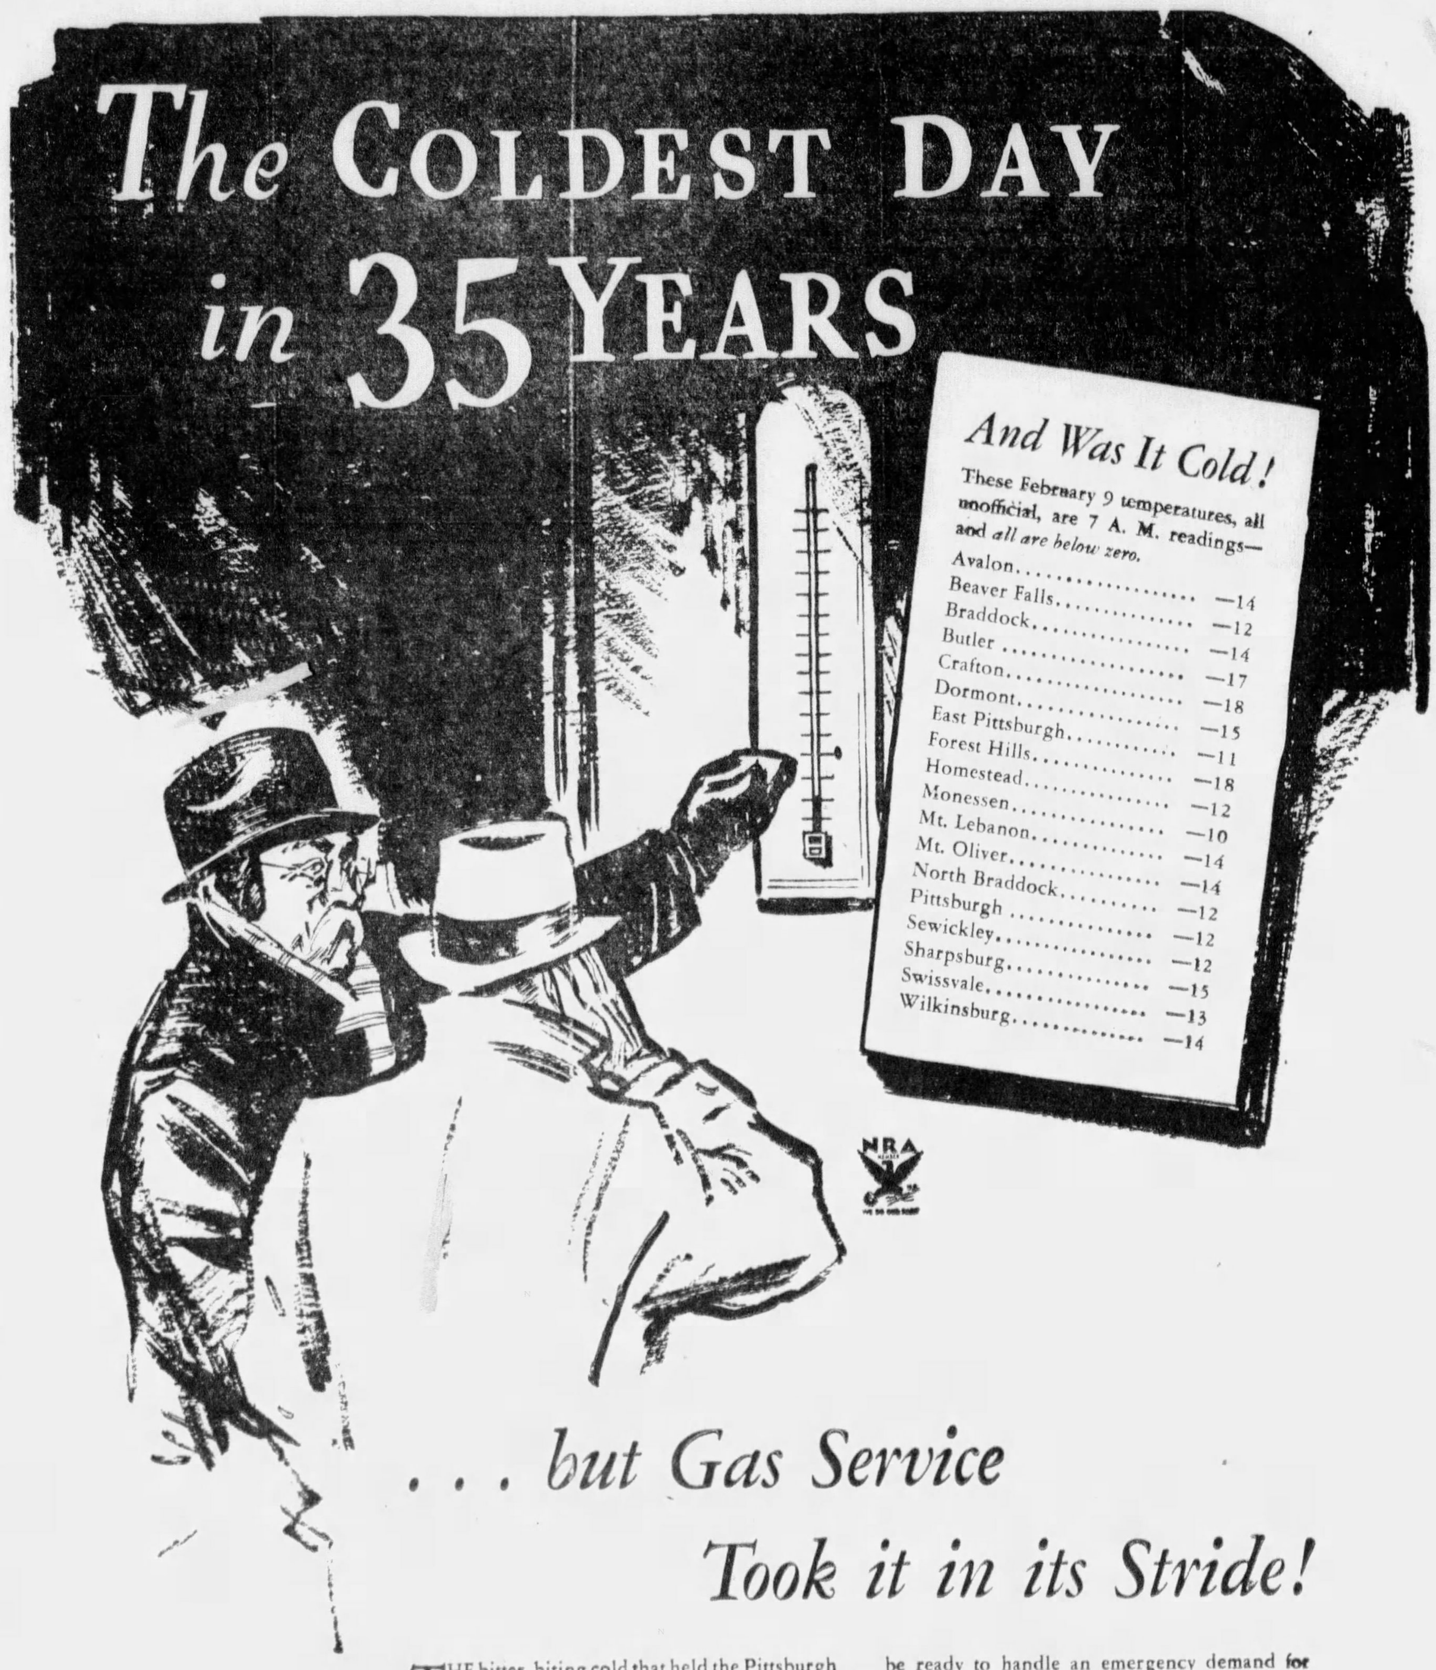
The COLDEST DAY in 35 YEARS



. . . but Gas Service Took it in its Stride!

THE bitter, biting cold that held the Pittsburgh District in its icy grip last Thursday and Friday broke a 35 year record. It froze up countless automobiles, reduced automobile and pedestrian traffic to a minimum, crippled traffic on the rivers, and of course played havoc with business generally.

But Gas Service took this record-breaking cold spell in its stride. Normal Gas Service was maintained without interruption and the tremendously increased demand for Gas was handled so efficiently and so matter-of-factly that the average user of gas never gave it a thought. And of course that's as it should be.

But did you ever stop to realize what it means to be ready to handle an emergency demand for Gas such as last week's sudden and violent drop in temperature brought about?

It means, really, that the whole supply and transmission system of the Gas Company—wells, pipe lines, compressor stations, transmission lines and other equipment—must be geared up to a demand which may reach its peak only once in 35 years.

That kind of Gas Service doesn't just happen. It's a definite part of a Service Program which has required millions of dollars of investment in equipment, properties and personnel to the end that Natural Gas shall have full and fair claim to be known as the ideal fuel for every heating purpose.

PLAYER DICKER FAILS, SWETONIC SOLD TO BRAVES

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Hamas in Title Chase.
Schmeling May Improve.
No Room for Swetonic.
Sticking to Derringer.
Light Pay for Champs.
Hoppe Still Called Kid.

In proving that the dope and the 3-to-1 ringside betting odds had been all wrong by fighting his way to a decision over Max Schmeling in their gory 12-round battle at Philadelphia last night, Steve Hamas injected himself into the field as a new contender for the heavyweight championship. Hamas had appeared to be slipping out of the rising ranks after a notable showing in 1932, when he knocked out Tommy Loughran and also won a decision over him, besides beating Lee Ramage and others, but he more than regained all the ground lost in the meantime by the clean-cut victory with which he wrecked the comeback of the former champion.

Steve Hamas

It is not to be overlooked that Schmeling probably was not at his best after a lay-off since last June, and Max may show to better advantage with another fight or two under his belt. But that takes away none of the credit due to Hamas for his performance of last night. Even when the German is not quite in stride it takes more than an ordinary fighter to beat him. Besides, Hamas himself was handicaped by an injury, and in giving the rusty but still formidable Schmeling such a terrific lacing under the conditions, the former Penn State athlete must be said to have established himself as a candidate worthy of a heap of respect in the chase for a shot at the winner of the Carnera-Loughran championship match, which, incidentally, has been postponed until February 28. Joe Jacobs made a sorry guess when he passed up the Levinsky match in Chicago to select Hamas as Schmeling's first opponent in the comeback campaign.

BIG STAFF FORCES RELEASE OF SWETONIC

While regretting the departure of Steve Swetonic, who was the only real Pittsburgher among the active Pirates, and wishing him a long and successful career in his new berth with Bill McKechnie's Boston Braves, local baseball fans realize that the release of the North Side pitcher was a step that could not be avoided by the Buccaneer management in its plans to improve the home club's pennant chances by reconstructing the hurling staff. The Rovers' best interests for the future demand the development of young slabmen, and with another veteran starter added in the person of Red Lucas, some of the other material had to be dropped to make possible the regular use of up-and-coming flingers like Ralph Birkhofer and Hal Smith.

In his five years with the Corsairs, Swetonic won just one game more than he lost—37 victories against 36 defeats. He worked in 133 games, pitched 597 innings, allowed 607 hits, struck out 154 batsmen and gave 212 bases on balls. There is no smarter pitcher in the business, and when right, Steve was one of the most effective, but recurring arm trouble kept him from ranking steadily among the leaders. Last year, when he won 12 games and lost the same number, he did not pitch a ...plete game after July 17.

CHAMPION LOSER TO BE RED MAINSTAY

For a big league club to depend on, as its leading pitcher, a man who in the preceding season lost more games than any other major loop slabman in almost 30 years would appear to establish an all-time record for forlorn hopes. But that's what Cincinnati is going to do. Paul Derringer is the flinger.

Last year Derringer was charged with 27 defeats against only seven victories, the highest total on the wrong side of the book since Vic Willis, before coming to the Pirates, hung up the modern major league record by losing 29 games for the Boston Nationals in 1905. The all-time record is 39 defeats in a season, suffered by George Cobb, of Baltimore in 1892.

HARD LUCK FIGURES IN MANY DEFEATS

Yet Manager Bob O'Farrell announces officially that Derringer is expected to be the mainstay of the Red slab staff for 1934. In spite of his poor record last year, Derringer is pronounced still a good pitcher by O'Farrell, who contends that Paul had more than a full share of hard luck in 1933 and is due to get a few of fortune's smiles in the campaign to come.

Paul Derringer

Bob may not be wrong, at that. It wasn't because of poor pitching at all times that Derringer was such a heavy loser. Though he ranked twenty-seventh among the National League hurlers in percentage, with the feeble figures of .206, the big right-hander's earned-run average was 3.30, good enough to give him seventeenth place in the list. In the matter of effectiveness he ranked ahead of many rival flingers of considerable repute, including Benge, Si Johnson, Hallahan, Holley, Beck, Meine, Carroll, Malone, Walker, Swetonic, Vance, Grimes, Elliott, Clark and Rhem. Rhem, by the way, has just been transferred back to the Cards by the Phillies.

LITTLE BOXING KINGS DRAW POOR GATES

Ring championships in the smaller classes aren't worth much these days from a financial angle. At the Broadway Arena tonight Midget Wolgast, world flyweight king, is to box Lou Salica in a nontitle bout at 120 pounds, and if the card draws $2,000 it will be accounted a good house. That shows a great change since the days when Jimmy Wilde, Pancho Villa, Frankie Genaro and Fidel La Barba were operating in the same division. For the fight in which Wilde lost the title to Villa, Jimmy was paid $65,000.

HOPPE STILL RATED YOUNGSTER BY DE ORO

Willie Hoppe, once called the boy wonder of billiards, is now a veteran of 46, and an old-timer to most followers of the cue sport, but what's 46 to a real age marvel like Alfredo De Oro, still a world title contender at 71? To De Oro, Hoppe still is Little Willie, and after watching Hoppe perform the other day in the world championship three-cushion tournament at New York, in which both are contestants, the old Cuban remarked with admiration: "That boy is coming right along. He'll make them sit up and take notice soon."

Willie Hoppe

Hoppe's three-cushion activities draw attention again to a surprising change of attitude. He says he prefers the angle game to 18.2 balkline. "It's much more interesting," he explains. "The billiard balls really circulate. The customers like it so much that I think three-cushions will become the standard billiards game of the world. It looks that way to me." Years ago, while Hoppe was in Pittsburgh on one of his balkline tours with Charley Peterson, he expressed the scorn of a master billiardist for the three-cushion game, then being played in a national league, with one player in each of a dozen large cities. "That's not billiards," Hoppe protested. "It's all luck, and too silly to be taken seriously. I watched a league match at Johnny Kling's room in Kansas City and there were only 19 persons in attendance. It will never become popular."

Meine Talks Terms, Balks at Signing Contract

PITCHER HEINE MEINE

MANAGER GEORGE GIBSON — SECRETARY SAM WATTERS — PRESIDENT BILL BENSWANGER

How about it, Heine Meine? Gonna be a holdout again, old boy, old boy, old boy? Well maybe yes, and maybe no. Here's a picture of a powwow at Pirate headquarters between the pitching star and club officials, at which Heine declined to go along with a general retrenchment policy which means salary reductions for many of the better paid ath-a-letes in the sport. It's an interesting case. We'll have to watch developments. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

DUQUESNE ICE TEAM MEETS RED RAVENS

CITY HOCKEY LEAGUE

GAME TONIGHT

Duquesne vs. Red Ravens, Duquesne Garden, 8:30 p. m.

STANDING OF THE TEAMS

	W.	L.	T.	G.	OG.	Pct.
Morgans	5	1	0	28	8	.833
Pirates	4	2	0	20	12	.667
Webers	3	3	0	13	18	.500
Tech	0	0	1	1	1	.000
Duquesne	0	0	1	1	1	.000
Ravens	0	6	0	10	33	.000

The Sewickley Red Ravens and the Duquesne University skaters will have their ears cocked for opportunity's knock, and will be all set for a concerted rush into the win column when they clash in a City Hockey League game at Duquesne Garden tonight.

The Bluffites, after holding the Carnegie Tech sextet to a 1-1 tie in making their league debut last Saturday, are eager to put their best foot forward in their first start against "independent" opposition. The Dukes realize that they must either take the Ravens into camp or be prepared for a string of setbacks, for—

The Ravens have dropped six decisions in six meetings with the other three members of the circuit, and have yet to chalk up a victory. The Sewickled lads can be excused for hoping that tonight may be their night, and like the Dukes, they realize that if they fail to win this one they may be a long time catching up with their first victory. To the non-partisan fan, the batle shapes up as quite a bit of a toss-up.

Carnegie Tech's Tartans are to make their second start Saturday night, against the J. Scott Morgans, and even their strongest supporters are having some trouble in figuring out how the collegians will be able to pull this one out of the fire. The Morgans not only are leading the loop, but they appear to have enough class to stay "up there" permanently.

The Morgans only recently signed Dinny Manners, former Pirate and Yellow Jacket star and manager of the Niagara Falls team of the Canadian-American League, as their new coach. They did this, it is assumed, to throw cold water on any spark of hope that any league rival may have had of overtaking 'em. The probable lineup for tonight's game:

Duquesne—		Ravens—
McNally	G	Hays
Baker	D	Chalfont
Thompson	D	Longnecker
Dorning	C	Gibson
Sieffert	W	D. Thompson
McGill	W	McKinney

Duquesne spares—Sproule, Smith, Gaughan, Hall, Roche, Ward and Demes.

Raven spares—Burke, Livingston, Culbertson, Oliver I. Thompson, Montgomery, Doolittle and Lockhart.

BENEFIT GAME TONIGHT

TORONTO, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Big league hockey tonight pays a tribute and a debt to one of its star players who was seriously injured in action. Irvin (Ace) Bailey, of the Toronto Maple Leafs, when the Toronto club faces an all-star aggregation drawn from the other eight clubs of the National Hockey League in a benefit game at Maple Leaf Gardens.

The contest is expected to net about $17,000 to add to the $6,000 realized at a benefit game staged several weeks ago at Boston, where Bailey was hurt. The entire proceeds will go to Bailey. Every seat in the area, nearly 13,000 of them, was sold some time ago and about 1,500 standees are expected to crowd their way in.

German Horseman Buys Champ Trotter

WASHINGTON, Pa., Feb. 14.—Calumet Bush, one of two holders the world trotting record of 2:01 for four-year-olds has been sold to Charles Mills, of Hamburg, Germany, for a price reputed to be not less than $15,000.

W. H. Davis, of Washington, the owner, made it known today that this most brilliant trotting prospect in the United States had passed into European hands, being one of 80 American-bred trotters and pacers with records of 2:10 or better that have been sold to European horsemen since last August.

Calumet Bush, a champion stake trotter as a two-year-old stepped to his four-year-old trotting record last summer at Indianapolis when he was clocked in two heats in the same time of 2:01 which equalled the four-year-old record for trotters held by Guy Fletcher. Better marks have been recorded by trotters of the same age but none in actual race competition.

INJURED ARM HANDICAP TO LOCAL STAR

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Pittsburgh today marked the passing from the local scene of a Native Son diamond athlete who, as he began his major-league career in his home town several years back, appeared to have the potentialities sufficient to put him up in the front ranks of the game's pitchers.

Steve Swetonic

Steve Swetonic, of the North Side, is no longer a member of the Buccaneer band. Steve was sold for a nominal sum to the Boston Braves in a deal completed via long distance telephone, last night. The terms of the transaction were not disclosed, but there was a hint around local headquarters that the money to be paid to the Pirates approximated $7,000.

TRADE FALLS THROUGH

The deal was partly negotiated while Bill Benswanger and George Gibson were in New York last week. There they conferred with President Emil Fuch and Manager Bill McKechnie, of the Braves, Gibby tried hard to euchre Skipper Bill out of a seasoned player in return for Steve, but he could not make the riffle, so the Pirates decided to let the pitcher go for a cash consideration. Arm trouble was at the bottom of the pitcher's misfortunes.

Regardless of what the Pirate officials may think of Swetonic, it is only right to state that Bill McKechnie, always a good judge of hurlers, has long been eager to get Steve.

As recent as 1932, North Side Steve shaped up like one of the best pitchers in any circuit. He had had a seige of arm trouble, but the sun seemed to be shining for the young man as the campaign of two years ago got underway. Perhaps many of you will recall the home opener of that season. The Bucco enemy of the day was the high-flying Cardinals with Bill Hallahan up. Boss Gibson, making his debut in Pittsburgh after a long absence, sent Steve out to heckle the Redbirds, and Steve just missed undying fame in that struggle.

WATKINS SPOILED GAME

Through seven exciting rounds, Steve had turned back Frisch, Bottomley and the other stars without allowing a hit. Came the eight inning. Swetonic had two Cards out of the picture and he appeared to be getting stronger as the second batter to miss fire in the eighth was Sparky Adams who died over the strikeout route. Only four batters to be retired and then the feel of no-hit glory. But it was not to be.

Up came Al Watkins, the same scrappy outfielder who staged a fist fight with Swetonic at Forbes Field last summer. The Pirates had an advantage of 7 to 0 at this late hour, but Watkins was still fighting. He spilled the beans by cutting a single past Suhr, who was holding a runner on the bag.

The first month of that season was marked by Swetonic's performances on the slab. He won 10 games so quickly that everybody figured he had a good chance to lead the league, but the same elbow trouble that slowed him down in the previous year returned to plague the Native Son. Steve was unable to do much in the last half of the race.

ARM INJURY HANDICAP

Steve is said to have injured his arm seriously near the close of the 1930 season. He went to camp in 1931 only to hurt his ailing elbow in the first day of training. An X-ray picture showed a chipped bone and Steve was ordered back to Pittsburgh for an operation. Along toward the middle of that season he was able to help the club a little, and he looked like a headliner as the next campaign got under way.

The Pirates bought Steve from the Indianapolis club of the American Association five years ago.

Heine Meine brought his annual attack of salary trouble to Pittsburgh yesterday. Heine always comes up with a smile, but he just won't sign until he gets in the mood. He remained over today and perhaps his mood will change from that of yesterday when he failed to reach an agreement.

BOZEMAN, HOPPE CUE LEADERS

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—The world's three-cushion billiard championship had settled down today to where J. N. Bozeman, Jr., of Vallejo, Cal., and Willie Hoppe ruled the favorites to dethrone Welker Cochran.

Bozeman, the youngest player in the tournament, was in first place by reason of having played one more game than Hoppe. The West Coast sensation won his fifth straight last night in defeating Augie Kieckhefer, Chicago southpaw, 50 to 45, while Hoppe has accounted for his four starts. The 46-year-old boy wonder had a chance to catch his youthful rival today, however, in a match with Otto Reiselt, of Philadelphia.

Two of the three players, who have dropped only one game, also got into action today with Johnny Layton meeting Tiff Denton, Kansas City, at night, and Allen Hall, Chicago, clashing with Kinrey Matsuyama, New York, in the afternoon.

Cochran remained in the running for his crown last night by overwhelming Kenney, 50 to 29, for his fourth victory in five games.

SCHMELING BATTERED BY HAMAS IN FUTILE COMEBACK TRY

15,000 FANS SEE FORMER CHAMP BOW

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—The Black Uhlan of the prize ring, Max Schmeling, was the forgotten man of boxing today. He has forgotten how to fight.

He started last night on his comeback trail, a former heavyweight champion of the world, and he stumbled down to the end of 12 rounds, still trying, still grinning, still brave as any man who ever pulled on leather—but beaten and torn by the gloved fists of Steve Hamas.

Hamas is the 26-year-old youngster from Passaic, N. J., who made his first athletic name half a dozen years ago as a fullback of Penn State. He came out of college, took up boxing. He once knocked out Tommy Loughran in two rounds.

15,000 SEE BATTLE

A crowd of 15,000, the largest to see a fight in Philadelphia since Gene Tunney won the heavyweight title from Jack Dempsey in the Sesqui-Centennial Stadium in 1926, saw Schmeling hesitate, fumble, try and fail against the rugged, clean-cut youngster. That crowd paid $38,000 to see Schmeling fail as completely as he did last summer, when Max Baer knocked him out in 10 rounds in the Yankee Stadium in New York.

Hamas stabbed him with left jabs, and the Schmeling who used to brush them aside and shuffle in with right-hand chops to the head, strength-sapping left hooks to the body, stood and took them. Hamas slugged him with both hands, and the Schmeling who once reveled in that kind of going, stood there helpless, and blinked.

Schmeling's left eyebrow was slashed open so deeply in the ninth round that three stitches were required to close the wound today, but the courage of the Teuton from the Black Forest remained undimmed.

HAMAS' NOSE BROKEN

With the last punch of the eleventh round, a right-hand smash, he broke Hamas' nose and the blood from the two of them crimsoned them to the waist. Through the twelfth, the final round, they fought head to head like a pair of wounded, failing moose, horns locked in a death struggle.

At the end Schmeling, only 28, was the stronger of the two, but the decision of Referee Spud Murphy and two judges was unanimous.

Schmeling won only three rounds, the second, fourth and twelfth on most of the experts' cards. Hamas won the other nine.

WIFE LOYAL IN DEFEAT

MUNICH, Germany, Feb. 14.—(INS.)—"No matter what happened, I will receive him with open arms."

This was the loyal declaration Anny Ondra, actress wife of Max Schmeling, made today when she learned of Herr Max's defeat by Steve Hamas, American, in Philadelphia, last night. She added:

"It's terrible and unbelievable. The only explanation I can give is that he had not had enough fights recently."

TO FIGHT BAER NEXT

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Feb. 14.—(INS.)—Max Baer and Steve Hamas, heavyweight conqueror of Max Schmeling, will meet in New York in June, Ancil Hoffman, manager of Baer, today revealed Charley Harvey, manager of Hamas, had agreed to the fight if Hamas defeated Schmeling last night, which he did. Jack Dempsey will be the promoter.

Greb vs. Yarosz Great 'Dream Bout'—Which Would Win It?

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Harry Greb vs. Teddy Yarosz! There is a "dream bout" for you.

What a treat such a match would be for the local boxing fans with both boxers at a corresponding stage in their careers.

Which would win? That's something to think about.

Greb, dead since 1926, had an unorthodox style, and so does Yarosz. Greb was not a stiff puncher, and neither is Yarosz.

Both packed a wealth of ring cunning and ring presence in their makeup.

Greb had a great pair of bouncing legs. Yarosz has good legs with not so much rubber, but plenty of "give," which carry him around the ring in a weaving manner, moving in to attack and breaking away from his opponent's attempt to score.

TED USES HIS HEAD

Greb won many of his bouts with his head. Yarosz' remarks in his dressing room after he easily repulsed the titular attack of Jimmy Smith in their 15-round bout in Motor Square Garden last Monday night reveal the fact that he does more than a little thinking.

Explaining his failure to win more decisively, by a knockout, Teddy said he had to pace himself carefully because of the "drag" of his recent cold, which caused a postponement of the bout, adding:

"I found out he wasn't hard to outsmart, so I was satisfied to win without running any risk of fighting myself out."

It was the first 15-round bout for both Teddy and Jimmy. Teddy fought with seeming nonchalance, always master of the situation.

DOPED SMITH'S STYLE

Off his form in this bout, which loomed as a tough one, but turned out to be one of his easiest, despite the fact that he kept himself under wraps, it is difficult to see how Yarosz can be kept from winning the world title once held by Greb, granted, of course, that he gets the opportunity against Vince Dundee, whom he defeated twice before Dundee won the laurels from Lou Brouillard, who previously had been beaten by the same Smith who seemed so inept against the calculating Yarosz.

I asked Teddy after the Smith bout if he thought it would go as it did, after he had seen Jimmy beat Young Terry here after Terry had been given a decision over Teddy in a bout in the East. Here was his answer:

"You thought tonight's fight was easy? I thought I beat Terry easier than I beat Smith, although I didn't get the decision. After seeing how Jimmy beat Terry, I felt I wouldn't have any trouble. He beat Terry because Terry kept walking into his right hand. All I had to do was to keep Smith at a distance and make him reach short with the right. Staying on the outside and pecking him off balance with a long left, this was easy. Knowing he is a sharp hitter, I seldom used my own right. I tried it once in an early round and was crossed and hurt for the only time in the fight. After that I quit gambling."

That's fighting with the head as well as with the hands.

MASSERA'S 'DEFEAT'

Charley Massera, Monongahela heavyweight, who upset the dope by beating King Levinsky in their bout in New York last Friday night, although he didn't get the decision, was a ringside spectator at the Yarosz fight, and took time out to comment on his own battle. He said he had just the right style to beat the wild-swinging Kingfish, adding:

"I kept boring in close and punching short to the body and head and he couldn't get going. I can understand how he beats good straight-up boxers like Tommy Loughran, Don McCorkingdale and those other fellows. They keep on the outside and get tagged with his wild swings and lunges. The first thing they know they are hurt and then it's a romp for Levinsky. If you stay on top of him, as I did, his swings go around your neck."

TO BOX HERE SOON

Massera entered the ring before the main bout for an introduction to the fans, but they were storming so much about a decision which displeased them in the previous bout that it was no go, and he smiled and withdrew, and few knew his identity. He'll be seen in action here soon against a good heavyweight. He returns to his home in Monongahela from New York after every bout and is a Pittsburgher to all intents and purposes.

LACROSSE CARD CHANGED, TILT HERE FRIDAY

By CARL W. SHATTO

Just by way of showing that they are in pretty fair shape for the second half of the American and International Lacrosse Association's split season race, which is to be opened here Friday night, the local Yellow Jackets, winners of the first half title, put on a sensational finish to nose out the Chicago White Sox, 14 to 13, in the concluding game of the first half of the campaign at Motor Square Garden last night.

Trailing by 1 to 4 at the end of the first period, 3 to 9 at the close of the second period and by 3 to 10 after five minutes of action in the third period, the locals came on to deadlock the count for the first time when more than one-half of the last period had elapsed. Norm Langevin, big defense man, then assumed the hero's role by ringing up two goals on brilliant unassisted efforts, and this slender edge proved just enough to make a futile effort of the closing rush put on by the game, hard-hitting invaders.

MEET RIBBONS NEXT

The Blue Ribbons, Chicago's other entry in the association race and prime favorites with local fans, are to oppose Coach Suds Sutherland's stalwarts in Friday's second-half inaugural. The fray originally was billed for Saturday, but the date was changed in order that the locals might get a day of rest before assisting the Indians, formerly of Buffalo, in introducing professional lacrosse in Detroit, the league's new member city, Sunday night.

Last night's victory not only served to make Pittsburgh's first half title triumph more decisive, but also enabled the locals to even their season series with the Sox, who own the distinction of being the only invading team to win a decision here. Prior to Saturday night, when the Jackets sewed up the first half title, the Sox had handed the Sutherlandmen four straight defeats, two of 'em on the local court.

FIVE ARE HURT

Bert Bradley, Ty Silk, Referee Everett A. Corey, Al McLean and Bruce Cordick were the leading casualties of last night's stirring encounter. Bradley, Chicago forward, had his shoulder dislocated when he was crowded into the boards at the start of the second period, and Silk, local forward, was knocked cold when cross-checked violently near the close of the same stanza. Til Stokes, the visitors' goalie, was handed a penalty when he hit Referee Corey on the head with the ball in the third period, and McLean, Pittsburgh center, was bleeding profusely from a cut above his eye as the players left the court for their last rest period. Cordick, Pittsburgh goalie, was knocked out when he stopped a hot shot from the stick of Chuck Davidson with his head in the final canto.

A violent, protracted fist fight between Odie Core, Jacket center, and Carl Wallace, Sox defense man, was an added feature of the last period. The lads dropped both sticks and gloves the better to observe the state boxing commission's rules, but the landing of several well-placed blows produced no knockdowns. The lineup:

Pittsburgh—14.		Chicago—13.
Cordick	G	Stokes
P. Langevin	D	Wallace
N. Langevin	D	Clarke
LaFrance	C	DeGray
Vincent	F	Dodds
Bouliane	F	Atkinson

Score by periods:

Pittsburgh	1	2	4	7—14
Chicago	4	5	2	2—13

Scoring—Pittsburgh: Vincent 4, N. Langevin 3, McLean 3, LaFrance, Silk, Jennings 2; Chicago: Davidson 3, Bradley 3, Atkinson 3, Wallace, Clarke, DeGray, Dodds. Penalties—N. Langevin, minor; Davidson, minor; Stokes, minor; Core and Wallace, majors. Referee—E. A. Corey, Pittsburgh.

Leon See's 'Inside Story' Of Carnera's Career

EDITORIAL FOREWORD

Having clearly outpointed Paulino, European champion, late in 1930, the author decides that "The Man of his Idea" would be ready for his serious title drive within a year. He is summarizing that situation . . .

CHAPTER XXVI

THE CARAVAN PASSES . . .

By LEON SEE

Developer and Former Manager of Primo Carnera, World Heavyweight Boxing Champion

Carnera's clear victory over Paulino on points in 1930 convinced me that Primo had made great progress since 1928. Boxing for two years, without having been seriously hurt or stunned by a hard punch, under such circumstances, he had acquired meanwhile much ring experience; he had mastered more boxing technique than the average heavyweight acquires in three or four years.

Jim Maloney

His pugilistic education, moreover, had been the object of my incessant care. Each day I personally assisted in his training, rectifying the slightest defective position, struggling to correct the least weakness, the smallest fault in his guard or the position of the body. Particularly, the aim was to perfect his defense. Now (late in 1930) I could say that—from the "defensive point of view—the giant was almost perfect. His left could scarcely be bettered. But his right was not loose enough, except in an uppercut—one of his favorite blows, by the way, as Jack Sharkey must know!

SECOND MALONEY FIGHT

The moment was not far off when I would let him fly with his own wings, let him fight by his own means; the dangerous period was definitely over. So I planned a series of sincere fights for Primo—first against ordinary heavies, increasing the quality of the opposition with each contest. I figured that Carnera would be set for the title shot in about two more years. You can realize now how slow but sure I was in piloting Primo toward his goal.

After one or two minor victories in England, we returned to the United States early in 1931. First we had to wipe off the Maloney defeat—flagrantly unjust though that decision was—from Carnera's slate. So primo and Maloney were matched for a 10-rounder at Miami, Fla. At that the genial Boston favorite semed to bring us bad luck. Three weeks before the fight, Primo broke two ribs when sparing with big Walter Cobb and this double fracture was still extremely painful the day of the battle. Postponement was refused despite our x-ray and other authentic medical proofs.

DISPLAYS COURAGE

Once more Prima gave proof of extraordinary courage, for — although he suffered terribly at each movement — he won the decision with the greater merit because he had not been able to train for days prior to this hard-fought, on the level fight.

There followed a series of unimportant knockouts: Pat Redmond, Umberto Torriani, Bud Gorman, Knute Hansen, Roberto Roberti and De Carlos were the K. O. victims, all in short order.

In the same manner, the Man Mountain scored two much more important victories over King Levinsky, a good young, hard-swinging American, and Vittorio Campolo, the giant Argentine. They were genuine contests, you are assured.

Almost one more year had passed; in other words, Primo had been already boxing for three years by midsummer, 1931, and was nearing his summit. In letting him fight men of Levinsky's and Campolo's ability, I was giving him acid tests. My calculations had been correct. The giant Italian had outboxed and even outpunched the tough Levinsky in a 10-rounder. He had stopped the hard-hitting Campolo in the second round of a real slugging bee. Thus, I think, that Primo earned his "bachelor's degree" in the "University of Boxing" in 1931. But he must win a "doctor's degree" before achieving the championship. And that now was our next object. In front of us then were Max Schmeling, who was world champion; next came Jack Sharkey, the late Ernie Schaaf, and three or four others perhaps.

FIRST SHARKEY BATTLE

We had challenged Champion Schmeling for the title late in 1930 and also in 1931. I had always considered the German a first-class heavyweight — courageous, scientific and a good hard hitter in the absence, at the time, of dynamiters comparable to Jack Dempsey and his ilk. For many years there had been an inexplicable dearth of excellent heavyweights. Only Dempsey and Gene Tunney stood out since the World War.

Schmeling—who had won the title on a foul and in a most unimpressive manner over a Sharkey already on the decline—seemed to me not big nor strong enough for the super-powerful Carnera, groomed as he was to box well and utilize to the fullest his tremendous strength and weight.

But Schmeling—or rather his astute American manager, Joe Jacobs—probably realized Carnera's superiority and formally repudiated the match. Their excuse was based on an alleged eye injury certified to (I was given to understand by a physician approved by the German Boxing Federation. Thus the Jacobean champion ducked Carnera & Co.

I am firmly convinced that, except for that run-out, Carnera would have been the world heavyweight king since the month of September, 1931, and that my original champion-making idea would have been achieved in less than three years.

BOUT POSTPONED

But Schmeling was clearly avoiding us in 1931 and instead—such was the confidence I now had in my pupil—I did not hesitate to accept a real "shooting match" with Sharkey who was equal, if not superior, to the German title holder.

Then our habitual luck deserted us once again. The date of the fight had to be postponed for more than 15 days because Sharkey insisted that he had sprained—was it the little finger of his left hand?

After Champion Schmeling's bad eye, Sharkey's sprain! Eh bien, the two best boxers in the world at that time seemed, to say the least, to be uneasy about my expert-derided "Man Mountain!"

If the reader should consult the most accurate and complete ring records, they would affirm that Primo Carnera in the course of his career was knocked down only once or twice and has never been knocked out even up to this writing (late in 1933).

Nevertheless, Primo was knocked out one day for much longer than 10 seconds. It was not in the ring, however. It was in an automobile accident. And what was much more serious, it happened the day before the eve of his first Sharkey fight!

INJURED IN WRECK

Nothing will dissipate my impression that it was this accident that caused the only real defeat suffered thus far by my "Primo of the Carneras."

Without this accident, Carnera would have an absolutely unique record, free from all defeat, because it is impossible for me to take seriously the decisions given to Diener, Maloney and (more recently) Larry Gains and Stanley Poreda. Primo really won those four fights.

(Copyright, 1933, by Leon See and King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Primo's Bones Rebuilt by See's Plan

Soon after Carnera began to wear the boar on his trunks (the insignia, by the way, of my stable of fighters), I had him examined by Doctor Bruel, of Saint-Germain-en-Lave, a specialist on acromegaly, the science of abnormal physical enlargements. The learned doctor told me that giants have defective bones because of insufficient lime in their systems. Thus when they break a bone, the healing is extremely slow . . . So, when I started to develop Primo's fighting muscles, I simultaneously began to effect his osseous transformation by means of bone-strengthening diet. For six months I made Carnera consume a large glass of finely ground mutton bones at every meal. He took that with his beer usually. Thanks to that "recalcification," Primo's rib fractures—two of them were broken when training for Jim Maloney at Miami in 1931—healed within 15 days! A local specialist was astounded. He had examined those fractures and estimated recovery in about three months . . . Thus did I transform my giant — muscularly, mentally, and—chemically.

By JULIUS LEVIN

The South and Perry High School quintets moved a step each nearer to an eventual play-off series for the City Scholastic League title yesterday as they took over formidable opponents in second-half test battles.

South took the most advanced step as Schenley was repulsed on the market house floor, 32 to 20, in Section I, the triumph being the eighth in as many starts in City League warfare for the South passers. Milkovich took the scoring honors of the fray, getting four field goals and one foul for a total of nine points. His teammate, Miskevics, matched him in the business of getting field goals.

Perry remained in a tie for the lead in Section II by knocking off South Hills, 38 to 24. Kornick, Perry's star forward, was the scoring star of the game, getting an even dozen points.

In other tilts yesterday, Fifth nosed out Westinghouse, 33 to 31; Allderdice won over Peabody, 30 to 17; Carrick nosed out Vocational, 28 to 21, and Allegheny continued its improved play by beating Oliver, 31 to 27.

Most of the power-house fives in the W. P. I. A. L. came through with triumphs.

MET BOWLERS ROLL TONIGHT

By PHILIP GRABOWSKI

With two matches scheduled for this week in the Metropolitan Tenpin League, the E. M. Tuckers will try to increase their lead against the next to last place Pittsburgh Athletic Association outfit, while the second-place Fort Pitt crew battles the Iron City pinmen, who hold third place.

This evening's matches follow: North Side Elks vs. Forward, St. Michaels vs. Braddock Colts, Old Reliable vs. Old Anchor, E. M. Tuckers vs. P. A. A., Keystone A. C. vs. Auditorium No 2, Aspinwall vs. Brookline, Nuss Brothers vs. Silver Toppers, Muck Brothers vs. Lawlor, Auditorium No. 1 vs. Roxian, Fort Pitt vs. Iron City and Ko Ko Mo Kids vs. Elba.

STRIKES AND SPARES

The Earl Liberty Trojans desire match games with leading tenpin teams in the district. Call Emerson 9435.

Western is leading the Eastern team by five games in the Distribution Department of the Duquesne Light Company's Duckpin League. H. Snyder, of Western, has an average of 167 for 51 games, while his nearest rival, A. Rust, of the Southern outfit, boasts an average of 160 for 45 contests. Kreig holds the high individual honors for a single game, 254, and Snyder for three games, 596.

DO YOU KNOW?

That the present-day league plan was instituted by the American Bowling Congress 38 years ago.

That the first two regulation bowling alleys were installed in the Hotel Henry, Fifth avenue, 37 years ago.

That only two teams represented Pittsburgh in the first A. B. C. classic in 1904?

TARTANS LOSE FLOOR STARS

By JESS CARVER

When Maxie Hannum gathered his Carnegie Tech basketball flock about him before the present campaign got under way, he found he was not any too well off in point of material. But Maxie is an optimistic soul (he's often tried no-trump with only three suits in his mitt) and he figures that with Capt. Lou Jagnow, Red Silverman, Ted Rigg and Johnny Ewalt, that the Tartans would be tough enough to make it same for all and sundry and that they might lay back and knock some aspiring and highly rated opponent for a loop.

Then he lost Jagnow when Lou was declared ineligible by the faculty and later, Red Silverman, appointed captain in Jagnow's place, was taken down with an attack of the flu.

And now, he's suffered a further loss, for Ewalt and Macalka, the latter a scrappy sophomore, have run into scholastic difficulties and have failed to pass their first semester work. The fact hasn't been announced officially as yet, but Howard Harpster, the football coach, told of Der Maxie's further misfortune at the dinner tendered the Duquesne senior footballers at St. Mary's Lyceum last night.

The Tartans resume floor action here Friday night after a 20-day layoff by meeting Penn State.

Ill luck has struck the Dukes' basketball squad too. Dudey Moore, veteran guard, is limping about with a sprained ankle and may not be able to play against West Virginia here tomorrow night.

The Lyceum party for the Dukes was a pip. A turnout of more than 250 paid tribute to the 11 graduating seniors and the new head coach, Joe Bach. The affair was held in the St. Mary's school auditorium, Lockhart street, North Side.

Talks were given by Judge John P. Egan; Coach Bach; Howard Harpster, of Tech; Bill Kern, assistant coach at Pitt, and Howdy O'Dell, the new backfield coach of the Panthers; Father Alcium, of St. Vincent's College, and W. A. Reinersmann, chairman of the affair. John Lauer served as toastmaster and turned in a fine job of it, too.

Henry Weinberg, star guard, threatened on several occasions to sing, but quick work on the part of Nussbaum, Zaninelli, DeCoster, Sinko and Niccolai (who have heard Henry croon in the past) saved the evening.

A field of more than 200 is expected to compete in the annual University of Pittsburgh indoor track and field championships, which will be staged in the track house Saturday afternoon.

PRINCETON OUSTS STARS

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 14.—(INS.)—Princeton's basketball team today was without a regular center or effective reserve forward and its prospective baseball team without a captain or experienced pitcher as a result of the dismissal from school of Karl Larsen and Jimmy Samuels by the faculty committee on examinations and standards. The two, both of whom were seniors, were dropped for scholastic deficiency.

TONIGHT'S FIGHT

Midget Weigast vs. Lou Salica, 10 rounds, Brooklyn.

WINNERS NAMED IN DOG SHOW

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Warland Protector of Shelterock, the proud champion of champions at last year's Westminster Kennel Club show, was prouder than ever today as three of his offspring took prizes at the 1934 show.

Protector, the handsome Airedale terrier owned by S. M. Stewart, of Montclair, N. J., which was adjudged best of all breeds at the 1933 classic, perked up his stubby tail when he heard two of his sons and one of his daughters carried off prizes.

All three winners were in a litter sired last May by Proctor out of the champion, Flornell Tavern Maid.

The puppy dog, Shelterock Mighty Swell, took first prize. His brother, Shalterrock Marvelous Style, followed in second place, while their sister, Shelterock Meta Surprise, won the blue ribbon in the puppy bitches class. All went into the ring under Stewart's colors.

Protector's Vision, another puppy bitch sired by the Champion out of Welcome Again, failed to win a prize for John Barrett, of Dunellan, N. J.

Fall Proves Fatal To Rowdy Elliott

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Baseball fans of two decades ago mourned today the passing of Harold E. (Rowdy) Elliott, who died here last night from injuries received in a fall from an apartment house window.

Elliott, born in Bloomington, Ill., in 1894, was an outstanding figure in both the Pacific Coast and the National leagues.

Elliott caught in the longest big league game on record, a 26-inning contest between Brooklyn and Boston. In 1924 he was divorced by Mrs. Helen Kearns Elliott, sister of Jack Kearns, former manager of Jack Dempsey.

Carnera, Loughran To Meet Feb. 28

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 14.—(INS.)—The Primo Carnera-Tommy Loughran fight for the heavyweight championship of the world today was postponed from February 22 until February 28. The Florida Boxing Commission sanctioned the change in dates.

FIGHT RESULTS

At Philadelphia—Steve Hamas defeated Max Schmeling, 12 rounds; Paul Marques defeated Young George Chip, 4 rounds; Sam Portnes defeated Johnny Rosseau, 6 rounds; Donald (Red) Barry defeated Cpl. Eto Arce, 6 rounds; Abe Feldman defeated Lou Foster, 6 rounds.

At San Jose, Cal.—Frankie Genaro won by a technical knockout over Speedy Dado, 4 rounds.

At Los Angeles—Young Peter Jackson knocked out Leo Jallos, 2 rounds; Lee Kelley knocked out Tuffy Dail, 1 round; Ted DiFrancis defeated Mike Ketchel, 4 rounds.

At Miami—Frankie Hughes won by a technical knockout over Johnny Lucas, 8 rounds; Gilbert Castillo defeated Dario Mareno, 8 rounds.

At New York—Mike Belloise defeated Pete De Grasse, 10 rounds; Leonard Del Genio won by technical knockout over Paul Scalfaro, 5 rounds; Teddy Lober defeated Willie Hines, 6 rounds; Charley (Red) Miller and Jose Pimental drew, 4 rounds.

At Seattle, Wash.—Cecil Payne defeated Henry Woods, 10 rounds.

At West Palm Beach, Fla.—Gordon Fortenberry and Johnny (Corn) Griffin drew, 10 rounds.

At Portland, Ore.—Paul Karch defeated Miles Murphy, 6 rounds.

AMATEUR CUP TEAMS SET

By TOM BIRKS

While the Curry Soccer Club is battling it out with the Stix-Fuller eleven of St. Louis, defending national open champion, in a western semi-final clash in the Mound City Sunday, local fans will turn their attention to the Heidelberg-Reihl clash in the semi-final round of the national amateur cup competition. The game is scheduled for Greenlee Field.

The contest should have been played two weeks ago, but the Curry-Slavia open tussle forced a postponement. A great deal of interest is attached to the tussle, considering that the Chicago Slovaks may come here to take on the victor in the battle for the western championship.

The Chicago club figures to be a fine attraction here, inasmuch as it has been many years since a team from the Windy City played in Pittsburgh. The last team to show here was the Chicago Bricklayers. They played Braddock at Homestead Park 14 years ago, and defeated the locals.

Should the Chicago team be drawn to play here, the Chicago Slovak Union will make an effort to get the Western Pennsylvania Slovak Union interested in the visit of the eleven.

The Curry team intends to leave for St. Louis Saturday morning for its game with the Stix-Fuller outfit. The officials of the national champions have made reservations for the local team over the P. R. R. Headquarters will be established at the American-Annex Hotel during the stay in the Mound City.

Two players, signed three weeks ago, probably will get into the game. They are Williamson and Barowsky. Barowsky is one of the greatest German-born players in this district. His style should go well against the Stix aggregation.

Waynesburg Rally Beats Juniata, 51-28

DEFENSIVE AIR PERVADING MARKETS

NEW YORK, Feb. 14—Financial markets were somewhat on the defense today and prices in most categories reflected mixed sentiment.

Another break of around $2 a bale in cotton engendered added caution in speculative fields. Stocks were quite spotty and bonds diffident. Grains held a slim groove. International dollar rates, unusually narrow, furnished no stimulus. Silver futures were firm, but rubber eased.

Shares of Liggett & Myers B, American Tobacco B and Reynolds B dropped 1 to 3 points, and most of the alcohols were down fractionally to 2. The metals slipped back after early advances. United States Steel, Case, American Can, Santa Fe and a number of others showed recessions of about a point each. Most of the aircrafts were steady, following their unsettlement of yesterday. The utilities were quiet and a bit lower.

The reaction in cotton was coincidental with more reports that opposition was developing to compulsory legislation on production. The commodity futures bill, which would include cotton, might also have been a factor.

Wall street was intensely interested in the aviation controversy as it was in the hearings of the stock exchange control program which began before congressional committees. Various traders showed a disposition to rim sails pending Washington developments.

Some financial commentators held the view that a "sidewise" market movement might be expected over the next several weeks, barring unforseen occurrences; that a slow-down in activity was desired by the administration in order that the economic upturn might not be interfered with, and that the federal control plan was launched for the purpose, largely, of halting a spring "boom" in stock which could result in a subsequent unpleasant relapse.

The downward flurry in the tobacco issues was attributed partly to reports that one of the 10-cent cigaret manufacturers was preparing to market a new package to retail at 8 cents which would contain five 11-inch cigarets, each of which could be sub-divided into four. The profit here, it was said, would come in the saving of federal taxes if an adverse ruling is not made by the authorities.

The alcohols still reflected the possibility of an inquiry into the exceptionally sharp advance of this group last spring and summer.

PLAN 'DIRECT' LOAN BANKS

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—Federal reserve board officials have approved the draft of a bill to establish 12 federal intermediate banks to make loans direct to industry and business.

The measure is expected to receive President Roosevelt's early approval and will be sent to Congress for passage at this session.

Under the plan, the federal government would provide $300,000,000 as an initial fund to start the banks.

Co-operation of private bankers would be solicited to a limited degree.

Federal intermediate banks, in making loans to private business enterprises, would assume responsibility for 80 per cent of the loan and private banks would take over 20 per cent of the risk.

Money would be lent at a reasonable rate of interest, probably a little more than four per cent.

It is proposed that the intermediate banks shall make long-term loans, ranging over a period of five years and even higher in certain cases.

Gov. Black, of the Federal Reserve Board, drafted the bill after consultations with Treasury and high administration officials.

Automotive Exports Gain 4.3% in 1933

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—(AP.)—United States automotive products exports were shown by Commerce Department figures today to have gained 4.3 per cent in value in 1933 over 1932.

The value in 1933 was $93,968,000 compared with $82,185,000 in 1932.

MONEY CHANGER ROLE SEEN FOR UNCLE SAM

By LEWIS HANEY

Professor Economics, New York University

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—Business activity last week did a little better than hold its own. Certainly automobile and steel production expanded. Commodity prices averaged higher.

We may well wonder, therefore, why so much attention is to be given by the administration to hastening control over banking and credit. In fact, the outstanding development of late has been a steady encroachment by government upon the field of private finance, which is truly revolutionary.

CREDIT PUMP NEEDED

One result of all these aims, which has been gradually taking shape, is the growing dominance of government over money and credit. The government is moving toward the establishment of a great unified banking system which will be subject to the federal treasury.

The end is being allowed to justify a means which the Democratic party would formerly have been the first to attack.

The rationalization of the move is as follows: First, the "money changers," "bankers," and "Wall Street" are said to deserve punishment and reduction of power. Second, the government is said to be engaged in a "war on depression" and on a great "recovery" program. Third, this requires huge credits, and currency depreciation. Fourth, the banks, under business leadership, cannot or will not supply all the credits desired.

So, the idea now is that the government should and must take over banking functions.

GREAT FEDERAL POWERS

The steps already taken have carried us far. Of course, we had the Hoover RFC to start with. Then came the Securities Act, and now the Stock Exchange Act. These give the government great power over corporation financing.

In addition, we now can see the steps toward direct control over banking.

Then pressure is brought in many ways to force all the commercial banks into the reserve system, so that they may be controlled by the government.

Now the government is more and more participating directly in banking operations. News comes that it is setting up an "export-import bank of Washington," to extend government credit to traders with Russia.

It is also proposed to set up a system of federal "intermediate banks" to lend government credit to industrial corporations.

If this keeps up, it will be but a little while before the federal government will be head over heels in the banking business.

Credit has come to be the life blood of business. If the administration is to control completely the business of the country, it must control all important credit mechanisms. This seems to be its aim.

"Uncle Sam has driven out the money changers, and compelled reforms. But do we want him to become a great monopolistic money changer himself?

Japanese Firm Gets Mexico Pipe Award

MEXICO, D. F., Feb. 14.—(AP.)—Underbidding American, English and French competitors, the Japanese firm, Mitsui and Company, Limited, of Tokio was awarded a contract for sale of 886,000 feet of cast iron pipe to the federal district government for constructing a six mile aqueduct from Churubusco to Mexico City. The amount of money involved was not made known.

Production Costs Cut By 'Ads'

By B. C. FORBES

SOME STORES, when you ask for an advertised product, try to sell you a substitute at a somewhat lower price on the plea that the standard product "costs more because of the expense of advertising it."

Mr. Forbes

This line of reasoning is entirely fallacious.

Advertising makes quantity production possible, and quantity production makes lower prices possible.

This simple, indisputable fact is not universally understood. Quite recently it was proposed at Washington that sellers of advertised gasoline should be compelled to charge the consumer half a cent a gallon more than for unadvertised gasoline, a most preposterous idea, worthy of only an out-and-out theoristic member of the brain trust.

Just how much does it actually cost to advertise various popular lines of merchandise?

Yesterday exteremly interesting figures were furnished by Bernard Lichtenberg, vice president of the Alexander Hamlton Institute.

One big soup company in 1929 made this statement:

"In 1898 our output was 500,000 cans for the entire year. Now 18,000,000 cans are produced in one week. In 1898 the expense for salesmen was 7½ per cent and for advertising 14 per cent of the selling price.

"Now the cost for salesmen is 2½ per cent and for advertising less than 3 per cent, making a total selling cost of 5 per cent, or 2½ per cent less than the cost for salesmen alone in 1898. If a consumer buys a can of soup for 12 cents, 36-10000ths of 1 cent is spent in advertising."

Other actual figures: On a 10 cent biscuit package the advertising expenditure is less than 1 mill. On a $1.95 shirt 64-100ths of a cent goes for advertising. On a $1.75 sheet, 1 cent is spent on advertising. A leading camera concern says:

"Savings to the consumer, as a result of consistent advertising are so many times the amount of the money devoted to advertising that we t' ink any question of wasteful practice is untenable."

For advertising a well-known 7 cent cake of soap the cost is 1-5th of a cent. To advertise a $50 suit averages $1. To create and maintain a national market for a breakfast food costing 15 cents, calls for spending 3-10th of a cent. When you buy a 5 cent glass of a popular "soft" beverage, 1576-100,000th of a cent goes for advertising.

Mr. Lightenberg justifiably declares:

"These are but a few of the cases which might be cited in which advertising has actually cut down the price to the consumer."

Next time a clerk tries to foist on you an unknown product when you ask for an advertised one, refute his unjustified excuse that advertising adds seriously to the cost. As here shown, it doesn't.

ONE READER, Chapin Hoskins, writes that he recently purchased one necktie in a British-owned shop in New York and that he received the following note:

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our deep gratitude to our many friends and relatives for their kindness and sympathy in the recent bereavement of our sister and aunt, May M. Snelsire. Miss Katherine Snelsire, Mrs. Ralph Shanor.

In Memoriam 1-B

In loving memory of Frank J. Kuhn, Sr., died February 14, 1932.
We've missed the sound of your footsteps,
And your voice since you have gone.
And though no longer we see you,
In our minds you still live on.
And so we smile in the daytime.
But some nights our hearts are sore,
As we think of the dear one God took away,
To His distant and golden shore.

In loving memory of (Dad) Harry W. Wood, who died seven years ago today, February 14, 1927. Sadly missed by his wife, children and grandchildren.

MENTION THE SUN-TELEGRAPH WHEN ANSWERING ADVERTISEMENTS

Memory Test

Answers to yesterday's Sports Memory Test questions follow:

1—Jimmy Callahan, who was named as manager of the Pirates in 1913, appeared in a sketch at the Davis Theater.

2—Ty Cobb has stolen more bases than any other player in baseball.

3—Joe Harris, former major league player was seriously injured in an auto truck accident in France after the Armistice.

4—George McBride, Pittsburgh Country Club professional, was a machine gunner in the 80th Division in France during the World War.

5—Al Mamaux, former Pirate pitcher, was a success as a singer on the stage.

Monday's answers were repeated yesterday in error. Correct answers for yesterday should have read:

1—Heidelberg Soccer Club has won two national amateur championships.

3—Frank Glick is the old Central High School football star who became famous as a quarterback at Princeton.

4—Andy Kerr coached the old Central High School team and now is coach at Colgate University.

5—Babe Adams was the Pirate pitcher who was released as "all through" and returned to make a successful comeback.

(See today's questions in Sports Section.)

STUDEB

FOURTH DEGREE

By K. S. DAIGER

CHAPTER XXXVI.

"What did you do at the Paige house?" continued the investigator in questioning Stokes.

"Sat in the cellar waiting for some people to go."

"Who were these people?"

"Tilly's madam and another man. I don't know his name."

"What did you do in the cellar?"

"Smoked. Some cigarettes that Tilly brought. Smoked a whole package."

"Did you go upstairs to either the first or second floors?"

"Nope."

"Not at any time?"

"Nope."

"Why not?"

"We never got no chance. Always somebody moving about up there."

"But you came to steal the pearl, didn't you?"

"That's right."

"Did Tilly's madam and her friend go away?"

"Yes, after a long time. It was cold there," and Tim shivered even in his unconsciousness.

"Why didn't you go upstairs then?"

"Door-bell rang."

"Who was it?"

"I don't know. A man with a funny whining voice."

"Would you know it if you heard it again?"

"Anywhere in a million. Couldn't miss it."

Heard Man Running

"Who answered the bell?"

"The lady. Came running downstairs."

"What did she say?"

"We couldn't hear. Just voices over our head."

"But you just said you heard the man's voice. How's that?"

"He spoke louder. But we didn't hear any words—just the sound of him talking."

"Then what happened?"

"They went upstairs and stayed a long time. Then the man came running downstairs."

"Why did he come down?"

"We heard an automobile coming up the drive and somebody put a key in the hall door."

"What did he do?"

"He made for the cellar, opened the door at the top of the steps, lit a match and came on down."

"Did he turn on the lights in the cellar?"

"Nope."

"What did he look like?"

"Tall—dark. I don't know. He kept the match well down in his hands."

"What did he do in the cellar?"

"Went up to the electric bulb in a light on the other side of the cellar. Put his hand up. Guess he was trying to turn on the light."

"Did he succeed?"

"Nope. Guess the lights musta turned on from the top of the steps."

Prompt Answers

"Then what happened?"

"We heard the front door open and the man beat it for the window which Tilly and I had left open and went through it."

"How long was this man in the cellar?"

"Just a couple o' seconds."

"What did you do?"

"We hid there and heard the gentleman go upstairs. Then there was a terrible scream and we heard him come running down again to the library. We heard him cry 'Get me Towson police quick! Somebody's killed my wife!'"

Here Tim began to breathe very hard and it was clear that he was experiencing acute agitation. Dr. Dandy immediately administered another injection of scopolamin and he quieted down.

"What did you do then?"

"Tillie and me beat it as quick as possible out the window."

The answers to all of these questions had been prompt and business-like—not at all like a man seeking to evade the truth but anxious rather to give the shortest and most direct replies.

Captain Winslow continued. But now his voice lost its smooth monotone and became sharp. It was clear that he cared little for the "fourth degree."

"Stokes, what happened was really this: you and Tilly went upstairs after the jewel, didn't you?"

"No, we didn't, honest."

"And you gagged Mrs. Paige while you tried to find it?"

"No, so help me God! Tilly and me never set foot upstairs!"

"And when you found that you had killed her, you strung her up to the chandelier, didn't you?"

"No, that's not true. I never even seen Mrs. Paige."

To Hold Stokes

And so it went on for another hour. Captain Winslow, wearying, was replaced by Detective Hurley who went all over the questions again. But he received the same answers.

Then Assistant Inspector McCauley tried but with no better success.

Either the truth serum was a failure or Tim Stokes was innocent.

When the examination had lasted for three hours and 45 minutes, Inspector Anderson held up his hand.

"I think we've had enough," he said. "Stokes either can't or won't tell us anything more. Doctor, I want to thank you very much for coming down here. The experiment has been most interesting."

Then Anderson signalled to the commissioner and the two went over to one corner of the room where they talked in undertones for a few minutes.

Then Anderson turned to the reporters who were hanging on his every word.

"The commissioner and I feel," he began, "that although this has been a most interesting experiment, it has been, nevertheless, nothing more than an experiment. Scopolamin is still too much in its infancy for us to regard it as an infallible test. Later it may be better developed.

"In spite of Stokes' negative reaction to the test, both the commissioner and I think that the case will have to go to a jury for a final decision. And so I hereby charge Stokes with the wilful and intentional murder of Sonia Paige!"

Now all this time the germ of an idea had been filtering through my brain. Tim had said one significant thing—something that might corroborate his story, if he were speaking the truth.

"Inspector," I clamored, but Anderson waved aside my interruption.

"I also want to say," he stated, "that we shall release Mrs. Deane at once. Mr. Paige and Mr. Cleveland, I want to apologize to you both for any embarrassment we have caused you in the course of this investigation. I am convinced that neither of you know any more than you have already said.

Warned to Keep Quiet

"Mr. Paige, I shall order the guard withdrawn from your home at once, but I suggest that you do not return there until tomorrow morning."

And now my idea really hit me.

"Inspector, I have something I want to say," I began again with determination.

"Just one moment," said Anderson, picking up a pad and rapidly writing something on it. Then he handed the paper to a detective.

To my surprise, the officer came straight to me and handed me the note. I opened it and here is what Anderson had written:

"For God's sake, keep quiet. You will ruin everything."

I looked at him in amazement. How on earth could he have known what I had intended to say? Once the guard was released on the Paige house, Tim's last hope of vindication was gone.

But nevertheless I kept my peace, until, one by one, the witnesses had filed out, leaving Anderson and me alone with the doctor and the still unconscious burglar stretched out on the jail cot.

Anderson beckoned to me and we walked over to the window looking down on Fayette street. He was smiling a little and watching me quizzically.

"You think I'm a grand old detective, Kay?"

Anxious About Clue

"Andy!" I blurted out. "You overlooked something in Tim's story. Did you get that part about the man in the cellar trying to turn on the electric light? He never told us that before—guess he forgot it or thought it wasn't important. But do you realize what that really means? If there was another man, his finger-prints must be on that coal-dusted bulb? Not a soul has been down in that cellar since you and Carroll and I were there and we didn't turn on the lights; used your flash, you remember. Why, man, it's the clue of a lifetime."

My words actually tripped over themselves so anxious was I to get them out.

"And you'd forgotten that I used to be a finger-print expert, didn't you, Kay?" Still smiling that quiet bantering smile.

"I didn't think you'd noticed," I said in confusion.

"Then why did you think that I released all of our suspects and ordered the guard away from the house tonight?"

"I can't imagine," I answered bluntly. "You'll go out right away and examine the bulb, I suppose?"

"I most certainly shall do nothing of the kind," answered Anderson with decision. "Kay, my boy, you may in time develop into a good reporter but you'll never make even a poor detective. Don't you see for yourself that there is only one way for us to solve this murder? The two persons whom we have suspected were at the examination this afternoon, going on the presumption that Stokes' story is true. I mean Robert Cleveland and Randolph Paige. Mrs. Deane I am leaving out of the picture for unless we can secure fresh evidence against her we have no case where she is concerned."

PHAROAHS RULED EGYPT—FATE OF BEARERS OF EVIL TIDINGS

The artist visualized a scene of ancient Egypt where the whim of the ruler meant life or death.

Ancient Egypt's civilization had three great phases: Kingdom, founded by Menes (about 3400-1800 B. C.); period of the "Shepherd Kings" or Hyksos, who invaded and held Egypt over 200 years thereafter; the Empire, when Egyptian princes recovered their land, expelling and conquering their oppressors. This was the climax of ancient Egypt's power and civilization. Decline followed, postponed by a few able rulers, like Rameses II (1292-1225 B. C.).

Around 1000 B. C. Egypt ceased to be a moving force of the world, soon to be surpassed by other civilizations rising in the East. (World History)

OUR SOLAR SYSTEM

Above: Diagram showing sun, planets, their satellites, main diameters, main distances from sun's center, their velocities and number of years needed to complete their orbits.

The Solar System consists of the sun, nine planets (spherical bodies greater than 3,000 miles in diameter); their satellites (moons); about 2,000 asteroids (minor planets with a diameter not more than 500 miles); comets and such meteor swarms that are moving under the gravitation of the sun.

Sun is our nearest star. Its diameter is 864,390 miles; the main distance between earth and sun is 92,900,000 miles, called one astronomical unit. (Gen. Science)

ENGLISH ATTEMPTS TO COLONIZE NEW WORLD

The defeat of the Spanish Armada by the English (1588) sounded the death knell of Spanish supremacy on sea and her colonization. English sea captains, "sea dogs," raided isolated Spanish colonies; they inspired the British to establish their own. British early attempts were unsuccessful.

Sir Humphrey Gilbert obtained a patent from Queen Elizabeth, calling for discovery and occupation of heathen-lands not possessed by any Christian prince. He landed (1583) in New Foundland, taking possession of it for the British Crown (above). While returning with his crippled expedition, Sir Humphrey Gilbert perished at sea.

The failure of individual ventures created a method of colonization by Joint Stock Companies, a number of families complementing each other to an efficient settling unit. (American History)

RESUSCITATING VICTIMS OF DROWNING

Oxygen inhalator is applied on victims of a steamer disaster (above). Oxygen (O), colorless, odorless, tasteless gas is the most useful element, essential to life. Air contains about 21% (by volume) oxygen. Inhaled into lungs, oxygen is taken up by the blood, delivered to each cell of the body, oxidizing food, releasing energy (chemical, heat) necessary for life functions.

When breathing stops (inhaling of poisonous gases, electric shock, drowning etc.) oxygen must be applied artificially to ward off death.

The inhalator (below) supplies from its tanks oxygen mixed with 7% carbon dioxide (this stimulates respiration) creating alternately vacuum and pressure in lungs (arrows show flow of gas).

OXYGEN INHALATOR IN OPERATION

"IN THE ROMAN ARENA AND OUTSIDE OF IT"

Christians—men, women, children—in prayer to the Master for whom they will die; others, bound to stakes, burn as "living torches". Beasts are liberated to tear the living to shreds, and the mob rejoices. A picture of the past.

But today, we can see situations, resembling these in tragical effect, though not so swift in action. Needy, handicapped people, tormented by "ferocious beasts" of sickness, misfortune, held captive by greed or ignorance, are in the arena before you. Help them with all means at your command or else you are but part of the mob. (Character Bldg.)

BIOLOGICAL SCIENCES

Biology is the study of living things—what they are, what they do, and how they do it. It deals with plants (botany), animals (zoology), and with the principles underlying both. Its queries may be approached from morphological point of view (when interest centers upon form and structure) or from physiological aspect (when attention is concentrated upon functions performed), the mechanical and chemical engineering of living machinery.

THE ADVENTURES OF SECRET AGENT X-9

By Dashiell Hammett

Synopsis

Secret Agent X-9 is asked to rush to the home of Tarleton Powers, a millionaire. Gangsters learn of the request and force the detective's car into a ditch. His machine is wrecked, but he escapes injury and makes his way to Powers' home. Powers says he wants Secret Agent X-9 to prevent a horrible crime. While the investigator talks to Powers' niece, Evelyn, a revolver barks and Powers falls to the floor. Secret Agent X-9 tries to learn who fired the shot. Powers, semi-conscious, murmurs something about "the Top."

The Voice of Experience

That new dictaphone gadget they hook to the telephone isn't going to improve the maximum temperature of arts, sciences and letters.

It needles your conversation on a record for all to hear. In order to make it real entertainment the telephone companies will install a 60-man orchestra.

Drop in your nickel.

The telephone girl, "Do you wish to talk?"

You, "No. I speak better when I'm singing."

Girl, "Private recital? Or do you want to broadcast?"

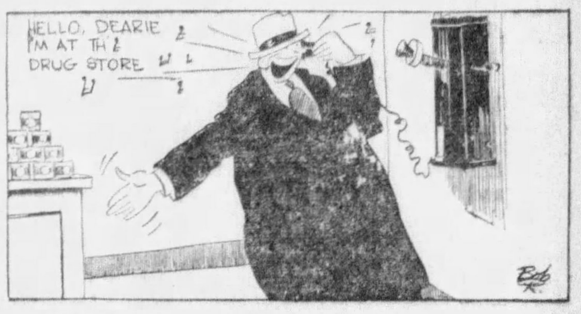
You, "That's up to the detectives."

Girl, "String orchestra or piano accompaniment?"

You, "Give us the Marine Band."

Girl, "That will be five cents extra."

You, "That's all right. I got a commercial sponsor."



Girl, "Married or single?"

You, "It all depends on this voice test."

Girl, "Are you talking to your wife?"

You, "No. But she's listening."

Girl, "Do you realize how your conversation will sound in court?"

You, "Sure. I've made concert tours right through the entire appellate division."

Girl, "Do you wish to drop in another nickel for our cheering section? It sounds quite spontaneous."

You, "Nope. My lawyer will do the applauding. He wears tin mittens."

Girl, "Okay. We give you a vamp of eight bars and then you start."

You, "Hello, dearie—"

Income Tax a Failure

Manufacturers' Sales Tax Would Be a More Satisfactory Revenue Producer.

The board of directors of the Congress of Clubs and Club Women of Western Pennsylvania, the Retail Lumber Dealers' Association of Western Pennsylvania, and the Pennsylvania State Association of Township Commissioners are among the latest organizations in this territory to indorse the proposal that a manufacturers' sales tax be substituted for the federal income tax.

Among other local organizations that have taken the same stand are the North Side Chamber of Commerce, the Retail Grocers' Association of Allegheny County, the board of directors of the Pittsburgh Teachers' Association, the Tuesday Musical Club, the Greater Pittsburgh Garage Association, the Homewood Woman's Club, the Edgewood Cot Club, and the Health Colony Club.

The list is impressive both in the number of citizens represented and in the diversity of their occupations and walks of life.

Then, in addition, the proposal has received the indorsement of a number of prominent individuals, among the latest of whom is Mrs. Robert K. Cochrane, president of the Allegheny County Federation of Club Women, who gave her views in a radio address.

The fact is being more and more appreciated that the income tax is a failure. The richest men dodge it by putting their money into tax-exempt government bonds, or by legal ruses. Business suffers because of the unwillingness of capitalists to invest in enterprises from which the income will be taken over in large part by the government.

The manufacturers' sales tax, a painless and more widespread impost, would be a more satisfactory producer of revenue.

Pennsylvania's congressmen should take note of the growing sentiment for the proposed change.

Inexcusable Coercion

The Zoning Board Should Not Submit to Interference By Mayor McNair.

Mayor W. N. McNair's attempt yesterday to bully the Board of Adjustment into granting a building permit in violation of the zoning ordinance is well-nigh unforgivable.

Up until now the board has been allowed to work free from political or other coercion.

Neither Mayor William A. Magee, nor Mayor Charles H. Kline, nor Mayor John S. Herron ever attempted while Mayor to influence the board's decisions.

As the result of being kept out of politics the board has rendered valuable service in preserving property values.

It should not submit to interference by Mayor McNair or any other politician.

Factors in Preparedness

Munitions and Shipping Can Be Purchased, But Time Cannot Be Bought.

One of the great needs of our time is an unvarnished military history of the United States. It would counteract, in a wholesome way, the overweening confidence in our strength, although undisciplined and untrained, and in our resources, although unorganized, which as a people we are somewhat prone to.

Such an unvarnished history, in very condensed form, is contained in a chapter on the lessons of the World War, written by the late Gen. Leonard Wood.

"Good fortune was with us," said he, "in the War of the Revolution when half of England was on our side; in the War of 1812, when England was engaged in the great struggle with Napoleon; in the Mexican War, when we fought an ill-equipped and much weaker people; in the Civil War, when North and South, equally uninstructed, learned the game together; in the Spanish War, when we met a nation even less prepared than ourselves; and last, in the Great War, when the Allies held the line while we got ready, furnishing us thousands of instructors who brought to us the lessons of the war and were invaluable in the preparation of our troops."

It should not be forgotten that our Allies in the Great War supplied us with artillery, with most of our fast fighting air service, and most of our air service of other types.

A large proportion of the troops we sent overseas was carried in ships of the Allies. It was the ships of England that swept the enemies' fleets from the seas which we had to cross.

"It is not difficult," said Gen. Wood, "to understand what would have happened had we been in the front line, without support and entirely dependent on our own resources." The answer is:

"OVERWHELMING DISASTER, RECOVERY FROM WHICH WOULD HAVE TAKEN GENERATIONS!"

We must not allow our satisfaction at the passage of the Vinson bill and the declaration of the administration that it will henceforth be its policy to maintain our naval forces at the maximum strength permitted by international agreement, to deceive us into thinking that our task is done.

The duty of preparedness will not be accomplished in laying down a few keels. It will be necessary for Congress, from year to year to make the annual appropriation required to carry our announced policy to a successful conclusion.

As Admiral Standley, chief of naval operations, said in New York recently:

"The Vinson bill is but the first step in our program. A definite national policy of continued building is vitally important. Naval science is in process of constant development, and only by continuous building can we keep step with other maritime powers in the application of modern scientific development of our national defense."

This must be done in time of peace. An adequate preparedness cannot be improvised. It cannot be achieved in a hurry.

Not only is this true of our naval defense, but it is equally true of our land forces. They must be highly trained, well organized and equipped.

And there must be an accompanying organization of our industrial resources. These must be ready and quickly available when needed.

When danger comes and we are forced to attempt BELATEDLY what we could have DONE EASILY if undertaken IN SEASON, it will be no comfort to reflect that time does not permit us to do what should have been done.

Many of the things which enter into national preparedness—such as munitions and shipping—we can doubtless buy, if we have to, with lavish expenditure and total disregard of cost. But one thing—let us not forget—we CANNOT buy! WE CANNOT BUY TIME!

The pictures now appearing in the daily and Sunday Sun-Telegraph, portraying the grim realities of the late war, eloquently enforce the lesson of national preparedness—perhaps more eloquently than any words that can be employed in dealing with the subject.

Which Shall It Be?

War and destruction, or peace and progress—which shall be our future lot?

All history, including our own history, teaches that unpreparedness invites war.

Preparedness, on the other hand, is insurance against war. And if war proves unavoidable, the prepared nation is the nation that suffers least.

The uncensored war pictures now appearing in the Hearst daily and Sunday papers show what warfare really is.

Its horrors and its devastation must not visit these peaceful shores again.

And the only way to keep foreign wars out of America, and America out of foreign wars, is for America to be prepared.

Leonard Wood was more than right when he said:

"It is better to be ready for war and not have it than to have war and not be ready for it."

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—The swirly Peggy Fears has no equal, save perhaps the similarly named Peggy Joyce, in achieving the Page One headlines. As volcanic in temperament as the over-the-dam swoop of her touseled coiffure, she takes life in a tornado trot.

Her marriage to the flyweight millionaire, A. C. Blumenthal, the cockatoo streak of white in her hair, her matrimonial difficulties, their private car trips with their intimate, Jimmy Walker, and her play-producing proclivities, have all been sources of zippy copy.

This season the girl from Dallas, Texas, produced her own play in which she was the bright particular star. No memorable effort, in fact it died almost aborning, but her first night brought out as complete an assortment of Broadway types as ever grouped in one theater. And won her a job in the movies.

Despite outward bluster, the obvious gesture to be seen, Miss Fears in a close-up is shrinking and haltingly shy in speech, poised in a sort of tremulous wonder. She seems hynotized by the New York hurrah, plunges into it and stands shivering, like one leaping into icy waters.

Delirium tremens note: Earl Carroll took his first drink, a glass of beer, at Dinty Moore's in 1930 and had to be taken home in a taxi. Whoop—ee—ee!

Groucho Marx is a confirmed pool player. His spare time is devoted to the game. When he finds a stage play uninteresting he sneaks to a neighboring poolroom to knock the balls about, returning to his seat by time lights come on. Twice he has missed Santa Fe's to Hollywood, overstaying his time between trains in Chicago pool parlors.

Early today I walked behind a shaver on way to school, his book strap jauntily over his shoulder. I regarded him perhaps in the manner of the gods of comedy and tragedy above, waiting for him to trip. How unconscious of life's alarming road as he stopped before shop windows, petted a kittie and waved airily to a crossing cop! One experiences a throaty clutch seeing anyone so young doing anything alone because his babyishness was so accentuated by pretense at maturity. In first tiny scratchings on the hard surface of life, his arrogance was delightful. An arrogance all of us lose with the world's swift socks.

After five months total blindness, following a motor crack-up that detached the retina, Andres de Segurola, beloved and famous Metropolitan singer, now sees again and is working in Hollywood pictures. Today his monocle, with the accustomed fixity of a porthole in a ship, is back in place after its first vacation in thirty-six years. Outside of Caruso, he was the Met's most interesting foreign importation, the first in town to wear canary colored gloves.

They were discussing unusual accidents. My choice was one that befell Billy Seaman on a private train to the Louisville Derby. In swiping back his hair with a brush on awakening, his scalp suddenly parted down the middle with a gush of blood that required ten stitches to close. A safety razor blade had caught in the bristles of the brush.

* * *

The more natural middle hair parts that show up so generously when we leaf through the family album were inspired back in the 90's by John Drew at the Empire. Experts of the coiffure parlors say the middle hair part went out because most toupees are so parted.

* * *

The single toupee that defies detection is worn by a sterling actor whose full-blown English accent is puncture proof, although I am told he is American born. Nor is there any actor who so successfully looks at least 20 years under his age. I refer to A. E. Mathews, whose careful and effective characterizations not only mark him as a real artist, but is on my secret list of six of the very best actors of the legitimate stage.

Monte Brice tells of the suddenly discovered young star in Hollywood who has become just as suddenly magnificently grand. Indeed so much so she now uses only gold moth balls.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

I Don't Believe in Hard Times!

I didn't think that anything could make me madder than the depression. The needlessness of it—the cruelty. For four years I went around seeing red. But, though we've passed through the worst of it, there's something in these post-depression days that still has me chewing the table leg—

AND THAT'S THESE CHEERY LITTLE ARTICLES ON WHAT A BLESSING HARD TIMES ARE—

AND HOW THEY HELP OUR SOULS—

PRACTICALLY EVERY ONE OF THEM WRITTEN BY SOME BIG SOFTIE WHO ATE REGULAR IN OUR BEST HOTELS WHILE THE COMMON GUYS WERE GOING THROUGH HELL.

I wish my boss wasn't so dog-goned refined . . . then maybe he'd let me say what I really think. And, believe me, stranger, I'm thinking plenty! I happen to know what those hard times actually meant to those common guys.

For why? I've been a common guy myself, all my life. Mostly I haven't had anything but hard times. And, speaking for the millions who can't, I'm here to tell all Pollyannas that—

HARD TIMES ARE NOT A BLESSING!

THEY ARE NOT ESSENTIAL TO OUR SPIRITUAL SALVATION.

NOR ARE THEY THE WISE DISPENSATION OF A BENEVOLENT PROVIDENCE.

THEY ARE THE DIRECT AND CUSSED CONSEQUENCES OF HUMAN STUPIDITY AND SWINISH SELFISHNESS—

AND WE HAVE OUR NERVE TO TRY TO PASS THAT BUCK TO GOD!

We didn't need to have the depression. We should never have had it. It stands to our everlasting shame that we did have it.

We had all the makings for prosperity. We had plenty of food, money and work for every man and woman in this country. By the use of a very little intelligence, a minimum of decency, we could have distributed this food, money and work so that a depression would have been impossible.

But we wouldn't use that intelligence or exercise that decency. As a result, millions of human beings have been living for the last four years under conditions unspeakably wretched and desperate.

AND WE'LL NOT BE THROUGH PAYING FOR THAT MISERY IN FOUR—OR FORTY—YEARS. IN CRIME AND ILLITERACY, IN DISEASE AND DESPAIR, WE'LL PAY FOR IT. GENERATIONS TO COME WILL BEAR THE MARKS OF THAT SHAMEFUL NEGLECT OF OUR CIVILIZED DUTY.

"Hard times uplifting"—"cleansing our spirits in a crucible of fire"—"renewing our ancient vigor."

Of all the pop-eyed piffle and slimy hypocrisy!

Hard work, plain living, healthy conflict—these are good for all of us. But chaos, such as we have known in these last four years, does NOT uplift. A steady diet of rancid pork and stale meal—on which hundreds of thousands of poor, helpless souls were forced to subsist—does NOT cleanse anyone's spirit in a crucible of fire. It turns a man into a beast, a woman into a fury, a child into an idiot. It degrades body, mind and soul.

PEOPLE DON'T HAVE TO HAVE HARD TIMES. THEY CAN BE—THEY WERE INTENDED TO BE—HAPPY AND HEALTHY WITHOUT HAVING TO GO THROUGH HELL TO LEARN HOW.

I refuse to look for the silver lining in our recent big, black cloud. I refuse to believe that it had any silver lining. And I view with contempt those who go around looking for silver linings when they should be facing the simple, shameful fact that we made a mess of things ourselves—and then getting busy and trying to clean up that mess.

It isn't noble or inspiring to write or preach or broadcast stuff like that. It's contemptible and downright crooked.

It was just such smug sentimentality and rotten rationalization of selfishness that got us into the depression—and that will KEEP US IN IT, unless we cut it out.

Dialects Have Their Day

Irish, German, Italian, Now Yiddish.

Fashions change in everything, from hoopskirts to almost no skirts, from modesty to indecency, from old-fashioned saloons to the new taprooms.

Dialects change also. Below you may read two descriptions of a modern play, written by two experts in the Yiddish dialect. Many will find it difficult to read the peculiar language so popular at present on the stage and "on the air."

"'BIOGRAPHY' ISS DOT A FUNNY SHOW! AND INA CLAIRE! ISS SHE BEAUTIFUL! AND LAUGHS! DERE'S TEN TOUSAND LAUGHS IN DOT SHOW. WELL, THEN, FIVE TOUSAND. WELL, AT LEAST TWO TOUSAND, EIGHT HUNDRED AND FIFTY! VAS YOU DERE, SHARLIE?"

JACK PEARL.

"DEED I SAW IT LEST WICK A PLAY! IT'S BY DE NAME 'BIOGRAPHY' WITT HINA CLAIRE. SO GEEVE A LEESTEN AND I'LL TELL—NO GO BATTER YOUSALF BY THE GILT TEEATRE SO YOU'LL GEEVE GRADUALLY A LOOK WOT YOU'LL GONNA LEFF WITT CRY, WOT YOU'LL FORGET HALL TOGETHER FROM YOU TROBBLES WOT IT'S A GUDGEOUS TEEATRE DERE WITT A WASHROOM WOT IT'S FENCIER DEN BY OSS DE PARLOR."

MILT GROSS.

Originally in old New York, as your grandfather will tell you, the only dialect supposed to be amusing, heard everywhere on the comic stage, was English with a pronounced Irish accent.

Harrigan and Hart talked and sang with an Irish accent. The little girls on their stage sang the language of the East Side of New York or of Ireland. Occasionally a "comic Dutchman," meaning a German, always fat with a big stomach and a plaid waistcoat, was introduced.

Then Germans became more numerous than the Irish and Weber and Fields followed Harrigan and Hart in public favor, with ALL GERMAN dialect. One called the other "Mike," but with a German accent. The Italian accent has been used for stage and comic effect, but not as extensively as the other three, Irish, German and Yiddish.

The new and popular thing is what you read above. What will come next?

Human Side of the News

The Earthquake in Nepal Is Blamed by a Buddhist Abbot On the Flight Over Mount Everest

By Edwin C. Hill.

TWENTY THOUSAND human beings have perished under the eaves of the world. The great earthquake which shook northern India centered its fierce oscillations in that maelstrom of gigantic mountains in Nepal, a native state which lies between British India and Thibet—the last home of mystery, as Col. E. Alexander Powell calls it.

Here is the region of the high Himalayas, a stupendous wall, falling away in tiers to the south, clear down to the hot plains of India. It was in this jungle of tremendous, everlastingly ice-clad peaks that the earthquake rolled with such appalling violence. Mountains bowed to each other. Valleys and gorges were ironed out, like wrinkles in a garment. Towns fell apart and disappeared. Death and horror rode a lonely, inaccessible land.

And now comes the curious report that the Buddhist abbot, Tempe-ise-Ring of the Tangtra Monastery, predicted disaster nine months ago as an inevitable result of the defiance by Englishmen of the old gods who abide on the crest of Mount Everest, as Jove and his gods and goddesses dwelt on the summit of Mount Olympus.

It was last April that the Marquess of Douglass and Clydedale, with Col. L. V. Stewart Blacker, and Flight Lieut. E. F. McIntyre drove their plane high above the plume-capped peak of Everest, lifting 29,000 feet above the Indian plain. It was the first time that the gaze of a human being had ever been turned downward upon the monarch of mountains. Always through the centuries, that gaze had been lifted upward in amazement and respect.

* * *

Many Perished Trying to Ascend

MANY times men had tried to climb to the top of Everest, and always had been defeated by the terrible cold and the fierce wind which sweeps the top of the world. Thirteen white men had died in the ice and snow, trying to conquer this footstool of the old gods, before the British plane went roaring over Everest's gleaming crest. Now the Buddhist lamas maintain that the old gods have wreaked vengeance on humanity for daring to invade their privacy, for daring to look down upon them. Superstition, of course, but it is a curious fact that the severest shock followed the line of flight taken by the British flying men.

This whole land of northern Nepal is one of the most interesting lands in all the world—a region of appalling beauty. Nepal, itself, as big as the state of Arkansas, the most secluded, jealously-guarded country on earth. Visitors are discouraged. Few are ever admitted. It is under the nominal protection of Great Britain, but even the British Raj moves delicately in dealng with the jealous, sensitive bellicose Nepalese.

* * *

Capital of Nepal A Colorful Spot

THE capital of Khatmandu, badly shaken by the quake, is one of the colorful spots of this footstool. A mixture of Chinese and Hindu. Encircling snow peaks, rising range on range. Temples and shrines, with a wealth of color and carving. Buddhist sanctuaries, with gilded roofs and pinnacles gleaming in the sun. Innumerable idols in brass and stone. The many storied pagodas, with their tiled roofs and upturned eaves. A labyrinth of dim alleys and twisted lanes. White palaces hidden behind mysterious walls.

And the people themselves—the little tough, fierce Gurkha soldiers, in round black caps and bright blue uniforms; the turbaned Indians, with caste marks of white, yellow or red painted between their eyes; filthy Thibetans, in fur hats and long quilted coats and high boots of red leather; the Buddhist lamas in woolen robes and pointed hoods of orange; the Sikh soldiers, black-bearded giants with the beards braided and tied up under their chins; the Nepalese women, in balloon skirts and zouave jackets of many colors, jingling with jewelry.

And off in the distance, commanding all, the world's greatest mountain, a haughty lady hiding her charms behind a veil of mists and clouds. An ice-empress, wrapped in ermine and crowned with diamonds, majestic and imperial, alluring and aloof. Men have laid down their lives to win her, fired by the dream of the inaccessible.

Little wonder that the people who dwell on the roof of the world believe with passionate sincerity that she is, indeed, the throne of the gods they worship.

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

Reason for Song

O, song is a bit of a puzzle
When anyone wants to know why
Words spring from the heart set to music
At sight of a star in the sky!

The reason for singing eludes one,
Though song may be sweet on his lips
When he watches the white riffles foaming
In the wake of the out-going ships.

So many things move to the measure
Of song through the day and the night;
The river, the wind in the willows,
The wings of the sea gulls in flight.

So great is the urge of its beauty
That translating a rose into words
Is no more of a task to the singer
Than their morning songs are to the birds.

Though the reason for singing is hidden,
Still the need lurks, abiding and deep
As the need of bread is for the hungry.

MARRY-GO-ROUND

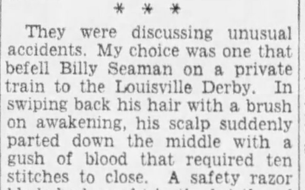
By Helen Rowland

Love and Learn

This appears to be the open season for divorcing radio crooners. The season for divorcing screen stars and titled foreigners is never closed.

* * *

In the good old days, when a man went to the altar it was for love—and love alone—in nine cases out of ten. Because LOVE was all a woman had to offer him.



Many a girl who used to declare haughtily that she wouldn't go around with a man who didn't have a decent car and couldn't afford to bring her orchids, would now be glad to find one who could pay his share of the dinner check.

* * *

When a man is a born philanderer, marriage doesn't unite him to a woman—it merely "attaches" him to her in a casual sort of way.

* * *

* * *

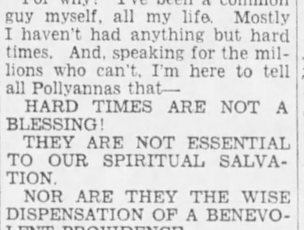
Apparently, it takes two women to make a man feel that his life is perfectly balanced: but why does he always try to induce them to be "clubby"? No doubt, Marc Antony would have taken Cleopatra to call on "Mrs. Marc," if he could have persuaded them to "listen to reason"!

* * *

A man has no trouble in keeping a woman guessing—the trouble is that she has such an embarrassing way of guessing right, nine times out of 10.

* * *

Every woman must have a baby or a pet in her life. That's why some women bear children, some women adopt them, and some marry gigolos to coddle and worry over.



A man used to think himself lucky if he found a wife who could cook and just be pleased about it; but nowadays every man seems to require a one-woman harem, who can run the house, the car and an office job and then go out and be a merry little pal all evening.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

In the past few years you have learned how foolish it was for you to carry on the bluff which you kept up as long as you were financially able to do so.

You now realize that if you had had good sense then, you might have escaped quite a bit of the worry you since have had on account of shortage of money.

Your endeavor to create the impression of having so much more money than you possessed was a costly bit of bluff.

You spent money freely without getting its equivalent value in return.

You thought you were making friends loyal and lasting.

In point of fact you associated with those who accepted you because you neither especially pleased nor displeased them—indifferently accepted.

You conducted your affairs on a plane far above that which your circumstances warranted and in a manner far beyond that dictated by good common sense.

Now you are paying the penalty for your foolishness.

It is likely that you will pay that penalty for the remainder of your life because it is hardly probable that you will ever again have such unusual opportunities as you have enjoyed in past years.

Also, the snobbish group that you have aped is not a crowd worth aping if you could know just where many of them stand in their lack or mental and moral decency.
